APOLO'S FOUNT.

SATURDAY NIGHT.

BY A JOURNEYMAN MECHANIC.

NOW wife and children, let's be gay,
My work is done, and here's the pay—
Twas hard to earn, but never mind it,
Hope rear'd the sheaf, and peace shall bind it.

Six days I've toil'd, and now we meet,
To share the welcome weekly treat,
Of toast and tea, of rest and joy,
Which gain'd by labour cannot cloy.

Come ye who form my dear fire side,
My care, my comfort, and my pride;
Come now, and let us close the night,
In harmless sports of food delight.

To-morrow's dawn brings blessed peace,
And each domestic joy's increase,
To him who honestly maintains,
That course of life which Heav'n ordains.

'Tween rich and poor, the difference what?
In working, or in working not?
Why then on Sunday we're as great,
As those who own a vast estate.

For on to-morrow's happy day,
We shall work less perhaps than they:
And though no dainties I afford,
What's sweet and clean will grace my board.

For which, and every blessing giv'n,
Thankful we'll bow the knee to Heav'n,
In GODS own house our voices raise,
With grateful notes of prayer and praise.

These duties will not interfere,
Or cloud my brow with thoughts severe,
But still leave time enough to spend,
To take a walk, or see a friend.

Sweet's the tranquility of heart,
Which public worship does impart,
And sweet's the field, and sweet's the road
To him whose conscience bears no load.

Thus shall the day, as God design'd,
Promote my health, unbend my mind,
On Monday morning, free from pain,
Cheerful I'll go to work again.

Our life is but a lengthen'd week,
Through which with toil for rest we seek;
And he whose labor well is past,
A joyful Sabbath finds at last!

There is an admirable partition of qualities between the sexes, which the Great Author of being has distributed to each, with a wisdom which calls for all our admiration.

Man is strong—Woman is beautiful. Man is daring and confident—Woman is diffident and unassuming. Man is great in action—Woman in suffering.—Man shines abroad—Woman at home. Man talks to convince—Woman to persuade and please—Man has a rugged heart—Woman a soft and tender one—Man prevents misery—Woman relieves it—Man has science—Woman taste. Man has judgment—Woman sensibility. Man is a being of justice—Woman of mercy.
