Eastern Shore Booming

Never in the history of Kent Co. has there been such a boom in real estate as that which is now going on here. And the same condition is going on down the whole shore, we understand. Whittier, the great New England poet, during the Civil War time, gave Frederick County a world fame as "the Garden of the Lord." But the Eastern Shore has never relinquished claim about being the real, original Garden of Eden of America, and the people of other communities and states have come to the same realization and buying an estate on the Shore seems to be the spreading idea of the northern "rich folks." There is scarcely a county on the Eastern side of Chesapeake where tracts of land have not been purchased in the last few months.

The Eastern Shore of Maryland is probably the most healthful and best watered section of the country. Every county on the Shore has a water front except Caroline, while that county is traversed by many prongs of rivers. As to the bay front counties, they are land regions involved in a wonderful and charming way with an intricate scheme of winding twisting creeks, rivers and tidal armlets. People who have a longing for paradiscal gardens can find them on the Eastern Shore—and especially in Kent county.
