Note. This land finally became incorporated with the tract which it surrounded, in Consequence of the same man becoming the purchaser of both tracts. It has, of late years, (as will be shown hereafter) been subdivided into several parts belonging to several Owners, and hence the multitudinous array of the above courses has become next to useless. To the neighbouring landholders however, this patent is of much importance, the 57th course reaches the 9th course of "The Enclosure" 2 p^s. from its beginning, and the several following courses of the above correspond (excepting a few probable errors) with as many courses of "The Enclosure. Then, inasmuch as "The Enclosure" binds upon "John's Fortune" as already shown, it is evident that by locating the above land, we lay down and show the means of locating the others also. The Beginning boundary of the above tract is well known, and is the only original boundary in that immediate neighbourhood.
