The Tolchester Company.

The Baltimore Sunday Sun published an excellent history of the Tolchester Company, of which Capt. Wm. C. Eliason is the energetic and efficient manager, and Mr. G. E. Noland the painstaking and careful superintendent at Tolchester Beach. The Tolchester Company has grown from a very small beginning to one of the largest and wealthiest steamboat companies in Baltimore city, mainly through the business capacity and energy of Capt. Eliason. The Sun gives a most complimentary sketch of Capt. Eliason, all of which is peculiarly fitting, for there is no better steamboat man in the country than Capt. Eliason. We wish we had the space to publish the entire article, but we have not. The paper contained cuts of the various boats of the line, the Nellie White, Emma Giles, the Tolchester and the Louise, and brought to mind many vivid memories of the early history of the prosperous company.

OBITUARY.

OLDEST CITIZEN DEAD.

Capt. James W. Thompson, the Oldest Citizen of the Town, and Perhaps the Oldest Resident in the County Passes to His Long Home.

Capt. James W. Thompson, the oldest resident in Chestertown, and perhaps the oldest man in the county, died at the home of his son, Capt. James Thompson, on Saturday morning, in the 95th year of his age. On account of his extreme age Capt. Thompson had been a sufferer for some years, and yet with a submissiveness to the will of his Heavenly Father he waited patiently for the coming of the summons, and always had the tender care and faithful ministrations of his children and loved ones. Capt. Thompson was born in Piney Neck, this county, December 19th, 1813, and had he survived until next December, he would have reached the extreme age of 95 years. From his early boyhood the deceased had been a lover of the water, and was early engaged in the occupation of a waterman. He removed to Chestertown when a young man, but did not relinquish his desire to follow the water. He soon became interested in the establishment of a packet line between Chestertown and Baltimore, and was among the pioneers of steamboat navigation in Chester River, having at one time owned a line of steam and sail vessels plying between Chestertown and Baltimore. In years agone he built a wharf and granary at the foot of Cannan street, which to this day bears his name, and from which much of the grain and produce of this and Queen Annes counties had been shipped. He was for a number of years a strong competitor of the Chester River Line, and many of the wharves along the river now owned by the Md., Del. & Va. Railway Company, are monuments to his enterprise. His occupation made him a power in the business life of this community in his halcyon days, and even when the reverses of fortune came to him, he maintained his hold upon the affections of his fellowmen by his unswerving honesty and integrity. Capt. Thompson was a man of strong character and deep religious instincts. In the days of his vigor and even until the infirmities of age got hold upon him, he was a power for good in the community and a zealous advocate of the cause of his Master. He was for years an active member of the M. E. Church, in which he strove to build up the cause of Christ, and in his daily life he exemplified the teachings of the gospel in all his relations with his fellowmen. Truly he was a man who emulated virtue, eschewed wrong, and practiced temperance to the end of his long and eventful life. Such a man, though he die bereft of all this world's goods, leaves to his posterity a heritage far more incorruptible than silver and gold, and which shall endure through all time. And we write again, Blessed are the dead, who die in the Lord.

The deceased is survived by four sons—Capt. James Thompson, with whom the father made his home during his last years, and from whom and his wife, Capt. Thompson received the most devoted and faithful attention—Capt. Wm. C. A. Thompson, one of our prominent merchants, Capt. Joseph W. Thompson, a prominent business man of Philadelphia, and Capt. J. Henry Thompson, a prominent farmer living near Rock Hall. He also leaves a number of grandchildren and great grandchildren. Funeral services were held from the residence of his son on Cannon street, on Monday afternoon at one o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. F. T. Little. Misses Hallie Toulson and Edith Dunbracco and Mrs. J. H. Anthony sang several favorite selections. Interment was made in Chester cemetery, where the services were in charge of the Order of Odd Fellows, of which the deceased was the oldest member. The pall-bearers were the following members of the order: Messrs. James W. Chapman, John F. Howard, Frank D. O'Leary, Frank M. Miller, Charles J. Reiche and J. Cordray Loud. Undertaker J. E. Ferguson had charge of the funeral arrangements.

J. WILLIAM MORRIS.

Mr. J. William Morris, of Middlesex county, Va., died at his residence near Locust Hill, that county, on March 18, 1908, from the effects of the grip, aged 44 years. He was the son of the late John W. Morris, and nephew of the late Wm. and Jessie W. Morris, of Kent county.

