Farm and Household.

Borrowing Among Farmers.—To lend unto the needy and give unto him that asketh is both charitable and neighborly, and, when the practice is properly conducted, a great convenience all around, but when it is all one side it becomes another thing entirely. A farmer may supply himself with an outfit of such tools and implements as are necessary to carry on his farm and garden, but to keep them in his possession and in good order is not so easy. One comes to borrow a hoe, rake, or spade, for use in his garden; another wants to borrow a saddle to ride a few miles, another a log chain' swingletree, mattock, etc., until half the things on the place are lent out, and when wanted for use must either be sent for (much the most probable) or the owner do without until it suits the borrower to return them. But the evil does not stop here. Not unfrequently the borrowed article come home broken, and, if of iron or steel, always rusty or dull, even if, after having kept it so long, the borrower does not actually claim it as his own. That neighbors can accommodate each other, and with mutual advantage, there is no doubt provided the practice is properly conducted—there then being, as old Grimshaw would say, 'reciprocity in the business;' but with the advantage all on one side it is a sort of reciprocity not so agreeable on the other. The farmer should first provide himself with the necessary tools to carry on his farm, and if by accident he is compelled to borrow he should at least take good care of and return anything that is lent him the moment he is done with it.

Pork or Bacon.—It is often a question with farmers whether to sell their hogs in the fall as pork, or convert them into bacon, to be reserved for a better market during the year? This will depend, in part, upon the locality of the farmer. As a general rule, if he lives a considerable distance from market, then his chances for profit in baconing his pork are greater, because he not only allows himself more time and opportunity to obtain better prices, but secures a considerable reduction in the first cost of transportation. Most farmers are accustomed to put away pork enough to serve their families the entire year, and in doing so are supposed to secure their meat at less cost than to sell it as pork and buy their bacon. If, therefore, the practice holds good in such case, why should it not hold equally good with all the hogs he has to kill? It is true, the answer to this question is somewhat conditional; but then it may be assumed as generally true that the farmer who bacons his hogs has a much better margin for profit than he who sells his animals in the shape of pork. Again we have known men to make it a business of purchasing pork in the fall for the purpose of converting it into bacon, and make money by the operation. And if these men could afford to pay cash for the article and then make it profitable to convert it into bacon, it does seem to us that a farmer is acting unwisely who would thus surrender a part of his legitimate profits by selling his hogs as pork.

To Dry Corn.—Do no boil, but cut from the cob and heat thoroughly in the oven; then dry it out in the sun.

To bake Potatoes.—To bake potatoes quickly, pour boiling water over them and let stand a minute or so before putting into the oven.

To Set Colors in Blue Cambric.—Dip it into a solution of saltpeter, using two or three cents' worth to a pail of water; salt will injure the fabric.

Making Vinegar.—Mix five quarts of New Orleans molasses and two quarts of liquid yeast. In a few weeks you will have nice, strong vinegar.

Ham Toast.—A nice supper dish: Toast small slices of bread half an inch thick, grate or mince some lean ham, mix it with the yelk of an egg and some cream, season with nutmeg, warm and spread the meat over the toast, brush yelk of egg over the top and brown in a Dutch oven before serving.

Molasses Taffy.—Two cupfuls of molasses, one cupful of sugar, butter the size of a guinea-hen's egg. Boil hard for twenty minutes. Add half a teaspoonful of soda. Try if it is brittle; if not, boil a few minutes longer. Pour out into two buttered dishes. Nuts may be added, if you like, just before the soda.

Pickled Eggs.—Boil the eggs fifteen minutes, then put them in cold water to make the shells come off easily. Boil three red beats very soft, peel and mash fine. Put this into vinegar enough to cover the eggs, adding salt, pepper and whole cloves. Put the eggs in a jar and pour the mixture over them. Serve them in cut halves.

