AMÉLIE RIVES

Now the Princess Troubetskoy

has written a new novel for Lippincott's Magazine which bids fair to overtop the reputation of her first great work, "The Quick or the Dead." As in her first story, the scene is laid in Virginia, her beloved Southland. The plot is one of the most remarkable and absorbing that has ever appeared between covers. Don't wait to get the October number of Lippincott's in which Amélie Rives' great story appears. The number containing "The Quick or the Dead" was sold out in a flash. There will be an even bigger demand for her new story.

FREE Three good numbers—October (containing the new Amélie Rives' story) and the November and December issues with each yearly subscription to begin with the January, 1912 number. Send $2.50 to-day and get fifteen numbers for the price of twelve.

Lippincott's Magazine Philadelphia

Note. After January 1st the yearly subscription price to Lippincott's Magazine will be advanced to $3.00 a year.

SOCIETY WOMAN LOSES HER FOOT.

Fried of Mrs. James W. Chapman, Jr. meets With a Terrible Accident in an Elevator in the Fashionable Cecil Apartments, Baltimore.

In an attempt to shield her two children from danger, Mrs. Mary Imogene Slingluff, one of Baltimore's most prominent society matrons, wife of Mr. Robert Lee Slingluff, of the law firm of Slingluff & Slingluff, accidentally got her right foot caught between the elevator and the second floor of the fashionable Cecil Apartments, Baltimore, late Sunday afternoon, crushing the member so severely that amputation was necessary at the Mercy Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Slingluff, their two small children Robert Lee Slingluff, Jr., and Catherine, had just returned from Druid Hill Park, where the children had been sledding most of the afternoon. When they reached the vestibule of the Cecil Apartments, where they reside, Mr. Slingluff remarked to his wife that while she took the children up to the nursery, he would attend to the sleds and join her later.

Mrs Slingluff, accompanied by her little ones and their nurse, stepped into the waiting elevator, which was in charge of Harry Johnson, aged about 20 years. As the elevator rose to the second floor the children approached too near the edge of the car. Fearful lest they might endanger their lives Mrs. Slingluff stepped in front of them.

In some unaccountable manner she got her right foot wedged between the flooring and the elevator. She tried to wrench her foot free, but before she was able to extricate it or even give an alarm the member was terribly crushed. Although the pain was excruciating Mrs. Slingluff did not cry out or lose her presence of mind.

"Stop the elevator quickly." she said to the boy. "My foot is caught." Johnson turned off the current and brought his car to a standstill before it had climbed to the third floor.

Mrs. Slingluff's face was blanched and she bit her lip to prevent her agony from being noticed by her two children. When the car stopped Mrs. Slingluff would have fallen had it not been for the elevator boy, who rushed to her side.

Her right foot was terribly mangled, while the shoe and the stocking were almost torn away. Both the children were frightened, and began to whimper in terror when they saw their mother's plight. The boy, Robert Lee, Jr., tried to comfort his infant sister, while the mother appeared to be unconscious of her own suffering and only tried to calm the fears of her children.

The unfortunate lady was rushed to Mercy Hospital, where the injured member was amputated just above the right ankle. Mrs. Slingluff is a friend of Mrs. James W. Chapmaon, Jr., whose wedding she attended in Chestertown. She was then Miss Imogine Dorsey, and she visited Mrs. Chapman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Vannort, for a bout a week after the wedding.

Country Paper Cleanest.

The stream of domestic crime and scandal with which the newspapers of Detroit and other cities have been flooded recently, making them unfit reading for the home, has called attention rather sharply to the difference between the metropolitan sheet, the editor and reporters of which are unknow to the great majority of their readers, and the country weekly with whom the personality of its editor is inseparable in the minds of his patrons.

The country weekly, writes Henry F. Harris, publisher of the Richmond (Mich.) Review, is above all a clean sheet, fit to be treated like a member of the household, and it is edited with a view of printing the news which its readers most desire to read and of eliminating much which is not fit to spread before people who desire a mental feast that can be digested with a clear conscience.

The city dailies attempt to justify their course by the claim that they are printing the stuff which the people want. No doubt there is a large number in every urban center to whom crime and scandal appeals and it is this delectable class that the metropolitan sheet seeks to please and attract. The country readers, to their credit, would be better pleased if much of the filth is eliminated from their daily visitors. News can be given in a clean way, though of ill-smelling orgin. Many salacious details can be cut out if a clean paper is desired by the editor.

The country editor not only edits out much objectionable matter, but suppresses reports of misdeeds which would cause innocent people distress. He does this out of consideration for people whom he knows and because no good purpose could be served by the publication of the objectionable reports. His favors are extended to rich and poor alike, often without apparent appreciation. Indeed, the complimentary expressions which he prints relative to his readers are seldom heard of by the newspaper man, though he is just human enough to crave thankfulness like other people—but let him make a slip and say something which arouses resentment, even though innocently, he is made to wish himself in some other occupation.

The country press, is no small contribution to the clean current literature of the nation and the local paper deserves the subscription and support of every household.—Western Newspaper Union.

A VETERAN OF THE CHURCH.

Rev. J. Earle Maloy Has Prayed For Legislature Many Years.

The venerable James Earle Maloy is serving his first term as chaplain of the Senate. But he has been chaplain of the House of Delegates at so many sessions that he cannot recall them all. He began as chaplain at the famous extra session held in Frederick in 1861, when many members of the Legislature were arrested and imprisoned by Federal troops.

Mr. Maloy is a native of Queen Anne's county, and it was the late Col. Wm. Henry Legg, who, when a member of the House from that county, got him appointed. The chaplain is a namesake of James T. Earle. He says he is 77 years old, hale, hearty and happy. This is his fifty-third year in the ministry and he has in that time never missed attending the annual conference of his church.

The chaplain has always been popular in the Legislature. He lives in Cecil county, but has charge of the church at Indian River in Sussex county, Del., where he ministers to a community of people of Indian lineage.