The Latest Move in the Estate Of the Late Richard D. Hynson.

Last week Messrs. Wickes and Beck filed a bill in equity against Mrs. Carolene L. Hynson asking the Circuit Court to appoint receivers to assume charge of the assets in the estate of the late Richard D. Hynson, pending the termination of the present litigation. Judges Hopper and Adkins signed an order requiring Mrs. Hynson to answer the same by April 20th. Mrs. Carolene L. Hynson on the same day filed a bill in equity against Messrs. Wickes and Beck asking the court to compel Messrs. Wickes and Beck to account for all funds and securities which had come into their hands and which belong to her late husband, Richard D. Hynson, or to herself, and asking the court to enjoin them from interfering in any way with her securities and rights. On Monday last Judges Hopper and Adkins granted this injunction which was accordingly served on Messrs. Wickes and Beck. They are permitted to move for a dissolution of the injunction on giving five days notice of their intention to do so.

A Rose From The Old Regime.

The Friday morning exercises at the Chestertown High school were in charge of Miss Gooding, and one of the principal features of the programme was the republication of the school paper, "The Echo," and the following touching letter from Mrs. Annie Leaverton Ebaugh, the founder of the paper, and who is held in such loving remembrance by those of us who were fortunate enough to be under her instruction when she was a teacher in the school here. The letter reads:

Editors of the Echo,

My dear young friends:—

It gives me peculiar pleasure that you should remember me and ask me to contribute a page to the time honored Echo. I am glad to be remembered as its founder. It awakens a train of happy memories and I recall the dear old times when I was a teacher in your school and it touches me deeply to know that I am not forgotten. It has always been my cherished desire to live in your memory and to have this chance to come before the old school again is to me a rare chance. It is just twenty-two years ago this Christmas time that I had a letter in the Echo. It contained my parting words to the school just before entering upon a life of great happiness.

Many interesting scenes come to my mind. I am thinking of a little letter written in a childish hand and signed by five boys, who were then in the 1-6 grade.

It contained their parting words to me and so gratifying was the sentiment expressed that I have always kept that letter and have it now among my treasures. The boys names were Willie Usilton, Clarence Perkins, Eben Perkins, David Perkins, and Harvey Culp. These boys are men now filling honorable positions. I should like to mention many of my old pupils, and among these would be the ones, who became teachers. It gives me a thrill of pleasure to know there are teachers in your school who were once my honored pupils.

I should like to give a word of tribute to the three principals with whom I worked, Messrs. Peterson, Ebaugh and Fallowfield. Each one has been called to a higher sphere of action but the work they did to establish and organize a fine school is the foundation on which you are able now to build a fine superstructure. Would have you remember them with gratitude together with the trustees of those days—Mr. Charles Baker, Mr. Water Russell, Mr. Colin Stam, and Dr. Perkins.

While we stand in this memory gallery let us be reverently silent a moment when we think of the name of our honored examiner, Mr. Eben F. Perkins, who gave the best of his life to the schools of Kent.

Only two of the trustees of those days remain with you—Mr. Usilton and Mr. Chapman. But I must not dwell upon reminiscences.

It is my pleasure, once a year to visit my old home and I have watched with interest the improvements in your fair town. I rejoiced with you when the new building became a reality and it gives me pleasure to see it standing in the very shadow of the churches, rearing its proud tower as high as their spires, its bell ringing out with theirs to call to the same noble work of helping and elavating humanity. In this new building with your noble band of teachers there is no limit to your privileges and possibilities.

As a school you might become a valuable auxiliary to the town improvement society. There is so much you might do in keeping the streets clean and beautifying them.

Your Arbor Day privileges might be enlarged, so that, instead of planting a few trees you might plant many, extending on every side far out into the country; and if the other schools would extend their planting until they met yours, then you would have a system of public roads which would rival those of old England. In time they would be avenues of arching trees, a veritable thing of beauty and a joy forever."

I have already trespassed upon your time. I thank you for this privilege, hoping that the Echo may be heard as long as the school lasts.

I am faithfully yours,
ANNIE LEAVERTON EBAUGH.

Sold Out.—Mr. George Cadwallader, our well-known fish vender, has sold his apartments on Thompson's wharf, together with his household goods, and this week has been away from town enjoying the proceeds. His appartments sold for $30, and his household effects also brought a good price.
