The Old Kitch...

...usings, my though... have
... the hours of my ...idhood
...;
...ens, to the pan... and hall,
... old kitchen w... dearer than
...

...s table, none ...ighter could be,
...roundings w... sacred to me,
...he ceiling, ...e latch on the door,
...very crac... of that old kitchen
...

... the fire place with mouth high
... wide,
...shioned oven that stood by its side,
...ich, each Thanksgiving, came pud-
...gs and pies,
...y bewildered and dazzled our eyes;
A... too, Saint Nicholas, slyly and still,
Came down every Christmas our stockings to fill:
But the dearest memories I'd laid up in store,
Are of the mother that trod that old kitchen floor.

Day in and day out, from morning till night,
Her footsteps were busy, her heart always light,
For it seemed to me then that she knew not a care,
The smile was so gentle her face used to wear;
I remember with pleasure what joy filled our eyes,
When she told us the stories that children so ...prize;
... every night, though we'd
From her lips, at ... wheel, on ...d kitchen floor.

I remember the window, where morning ... run,
As soon as the daybreak to watch for the sun,
And I thought, when my head scarcely reached to the still,
That it kept through the night in the trees on the hill,
And the small track of ground, that my eyes there could view,
Was all of the world that my infancy knew;
Indeed, I cared not to know of it more,
For a world in itself was that old kitchen floor.

To-night those old visions come back to their will,
But the wheel and its music forever are still,
The band is moth-eaten, the wheel laid away,
And the fingers that turned it lie mould'ring in clay,
The hearth-stone, so sacred, is just as 'twas then,
And the voices of children ring out there again,
The sun through the window looks in as of yore,
But it sees stranger feet on the old kitchen floor.

I ask'not for honor; but this I would crave,
That when the lips speaking are closed in the grave,
My children will gather theirs round at their side,
And tell of the mother that long ago died:
'Twould be more enduring, far dearer to me,
Than inscription on marble and granite could be,
To have them tell often, as I did of yore,
Of the mother that trod the old kitchen floor.

Spurgeon's Advice Gratis.

Nobody is more like an honest man than a thorough rogue.

When you see a man with a great deal of religion displayed in his shop window, you may depend upon it he keeps a very small stock of it within.

Do not choose your friend by his looks; handsome shoes often pinch the feet.

Do not be fond of compliments; remember, "Thank you, pussy, and thank you, pussy," killed the cat.

Don't believe the man who talks the most, for mewing cats are very seldom good mousers.

By no means put yourselves in another person's power; if you put your thumb between two grinders, they are very apt to bite.

Drink nothing without seeing it; sign nothing without reading it, and make sure that it means no more than it says.

Don't go to law unless you have nothing to loose; lawyers' houses are built on fools' heads.

Put no dependence on the label of a bag; and count money after your own kind.

In any business never wade into water where you cannot see bottom.

See the sack open before you buy what is in it! for he who trades in the dark asks to be cheated.

Keep clear of a man who does not value his own character.

Beware of a man who swears; he who would blaspheme his Maker, would make no bones of lying or selling.

Beware of no man more than yourself; we carry our worst enemies with us.

If a new opinion or doctrine comes before you, do not bite till you know whether it is bread or a stone; and do not be sure that the gingerbread is good because of the gilt on it.
