Bangs Disease Reported in Md.

Figures recently made public by the State Livestock Sanitary Service indicated an estimated 40,000 of the state's 270,000 head of cattle are infected with Bangs disease—source of the human ailment known as undulant fever.

Dr. Marc F. Welsh, chief of the service and State veterinarian, reported the testing work by his organization, aimed at ridding dairy herds of Bangs disease, had covered ten counties and approximately 95,000 head of cattle.

"The work is progressing satisfactorily, although not as rapidly as we would like to see it," Dr. Welsh said. "Our job is complicated by the necessity of convincing the public of the danger in drinking raw milk."

Raw milk, he explained, is the chief source of infection. Properly pasteurized milk is free of the Bangs disease germs and harmless to humans. Infected milk may transmit the undulant fever responsible for illness lasting sometimes as long as three years.

Counties "area tested," where dairy herds have been judged free of the disease, are Anne Arundel, Prince George's Charles, Calvert, St. Mary's, Garrett, Allegany, Somerset, Wicomico and Worcester.

Much of the milk consumed in these counties is raw milk, Dr. Welsh explained. Small farms where farmers and their families have one or two cows from which they obtain table milk still are a potential source of infection, he added

Dr. Welsh estimated Bangs disease directly and indirectly costs dairy farmers $1,000,000 annually in lost income. Infected cattle, he explained, return to their owners from $25 to $50 less a year than normal animals

The testing program of the Sanitary Service involves destruction of all infected cattle found and payment of partial indemnities to the farmer. The rate of infection ranges from five to twenty-six per cent. of a herd in Maryland.—Baltimore Sun.

Chevrolet Takes Big Strides Ahead for 1939

New Aero-stream styled bodies combine with major mechanical improvements to provide new beauty, safety, comfort and operating ease, in the 1939 Chevrolets, presented October 22, and featured at the big auto shows this month. The new models are offered on two chassis, the Master De Luxe and the Master 85, both of which are powered with Chevrolet's famous six-cylinder valve-in-head engine.

A new vacuum gear shift mechanism with steering column control, optional on all models at small extra cost, does 80 per cent of the work of shifting gears. The Master De Luxe series features a new riding system, in which a brand new Chevrolet Knee-Action mechanism is scientifically co-ordinated with new ride stabilizer and double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers to furnish a smooth, soft ride.

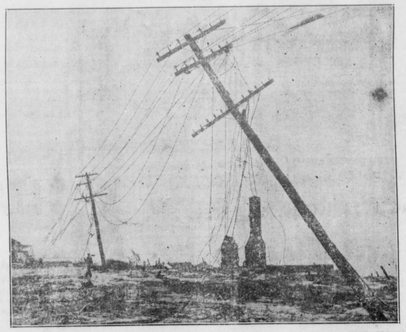
New England Hurricane Worst Disaster In Bell System History

Chesapeake and Potomac Emergency Crews Dispatched to Scene to Aid in Restoration



Scenes of utter desolation and destruction like this one at Hawks Nest Beach, Lyme, Conn., were repeated hundreds of times throughout the storm area. The drooping telephone lines and poles with the remains of a house behind them give some idea of the enormous damage caused by the hurricane.

When wind, rain, flood, hurricane and tidal wave battered New England late in September, the telephone systems in this thickly populated area sustained more damage than the Bell System had ever previously experienced at one time.

Nearly one-half million telephones were thrown out of service, 18,000 of them in New Jersey, 56,000 in New York, 105,000 in Connecticut and 300,000 in the rest of New England. Coupled with the damage to telephones came a corresponding increase in the demand for service from out of town as people sought to locate friends and relatives in the storm zone. Many entire towns and cities were completely cut off, and to others only a few circuits were available to handle the flood of calls.

Emergency crews were rushed into the New England areas from all over the east, south and middle west, including Washington, Maryland and Virginia. Washington sent 13 crews comprising 43 men and 6 trucks, Maryland 19 crews including 83 men and 15 trucks and Virginia 18 crews consisted of 59 men equipped with 14 trucks. Because equipment and construction methods have been standardized in the Bell System these crews worked in New England as effectively as in their home.

Some idea of the damage can be gained from the following list of supplies ordered from the Western Electric Company: 40,000,000 feet of wire, 2,600,000 feet of cable on 1,450 reels, 21,500 telephone poles, 22,800 hand telephone sets, 132,000 pounds of solder, 6,200,000 feet of strand wire, and 2,000,000 pounds of hardware, consisting of 275 different kinds.

Men worked day and night to repair the lines. Operators struggled with 100 per cent increase in calls at many points. Everywhere the spirit of service which is traditional among Bell System employees in times of disaster was manifest.

Help Wipe Out Tuberculosis

At no time of the year should we be more moved to help the less fortunate than during the season between two of our greatest holidays—Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The first holiday we devote to giving thanks for good health and the bountifulness of our country. The latter holiday is a joyous religious celebration which stresses a kindly and charitable attitude toward all.

