Pomona Items.

In the death of Mr. Thomas Trew, of Pomona, Kent county has lost one of her foremost citizens. Mr. Trew was a member of one of the oldest Maryland families and for years one of the farmers who knew how to make farming pay. In his manner he was kind and gentle, always having a good word for everybody. Mr. Trew was a brother of Mrs. James H. Baker and cousin of Mr. Bartus Trew. He was laid to rest on the Trew homestead, Quaker Neck, the home of Mr. Bartus Trew.

During the blow of last Friday, E. Y. O'Meara, the genial agent of the steam boat line, had a narrow escape from death. He had just built a fire in the waiting room in order to do some work on his reports, when he was called out for a moment. In that short space of time, the building was carried out into the river and turned upside down, landing in several feet of water. This is the second narrow escape Mr. O'Meara has had in the last year.

During the blow on Friday Mr. Henry Brown lost a building; several large trees were blown down on the farm of Mr. W. R. Startt, and one on the Mowbray Church lawn.

Among those who have moved are the following: Mr. Theo. Wood, Mr. Leon Brown, Mr. C. W. Anthony, Mr. W. T. Edwards and Mr. Brit Townsend.

It is rumored that two fine homes are to be built in the near future, near Quaker Neck wharf.

Rev. Robert Kirby, of Hickman, Del., was a recent visitor.

Miss Mabel Townsend was a Baltimore visitor during the week.

Miss Flora Kirby has gone to Baltimore for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Ingersoll entertained a party of relatives from New York during the holidays.

Major and Mrs. Cree and family spent the Christmas holidays in Chambersburg, Pa.

Miss Fannie and Mr. Hines Edwards have returned to Baltimore after a visit to their parents.

Mr. James H. Baker is out again after suffering with a heavy cold.

Mr. Randolph Brown has returned to Baltimore after a two weeks lay off on account of sickness.

Among the many fox hunters there are none who ride their mount with more ease and grace than Mr. Robert Ford, the years fall lightly upon his shoulders and he can take a fence or ditch with any of the boys.

Pomona school has 24 scholars attending now. At the present time they are cramped for room.

Mr. Paul Vansant, of the U. S. Navy, returned to his ship after a visit home.

Miss Sadie Shriver met with a very painful accident Sunday night on her way home from church. She made a mis-step and threw her knee cap out of place.

Worton Items.

Considerable damage was done in this neighborhood by the heavy wind of last Friday. Trees uprooted, buildings demolished and the chimney was blown from Union M. E. Church.

Mr. Harry Williams, who has been in a Baltimore hospital for special treatment returned home Thursday. We hope he may soon be restored to health.

Mrs. Carroll Loller is ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Dwyer, near Betterton.

The primary school room was closed here Monday owing to the illness of the teacher, Miss Dunbracco.

Several of Worton's ladies went to Kennedyville to take advantage of the opportunity offered by Rev. Wm. Clews the Presbyterian minister, to give vocal lessons to all those willing to sing in the Presbyterian choir.

A surprise party was given Mrs. Howard Carter at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Rash, Thursday evening. Everybody had a royal good time.

The Ladies' Aid of Union M. E. Church met at the home of Mrs. G. N. Cooper last Thursday afternoon.

The Mite Society of the Presbyterian Church met at Mrs. H. E. Cooper's on Wednesday evening.

Corn Judges.

Wilmington, Del., January 8.—Professor Lyman Carrier, of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station, will judge the corn and small grain at the Delaware State Corn Show at Wilmington January 14-17. He will be assisted by W. O. Collier, a prominent corn breeder and seed corn grower of Easton, Md. These men have judged at many State corn shows.

Arrangements are being completed for a corn banquet to be held on the evening of January 16, during the corn show. The menu will consist of corn dishes and products from corn.

The Department of Agronomy of the Delaware Experiment Station will make an exhibit of varieties of soy beans, showing yields and chemical analyses of many varieties. A considerable display of this crop is expected from the farmers of Delaware.

Prof. C. G. Williams, of the Ohio Experiment Station, who will address the Corn Institute during the Corn Show, is regarded by many to be the leading corn expert of the United States. He is the originator of the ear-to-row methods of testing and breeding corn.

Wilmington, Del., Jan. 7.—R. G. Nicholson, proprietor Little Grove Nurseries, of Chestertown, will attend the combined conventions of the Peninsula Horticultural Society and the Delaware State Corn Show to be held in Wilmington Jan. 14-17. A number of farmers and fruit growers in the country adjacent to Chestertown are expected to be present at these conventions.

Founder of Westsrn Maryland College Dead.—Prof. Fayette R. Buell died at Williamstown, Pa., last week, aged 79 years. Prof. Buell was the founder of Western Maryland College. He went to Westminster from Utica, N. Y., when a young man, and opened a private school. Later he purchased what is now the old hall, which he conducted as a school with the late Rev. Dr. J. T. Ward. A few years later Prof. Buell retired and the school became Western Maryland College with Dr. Ward as its first president.

Leaves His Estate to His Mother.—The will of the late Dr. O. Parker Penning was filed Friday in the Probate Court of Baltimore. It leaves all his property to his mother, Mrs. Alice E. Penning, during her lifetime. At her death the property goes to his sisters, Mrs. Alice Markham Coulbourn and Mrs. Sarah Darlan Goodwin. John I. Coulbourn is appointed executor without bond. Dr. Penning was one of the leading young surgeons of Baltimore city, and had built up a large and lucrative practice.

Dr. Fell Elected Provost.—Dr. Thos. Fell, president of St. John's College, Annapolis, has been unanimously elected provost of the University of Maryland to succeed the late Bernard Carter. This will not cause Dr. Fell to relinquish his duties as president of St. John's College for a year at least. He will devote certain days in the week to his new duties and will have a compet t office force to look after the details of the office.