To Prepare Cocoanut for Cake.—One cocoanut grated, one-half cup of sugar, two eggs, and the rind and juice of one lemon. Put the ingredients together and cook till the eggs thicken, stirring all the time. Spread this between any delicate cake that has been baked in jelly cake pans. Save one-fourth of the cocoanut for the top.

Sweet Potato Pone.—Take four large sweet potatoes, peel and grate them, then add two cups of water and milk, a lump of butter the size of an egg, melted, three eggs well beaten, a teaspoonful each of allspice and cinnamon, one and a half teaspoonfuls of ginger and a half a nutmeg, grated; mix all the ingredients well, butter a pudding-pan, pour in your pone and bake in a moderate oven.

Squash Pie.—Stew the squash as usual with a little salt; rub it through a colander and have it perfectly smooth; mix the squash with sweet milk; if you have cream it will be better; make it about as thick as batter, adding the yelks of two eggs; sweeten with pulverized sugar to taste; flavor with rose-water or with nutmeg; line a pie-dish; fill with squash, and bake for half an hour; if you do not want a pie make fritters, and fry brown with good butter; when about to serve, sprinkle a little sugar on them; squash does not require much sweetening.

RECOLLECTIONS OF "LALLA ROOKH."

When we were farm-boys, years ago,
I dare not tel' how many,
When, strange to say, the fairest day
Was often dark and rainy;

No work, no school, no weeds to pull,
No picking up potatoes,
No copy-page to fill with blots,
With little o's or great O's;

But jokes and stories in the barn
Made quiet fun and frolic;
Draughts, fox-and-geese, and games like these,
Quite simple and bucolic;

Naught else to do, but just to braid
A lash, or sing and whistle,
Or go, perhaps, and set our traps,
If it "held up" a little;

On one of those fine days, for which
We boys were always wishing,
Too wet to sow, or plant, or hoe,
Just right to go a-fishing,—

I found, not what I went to seek,
In the old farmhouse gable,—
Nor line, nor hook, but just a book
That lay there on the table,

Beside my sister's candlestick
(The wick burned to the socket)—
A handy book to take to bed,
Or carry in one's pocket.

I tipped the dainty cover back,
With little thought of finding
Anything half so bright within
The red morocco binding;

And let by chance my careless glance
Range over song and story;
When from between the magic leaves
There streamed a sudden glory,—

As from a store of sunlit gems,
Pellucid and prismatic,
That edged with gleams the rough old beams,
And filled the raftered attic.

I stopped to read; I took no heed
Of time or place, or whether
The window-pane was streaked with rain,
Or bright with clearing weather.

Of chore-time or of supper-time
I had no thought or feeling;
If calves were bleating to be fed,
Or hungry pigs were squealing.

The tangled web of tale and rhyme,
Enraptured, I unravelled;
By caravan, through Hindostan,
Toward gay Cashmere, I traveled.

Before the gate of Paradise
I pleaded with the Peri,
And even of queer old Pahladeen
I somehow did not weary,

Until a voice called out below—
"Come boys! the rain is over!
It's time to bring the cattle home!
The lambs are in the clover!"

My dream took flight—but day or night,
It came again, and lingered.
I kept the treasure in my coat,
And many a time I fingered

Its golden leaves among the sheaves
In the long harvest nooning—
Or in my room, till fell the gloom,
And low boughs let the moon in.

About me beamed another world,
Refulgent, Oriental;
Life all aglow with poetry,
Or sweetly sentimental.

My hands were filled with common tasks,
My head with rare romances,
My old straw hat was bursting out
With light locks and bright fancies.

In field or wood, my thoughts threw off
The old prosaic trammels;
The sheep were grazing antelopes,
The cows a train of camels.

Under the shady apple-boughs,
The book was my companion—
And while I read, the orchard spread
One mighty branching banyan.

To mango trees or almond groves
Were changed the plums and quinces,
I was the poet, Feramorz,
And had, of course, my Princess.

The well-curb was her canopied,
Rich palanquin—at twilight,
'Twas her pavilion overhead,
And not my garret skylight.

