APOLLO'S FOUNT.

FOR THE STAR.

"Veterem in Limo ranæ cecinere querelam." VIRG.

In mud, the Frogs their old complaint repeat,
Indicative of Spring's returning heat.

SURE as the Sun to rise and set,
Sure as the Earth by rain is wet;
Sure as the Darkness yields to light,
Spring will return in glory bright.

Sweet, oh! sweet, the Breath of Spring,
Sweetly then the black-birds sing;
Sweet, oh! sweet is May day morn,
When Cowslips gay the fields adorn.

When violets and daiseys too,
And hyacinth delight the view,
Sweet to rove at early dawn,
The flow'ry mead and glitt'ring lawn.

How sweet to hear the faithful Doves,
In tender strains, coo forth their loves;
Much sweeter far than all combin'd,
WAS Laura's love to me confin'd.

But oh! those sweets are lost to me,
Since Laura LOVES! yet, mine can't be!

In vain for me the flow'rets bloom,
In vain the season's come and go;
To me all nature wears a gloom,
Since Laura's breast is wrung with woe!

Wayward fortune still doth prove,
My unrelenting foe in love.

RULES FOR DRINKING.

Three Cups of Wine a prudent man may take;
The first of these for Constitution's sake;
The second, to the Girl he likes the best;
The third, and last, to lull him to his rest:
Then home in bed!—But, if a fourth he pours,
That is the Cup of Folly, and not ours:
Loud, noisy talking on the fifth attends;
The sixth brings feuds and falling out Friends.

If two negatives make an affirmative, what will half a dozen negatives make? A market woman going over Roxbury Neck, observed she had left a box at some of the shops in town, the lid only being left in the cart. She sent her husband to enquire among a few shops where she must have left it. With an anxious inquisitive countenance, he asked in several stores—Nobody don't know nothing about no box that nobody left here, with no kiver on, as nobody knows on, does there?

An agreeable man and of a merry disposition, but very poor, finding, one night, some thieves in his house, told them, without putting himself in a passion I cannot imagine what you expect to find in my house in the night time, since I can find nothing in it myself in the day time.

The matrimonial blacksmith at Gretna green being asked? why old women were so fond of matrimony? "Why, "said he, "you know that old wood catched fire in an instant."

Saint-John's College.

THE present situation of Saint-John's College is such, as to offer to the friends of science the pleasing prospect of its future respectability. The visitors and governors of this seminary have recently new modelled and placed it under the superintendence of the Reverend Bethel Judd, A. M. formerly of Yale College, in Connecticut, who is professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy, and will reside in the College; there are also a Professor of Languages, and a teacher of the Grammar School. The building is large and commodious, situated in a retired part of Annapolis, the metropolis of Maryland, and one of the most pleasant and healthy cities in America. As the legislature and supreme courts hold their sessions at this place, it is the resort of people of the first respectability. The college possesses a philosophical aparatus surpassed by none in America. The price of tuition is fifteen pounds per annum. Students can be accommodated with board, including lodging, washing, and other convenences, for fifty pounds per annum.

When we consider that Saint-John's College possesses so many advantages, without any of the disadvantages incident to commercial places, we trust that we have some reason to expect public patronage; but knowing that the only criterion of judging is "by the fruits produced," we invite an investigation of the rules and regulations, and of the improvement of the youth belonging to the college, for the farther satisfaction of those persons who may think it worthy of their attention.

The following regulations have been adopted.

There shall be four classes in the college, viz. the Noviciate, the Sophmore, Junior and Senior.

To the college shall be annexed a grammar school, in which shall be taught the various branches of English, and the Latin and Greek Languages preparatory to an admission into the Noviciate class.

No student shall be admitted into the Noviciate class unless he can construe and parse Cæsar's Galli War, Sallust, Virgil, and the Greek Testament.

The Noviciate class shall study Horace, Cicero's Orations, Lucian, Homer, Arithmetic and Algebra.

The Sophmore class shall study Juvenal, Xenophon, Demosthenes, Euclid, Surveying, Trigonometry and Navigation.

The Junior class shall study Tully's offices Epictetus, Logic, Astronomy, Fluxions, Conic Sections, Geography and Natural Philosophy.

The Senior class shall study Grotius de Veritate, Longinus, Blairs Lectures, Moral Philosophy, Locke on the Human Understanding and Vattell's Law of Nations.

It shall be the duty of the professor of languages to make the students in the college constantly review their prior classical studies at such periods as he may find most convenient.

All the students shall attend prayers both Morning and Evening.

All the classes shall recite at least three times each day.

A due proportion of time shall be devoted to composition and speaking.

A lecture, either moral or literary, shall be delivered by the principal, or one of the professors on every fourth Saturday morning

There shall be annually two public examinations and exhibitions, one at or about the time of commencement, which shall always be on the fourth Wednesday in July, the other on the fourth Wednesday in December.

Every student shall attend public worship at such place as his parents or guardian shall in writing direct, and if no such direction be given, he shall attend such place of worship as the principal may appoint.

No student shall be guilty of profane swearing, indecent conversation, gaming, drunkenness, frequenting taverns or houses of public entertainment, rude behaviour or any thing immoral.

No student shall purchase any thing on credit without permission of his parent or guardian, unless the principal shall think it necessary.

It shall be the duty of the principal to examine all compositions written, and all speeches intended to be delivered, and expunge every expression that might give just cause of offence to any party, religious or political.

It shall be the duty of the professors to set good examples to the students, to treat them with parental tenderness and affection, to pay strict attention to those committed to their care, particuarly those from abroad, and to see that they have every accommodation necessary to their comfort and health.

If any student shall offend in any respect against the rules and regulations of this seminary, he may be punished by moderate correction, admonition, tasks, solitary confinement or expulsion, provided that no one shall be expelled without the consent of a board of visitors, and that no corporal punishment be inflicted upon any in the three higher classes.

If any student shall injure the college building or its appertenances, he shall pay twice the expense of repairs.

There shall be two vacations in each year, one of two weeks, commencing on the twenty-fourth of December, the other from the fourth Wednesday of July to the second Monday of September.

The tuition money shall be paid by every student quarterly.

NICHOLAS CARROLL, President of the board of visitors and governors of Saint-John's College.
