City Commissioners Office.

Baltimore 31st May, 1813.

In Pursuance of an Act of the General Assembly of the State of Maryland passed November Session 1812, entitled "An Act for opening and extending Aisquith Street in the Eastern Precincts of Baltimore;" and a Supplement thereto passed the twentieth instant.

The City Commissioners did meet on the twenty seventh instant, and after carefully examining the Platt laid down by Robert Ballard in the year 1787 as referred to in the aforesaid Supplement, did cause to be surveyed that part of Aisquith Street directed to be opened and extended agreeably to the annexed Platt.— Beginning for the same at the South end at the West line of Aisquith Street at the Letter A, North twenty Degrees West nineteen feet six inches from the Northernmost corner of the Easternmost brick building erected by Jeremiah L. Boyd, on the North west side of Pitt Street and running from thence along the East end wall of said Building South twenty Degrees East forty nine feet six inches to intersect Pitt Street at right angles, at the Letter B, thence along the line of Pitt Street North Seventy Degrees East, Seventy six feet nine inches to the west side of Lloyds Lane at the Letter C, thence continuing the same course to the Easternmost side of Lloyds Lane as directed by the Supplement aforesaid twenty feet to the Red Letter C, meeting a point fifty three feet three inches from the Northernmost corner of David Burchard's Brick House, thence along the Easternmost line of Lloyds Lane, North twenty Degrees West to the East line of Aisquith Street at the Red Letter D, thence Southerly to the Black Letter D, thence to the Letter A the place of beginning.— which location thus Given includes that part of Lloyds Lane, which is shewn on the Platt between the line of the Black Letter C to Black Letter D, and the line from Red Letter C to Red Letter D, here condemned.— The residue of the ground comprised within the Black L. A.B.C.&D is the private property now condemned as a Public Highway hereafter for Ever.

In Witness whereof we have hereunto set our Hands and Seals the day and year above written.—