Ah, Lalla Rookh! O charmed book,
First love, in manhood slighted!
To-day we rarely turn the page
In which our youth delighted.

Moore stands upon our shelves to-day,
I fear a trifle dusty;
With Scott, beneath a cobweb wreath,
And Byron, somewhat musty.

But though his Orient cloth-of-gold
Is hardly now the fashion,
His tender melodies will live
While human hearts have passion.

The centuries roll; but he has left,
Beside the ceaseless river,
Some flowers of rhyme untouched by Time,
And songs that sing forever.

—J. T. TROWBRIDGE.

Ask the Old Woman.

A gentleman, traveling out West, relates the following:

Riding on horseback, just at night, through the woods in Signor county, Michigan, I came into a clearing, in the middle of which stood a log house, its owner sitting in the open door, smoking his pipe. Stopping my horse before him, the following conversation ensued:

"Good evening, sir," said I.

"Good evening."

"Can I get a glass of milk of you to drink."

"Well, I don't know. Ask the old woman."

By this time his wife was standing by his side.

"Oh, yes," she said, "of course you can"

While drinking it, I asked:

"Do you think we are going to have a storm?"

"Well, I really don't know. Ask the old woman—she can tell."

"I guess we shall get one right away," said the wife.

Again I asked:

"How much land have you got cleared here?"

"Well, I really don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows."

"About nineteen acres," she replied.

Just then a troop of children came running and shouting around the corner of the shanty.

"All of these your children?" said I.

"Don't know. Ask the old woman—she knows."

I did not wait to hear her reply, but drew up the reins and left immediately.

☞ A skeptical young collegian confronted an old Quaker with the statement that he did not believe in the Bible. The Quaker said:

"Does thee believe in France?"

"Yes; for though I have not seen it I have seen others that have; besides, there is plenty of corroborative proof that such a country does exist."

"Then thee will not believe in anything thee or others have not seen?"

"No; to be sure I won't?"

"Did thee ever see thine own brains?"

"No."

"Ever see anybody that did?"

"No."

"Does thee believe thee has any?"

The young man left.

JUST SO.—And now the returned city people write to their country cousins, with whom they have been staying, that they arrived safely, but found the city infected with smallpox, which is likely to last all winter.

HEADACHE NEURALGIA PILLS

"DR. C. W. BENSON, a practicing physician, at 106 N. Eutaw St., Baltimore, Md. (who has paid much attention to nervous diseases,) has discovered that Extract of Celery and Chamomile combined in a certain proportion invariably cures either bilious, dyspeptic, nervous or sick headache, neuralgia and nervousness. This is a triumph in medical chemistry, and sufferers all over the country are ordering by mail. He prepares it in pills, at 50c. per box. The doctor is largely known and highly respected in Baltimore."—Epis. Meth.

BALTIMORE, July 27, '72

Dr. C. W. Benson's Celery and Chamomile Pills have cured my wife of sick and nervous headache often years' standing; she had it every week or ten days, and suffered almost everything but death with it. We think these pills worth their weight in gold.

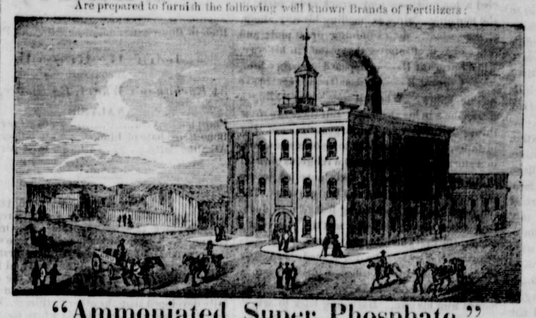
THE MARYLAND Fertilizing & Manufacturing Co.,

Are prepared to furnish the following well known Brands of Fertilizers:



"Ammoniated Super Phosphate."

A Complete Manure for ALL CROPS, adapted to Lands that require a full development of the Crop, both Straw and Grain.

"Alkaline Super Phosphate."

