Kept His Word.

"I suppose it serves me right," said Uncle Bill Bottletop, "for tryin' to do business with Si Simlin!"

"Si's a slicker, all right," replied Jud Tunkins.

"He is. He told me yesterday mornin' that for $20 he'd leave somethin' with a sure enough kick in it on my back porch. So I gave him the twenty, an' last night I found his mule that he's been tryin' to get rid of for twelve years tied to the kitchen doorknob."

Men Attract Lightning.

Mrs. Flatbush—A curious fact revealed by statisticians is that the number of men struck by lightning is nearly four times that of women.

Mrs. Bensonhurst—That does seem strange when we remember that women are so much more attractive than men.

ONLY ONE HOPE REMAINED

Under the Circumstances, Little Fellow's Suggestion Called for Immediate Adoption.

Members of a boy scout troop were having a knot-tying contest. The boys in each team had a short piece of rope and when the signal was given they had to tie these together, pass on to the leader, who then threw the finished rope out to a boy at a distance, who was to represent a drowning boy.

The signal was given, the boys on both sides hurriedly tied their knots and passed the finished rope to their leaders. Leader of Team 1 had thrown his rope and helped haul in his suffering brother, but leader of Team 2 was not so fortunate. He threw his rope time and again and each time missed his goal.

Then a little fellow far down toward the other end of the team heaved a prodigious sigh.

"No use to throw that rope again," he called out. "He's gone down now for the third time. Better get the pulmotor."

TAKES SOME TIME TO DINE

Meal Taken in Arabian Bazaar Is Something Like a Progressive Game of Cards.

In his book, "War in the Garden of Eden," Kermit Roosevelt gives a picturesque description of restaurant life in the Arabian bazaars: "I wandered off into the bazaar to get something to eat. In native fashion, I first bought a big flap of bread from an old woman, and then to a pickle booth to get some beets, which I wrapped in my bread. Next I proceeded to a meat shop and ordered some lamb kababs roasted. The meat is cut in pellets, spitted on rods six or eight inches long, and laid over the glowing charcoal embers. In the shop there are long tables with benches beside them. The customer spreads his former purchases, and when his kababs are ready he eats his dinner. He next proceeds to a coffee house, where he has a couple of glasses of tea and three or four diminutive cups of coffee to top off, and the meal is finished. The Arab eats sparingly as a rule, but when he gives or attends a banquet, he stuffs himself to his utmost capacity."

Flight of Geese.

When flocks of wild ducks and geese have to go long distances they form a triangle to cleave the air more easily, and the most courageous bird takes position at the forward angle. As this is a very fatiguing post, another bird ere long takes the place of the exhausted leader.

There is no mean work save that which is sordidly selfish.

NEW RECORD IN MEAT INSPECTION

Applying Marks of Inspection on Hog Carcasses—One Phase of Meat Inspection Work Carried on by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The federal system of meat inspection, which is conducted by the bureau of animal industry of the United States department of agriculture, recorded its biggest 12 months in the last fiscal year. The number of animals slaughtered under federal inspection was 20.6 per cent greater than in the preceding fiscal year and 21.6 per cent greater than the average for the last 12 years.

The total number of animals inspected was 70,708,637.

The ante-mortem inspection resulted in the condemnation of 2,588 live animals on account of 18 different diseases and conditions.

Diseases Revealed.

Post-mortem examination revealed 40 different diseases and conditions, resulting in the condemnation of 212,245 carcasses and 603,050 parts of carcasses.

The seven meat inspection laboratories which are a part of the service made more than 60,000 analyses of products. Analyses revealed 306 violations of rules prescribed by bureau.

Employees in the meat inspection service number about 2,500, including veterinary inspectors, experts in sanitation, laboratory inspectors, lay inspectors, clerks, and others.

The number of establishments at which inspection was conducted last year was 895, located in 263 cities and towns.

There were certified for export 3,492,070,795 pounds of meat and meat products.

Meat Imported.

The total amount of meat offered for importation was 179,911,142 pounds, of which, upon inspection, 842,160 pounds were condemned or refused entry.

The inspection of meat for the military and other departments of the government amounted to 288,248,536 pounds, of which nearly 10,000,000 pounds were rejected.

In connection with actual inspection of meats and products, numerous investigations were conducted to develop and improve tests of various kinds and to perfect the system generally.

EARLY HATCHED BIRD BRINGS BEST PRICE

Other Farm Work Sidetracks Hatching Operations.

Early Chicks Are Strongest and Most Vigorous in Flock Because They Are Produced From Eggs Laid While Hens Are Best.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Chickens can be hatched at any time of the year, but it is the chickens hatched early in the spring that give the best results. One reason is that if no special effort is made to hatch early on the farms throughout the country the hatching season coincides too closely with the planting season, and hatching operations are reduced on that account.

