THE STILL POND METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Will Celebrate its 140th Anniversary in Conjunction With a Formal Re-Opening, After Extensive Repairs, October 20—November 3, 1912.

The Still Pond Methodist Episcopal Church, which has been partially closed during the summer months for extensive repairs and improvements, will be formally re-opened on Sunday, Oct. 20, followed by two weeks of special meetings to commemorate its 140th anniversary.

The pastor has succeeded in securing some of the most eloquent and learned preachers in the country in addition to some of the most popular ex-pastors for these meetings, as may be observed by the following programme:

9.30 A. M.—Sunday School.
10.30 A. M.—Sermon by Rev. E. C. Macnichol, D. D., pastor here 1885-7.
7.30 P. M.—Sunday School Rally, address by Dr. Macnichol.

In conjunction with the above named exercises a souvenir booklet is being published for distribution. This booklet will contain a historical sketch of the church, by Hon. Jas. S. Harris, a membership directory, Sunday school directory, a list of officials and etc. It will also contain pictures of the church, the pastor, Jas. S. Harris, president of the board of trustees, and Aunty Clements the oldest living member.

We congratulate the members and friends of this church on their ecclesiastical pride and christian loyalty as revealed in the improvements thus far made and their contemplated plans for the future. The church, as it now stands, is doubtless the most beautiful and commodious country church on the Eastern Shore, and it is interesting to know that it is the oldest continuously organized Methodist Society on the Delmarvia Peninsula. The original edifice, of which the present is a successor, was probably erected sometime during the Revolutionary War. It is a notable fact that Bishop Asbury, the pioneer organizer of methodism, established a preaching place here in 1772. It is also of interest to know that Ezekiel Cooper, Bishop Whatcoat and Bishop Scott were pastors of this church before they were elected to their official positions.

The improvements that have been made are as follows: The exterior repaired and painted, the auditorium newly frescoed, a Pitner lighting system installed within and without, a new carpet presented by the Ladies' Aid Society, and a new organ installed as the result of the generosity of one of the members. The total cost is about $1200.

The pastor anticipates something more than passing interest in an improved edifice and the 140th anniversary exercises. He hopes that back of all this will come renewed interest in the life of the church and a genuine spiritual revival.

RAILROADS WIN AS WAS Expected in the People's Fight for the Much Needed Connection at Centreville.

The three-eighths of a mile open space between the railroad lines in Centreville will not be spanned. This is the substance of a ruling made last week by the Public Service Commission, and brings to an end a fight which has been waged since early in the year between the Philadelphia, Baltimore & Washington and the Maryland, Delaware & Virginia railroads on one hand and the Board of Trade of Centreville and the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore on the other—in plain language the people against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The petition orginally filed stated in substance that the termini of the respective roads is on opposite sides of the town and that freight and passengers could reach Baltimore in less time if the two termini were joined. Several hearings were had, two of them at Centreville, by Commissioner Joshua W. Hering on May 22 and June 19. The case for the complainants was presented by the president of the Centreville Board of Trade and the traffic manager of the Merchants & Manufacturers' Association of Baltimore. Later a final hearing was had in Baltimore. The railroads were represented by Ralph Robinson and Charles H. Carter.

Commissioner Hering, who wrote the opinion, says, in substance, that the public service at this time does not require a physical connection between the tracks. "All freight originating south of Centreville for Baltimore or Philadelphia goes to Townsend, Del., and will reach the markets of Baltimore and Philadelphia with as little cost and as quickly as if there were a physical connection between the roads."

Any change in passenger schedules, Dr. Hering holds, would unnecessarily disturb the entire main line. The only solution would be to run an extra train between Centreville and Townsend, which would cost $10,000 yearly, and the traffic would not justify it. The petition is, therefore, dismissed. The opinion is concurred in by the other commissioners.