An article very rich in SOLUBLE PHOSPHATE OF LIME and the ALKALIES.

"Dissolved Phosphate."

A High Grade SUPER PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

The ALKALINE and DISSOLVED PHOSPHATES have special reference to the growth and developement of the Grain, and are intended for lands that produce a sufficient growth of Straw, but small crops of Grain. They have been used for several years by some of the best farmers of Maryland and Virginia, alongside the highest grades Ammoniated Phosphates, and in some sections have almost superceded them.

The Fine Mechanical condition of our FERTILIZERS is such, that they Drill readily, and we recommend the use of the Drill as being the most profitable way of applying Fertilizers

We refer to the following persons who used the above goods last season:

J. Henry porter, Sam'l Coppage, Noble Pennington, S. W. Aldridge, Geo. S. Biddle, Levi Fiddis, Garrett Foxwell, Wm. A Wood, and others.

Attention, farmers!

The undersigned PIONEER in the manufacture of FERTILIZERS in this city, and engaged, since 1858, first as a member of the firm of J. J. & F. TURNER, by whom the formulas and processes of manufacture of

'Excelsior' and 'Ammoniated Phosphate,'

Were originated, and since 1864 a member of the late firm of J. J. TURNER & CO., (dissoved 19th March, 1878,) relying upon his experience and personal reputation, hitherto acquired in the uniform excellence of those Fertilizers as manufactured by him, offers them in his own name to the agricultural public.

Having secured the Works of the old firm, 111 McElderry's Wharf, with the complete machinery, specially constructed for their uniform manipulation, he will continue the manufacture of

Excelsior & Ammoniated Phosphate

On his own account, with his office adjoining the works, where he will be pleased to see his friends and patrons, assuring them that the Fertilizers manufactured by him shall be of the same uniform and high standard quality as sold by the old firms since their introduction.

J. Q. A. HOLLOWAY,

ORIGINATOR AND MANUFACTURER OF

The above are the most concentrated FERTILIZERS ever offered to the Farmer—combining all the stimulating qualities of Peruvian Guano and the ever durable fertilizing properties of Bones, in fine, dry powder, prepared expressly for drilling in with the Grain—and it is the universal opinion of the Farmers of Maryland and Virginia, after over twenty years' experience in the use of the "EXCELSIOR," manufactured by me that an application of 100 pounds is equal in its effects to 200 pounds of any other Fertilizer or Guano, therefore fully 50 per cent. cheaper.

With my present advantages and superior facilities for manufacturing, I challenge competition with any Fertilizer sold in the United States in Quality, Mechanical Condition and Price.

By strictly adhering to my Original Formulas, using only the most concentrated materials, and and superintending in person their manufacture—as for the past twenty years—

UNIFORM QU AITY IS GUARANTEED.

Farmers to secure the ONLY GENUINE EXCELSIOR AND PHOSPHATE prepared according to my original formulas established in 1858, should see that every bag is branded as above, with the Analysis and my name in Red Letters.

A Talk With Fruit Growers.

I HAVE now growing, on my farm, a fine seedling Peach Nursery, (from the seed o the Smock,) of over 200,000 trees.

Being from Smock seed, and growing on land that never grew trees before, they must prove especially hardy and prolific.

I shall bud 50,000 (commencing June 15th) for this Fall's planting; such trees will run from 3 to 4 feet in height.

I shall bud the balance in August, for planting the following fall. As must all planters have preference for special varieties, I propose to take orders, before the budding is done, customers furnishing their own buds if they prefer; so that all may be accommodated. Do not fail to give this matter proper consideration, and send in your orders early. By so doing you can secure just the varieties you want; but i delayed till you are ready to plant, nurserymen may not have the kinds you prefer. I will give instructions how to forward buds, upon inquiry.

I HAVE A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF ALL KINDS OF NURSERY STOCK.

Twenty years' experience as an extensive Fruit Grower and Nurseryman, certainly entitles me to a reasonable share of patronage on this peninsula.