Early hatched chicks, as a rule, are the strongest and most vigorous in the flock because they are produced from eggs laid while the hens are in their best breeding condition. After a long period of laying the hens lose something of their vitality and their capacity to transmit vigor to their offspring, and so late-hatched chicks are on the whole decidedly inferior to early hatched ones in vigor and constitution. Because they are thrifty and vigorous the early chicks make quicker and better growth than the late ones. Thrifty chicks get more from a given quantity of food than others. Weak and undersized birds often consume as much feed as the larger and better developed ones, but make no perceptible growth.

The early chicks develop to a stage where they can withstand extreme heat and an attack by the parasites which are more numerous and troublesome in hot weather. The severe heat is apt to check the growth of the late chicks and in their weakened condition they easily become a prey to lice and mites. When the cold, wet weather comes in the fall they are peculiarly susceptible to it and likely to develop colds, while the vigorous early chicks find the coolness stimulating.

When eggs do not hatch well early in the season there is time to find the reason for the poor hatching and to cure it before the season is too far advanced. When late hatching is not successful the crop of poultry is cut short and egg production falls.

Early hatched cockerels are ready for the market when prices are highest. Early hatched pullets mature before cold weather and lay when prices of eggs are highest. Late-hatched chickens are not mature before cold weather sets in and often will not lay until spring.

Feeding Value of Rye.

Rye is not as good a feed for hogs or poultry as corn or barley, while the value of rye hay all depends upon the time the rye was cut and the amount of grain in the hay.

Yield and Quality of Oats.

The yield and quality of the oats crop is largely dependent upon the kind of weather prevailing during the time that the grain is filling.

Can't Sow Too Early.

There is practically no danger of sowing oats too early provided it is properly sown.

Handling Hatching Eggs.

When the farmer buys fine eggs for hatching he should remember they are to be handled with care.

YOUNG HENS ARE PREFERRED

It Seldom Pays to Keep Fowls for Laying After They Are Two and Half Years Old.

There are people who have tried the right variety of fowls, who house and feed them properly, and yet who can not obtain eggs early in the winter because their fowls are too old. It seldom pays to keep hens for laying after they are 2½ years old; not that they will not give a profit, but that younger fowls will give a greater profit, according to the United States department of agriculture. A great many poultrymen who make a specialty of winter egg production keep nothing but pullets, disposing of the 1-year-old hens before it is time to put them in the winter quarters. The champion of the girls' poultry clubs of Mississippi keeps nothing but pullets.

Early hatched pullets, if properly grown, ought to begin laying in October or early November and continue to lay through the winter. Yearling hens seldom begin laying much before January 1 and older hens not until later. It is the November and December eggs that bring the high prices. The laying breeds should begin laying when about from 5 to 6 months old, general-purpose breeds at 6 to 7 months, and the meat breeds at 8 or 9 months.

PREPARING SOIL FOR GARDEN

Almost Any Kind Can Be Used if Proper Handling Is Begun Early Enough in Spring.

Almost any kind of soil, unless it is composed of bricks, mortar, stone, rubbish, etc., can be used for city gardening if proper handling is begun early enough, says the United States department of agriculture. Heavy clay soils may be improved greatly by adding large quantities of strawy manure in the fall or by turning under green-manure crops. It is usually practicable to cover the clay soil with 2 or 3 inches of sifted coal ashes and then thoroughly incorporate the two by spading and hoeing. Sandy soils may be decidedly improved for gardening purposes by growing green-manure crops on the land or by turning under liberal quantities of stable manure.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

High prices are not shy breeders.

* * *

There is no money in starving stock.

* * *

The house for sheep ought not to be entirely closed.

* * *

The livestock on the farm is not complete without the hen.

* * *

Sheep, as well as cattle, may successfully be vaccinated against anthrax, blackleg, and hemorrhagic septicemia.

* * *

Silage makes a cheap ration and in this age of high-priced hay and grain the cost of the ration determines the profit or loss.

* * *

It is neither economical nor wise to starve the idle horse through the winter by giving either too little food or poorly selected feed.

* * *

It is poor economy to feed the poultry on one kind of grain. It is more profitable in every way to give variety, of which corn, wheat and oats should be the leading feeds.

Really Not Her Fault.

Aunty took Elsie to the shoe shop for a pair of shoes. They were out of certain sizes and the child fancied a particular pair. Aunty told her to be sure and get them large enough and was quite provoked the next day when, having worn them for about an hour, Elsie complained of their being too tight and hurting her.

"I just knew those shoes were too small for you!" angrily said aunty.

"They wasn't a bit too small, aunty," defended Elsie, "but I dess my foots growed awful since yesterday!"

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Only Wings.

"How can you expect children to believe in Santa Claus in this practical age," remarked a primary-grade teacher the other day. I said to one of my tots:

Mrs. Bensonhurst—Yes, he did.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.—Adv.