There are among us today many individuals who have little reason for thankfulness and who are in great need of thoughtfulness from the rest of us. Among these are the people who are afflicted with the great white plague—tuberculosis.

Last year 1,284 Marylanders died of tuberculosis and a great many more are ill with it each year.

By purchasing the little Christmas Seals that are now being sold by the tuberculosis association one can do much to help wipe out this disease and bring health and happiness to these people. Great good will also be done for those of future generations, for many of them, in turn, will be afflicted with the disease if we do not pass on to them a heritage free of tuberculosis.

Celebrate the two great holidays by remembering others who are less fortunate. Use the Seals on all your Christmas letters and packages and help wipe out this needless sickness and loss of life. Tuberculosis can be destroyed.

No Holiday for TB

Every 7½ minutes, one person dies of tuberculosis in the United States. In 1908 this disease took a life every 3½ minutes. Christmas Seals enable tuberculosis associations to help the medical profession to wipe out the disease from this nation.

TALKING AROUND THE WORLD

New York . . . The world's most powerful microscope, which will enlarge a subject 7,000 times, is used by the Bell Telephone Laboratories in New York City.

* * *

Vatican City . . Vatican City has more telephones per person than any other community. The number greatly exceeds the official population of about 700.

* * *

Buenos Aires . . . Nation-wide telephone service in Argentina was inaugurated recently by President Ortiz and the governors of four provinces. The new service was made possible by the completion of an 840-mile telephone line extending through the heart of the most productive region of Argentina. It marks the completion of a 3-year program by the United River Plate Telephone System, whereby its large plant in Buenos Aires and other more populous provinces is interconnected with other Argentine telephone systems, thus providing this flourishing country with telephone facilities adequate to serve rapidly expanding industrial and social needs.

Since 1928 aproximately 700,000 telephones have been interconnected into a continental telephone network through international land lines and through radio telephone stations which also provide the service with the United States and 93 per cent of all the telephones in the world.

* * *

Chicago . . . The origin of "Hello, Central," has been traced back to 1889 when Mark Twain first used the word "Central" as meaning a telephone operator. The word first appeared in his "Connecticut Yankee." In this book he says: "I used to wake and say 'Hello, Central!' just to hear her dear voice."

The credit for the first use of this well-known phrase to Mark Twain is given in the New American English Dictionary being compiled by University of Chicago experts. The dictionary, which traces the origin of words strictly American, is expected to be completed by 1943.

* * *

Bucharest . . . Telephone service in Romania is operated by the Rumanian Telephone Company. The number of instruments in service on December 31, 1937, was 81,205. The estimated number of local calls handled during 1937 was 225,000,000; inter-urban calls totaled 7,125,483 and international calls 270,211. The Rumanian Telephone Company has started work on laying an inter-urban cable between Bucharest and Brasov.

* * *

New York . . . In 1876 there were only 200 telephones in Europe and 376 in the United States. Today there are 19,605,000 in the United States and approximately 39,500,000 in the world.

* * *

Hollywood . . . Telephone usage of movie stars, as reported by newspaper columnists, includes Sophie Tucker booming "Sophie Tucker speaking" when she answers a ring. Basil Rathbone closes all his telephone conversations with "God bless you." Irene Dunne wants a telephone conveniently at hand, so she has nine installed in her home.

* * *

New York . . . About 75 per cent of the telephone calls between New York and transatlantic passengers originate on the ships and are made while the vessels are within the 1,500-mile zone.

* * *

Baltimore . . . Maryland telephone users bear a large share of the cost of government. In 1938 they will pay in local, state and federal taxes, about $2,198,000 or $6,000 per day—15 cents out of every dollar of their telephone bills.

Telephones Play Important Roles In Stage And Radio Presentations

Used To Give Plots Backgrounds, Credibility; "Phony" Numbers Protect Subscribers

More and more the use of the telephone is gaining popularity in the theatre and radio as a means of giving audiences the background of the plot and of giving credibility to the action. The demand has grown in New York City until The New York Telephone Company has established a section devoted to supplying the theatre and radio with "phony" numbers and period telephones.

Hundreds of telephones, dating from the time of its invention by Alexander Graham Bell in 1876, are kept on hand to be loaned free to metropolitan producers.

Of the plays on Broadway "Hooray For What" tops the list with a total of six modern hand sets. "The Star Wagon" uses an old type wall set, and the late lamented "How to Get Tough About It" used a pay booth importantly in one scene. Other shows using telephones are: "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," "Golden Boy," "Susan and God," "The Women," and "Room Service."

Authors frequently call the company to get numbers which sound right but will not bring the wrath of an unsuspecting subscriber down on the company's head when the pranksters in the audience try it on their dials the next day. The telephone company keeps a file of fictitious numbers which have an authentic sound geographically.
