Farm and Household.

CHURN SLOWLY.

A little maid in the morning sun
Stood merrily singing and churning—
"Oh, how I wish the butter was done,
Then off to the field I'd be turning!"
So she hurried the dasher up and down
Till the farmer called with a half-made frown,
"Churn slowly!

"Don't ply the dasher so fast, my dear:
It's not so good for the butter,
And will make your arms ache, too, I fear
And put you all in a flutter;
For this is a rule, wherever we turn,
Don't be in haste whenever you churn—
Churn slowly!

"If you'd see your butter come nice and sweet,
Don't churn with nervous jerking;
But ply the dasher slowly and neat—
You'll hardly know what you're working;
And when the butter has come you'll say,
'Yes, this is surely the very best way'—
Churn slowly!"

Now, little folks, do you think that you
A lesson can find in butter?
Don't be in haste, whatever you do,
Or get yourself in a flutter;
And while you stand at life's great churn,
Let the farmer's words to you return—
"Churn slowly!"

POULTRY.

Common sense is too often uncommon sense, and there is more truth than novelty in this sentiment in its application to poultry keeping. It is not my intention to criticise nonsensical ways, but to show ways sensible. The "poultry" that everybody keeps are technically designated "Fowls" or "Barn-door Fowls." As a rule they are kept in small flocks, fed chiefly upon what no farmer misses. On most farms a flock of 12 to 40 hens will pick up a living without receiving a particle of grain from May to October, including both months. Their food consists of insects, seeds, and grass or weeds; they need fresh water besides. What wonder is it that fowls thus kept are demonstrably more profitable than any class of stock, or any crop on the farm. This is the best way to keep fowls, provided they can be induced to lay where their eggs can be found while fresh. To accomplish this a house of some kind is needed where the fowls may be shut up in occasionally for a few days at a time, so as to make them roost and lay in convenient places. If fowls can roost in the trees, lay all over the farm, and "dust" themselves in the road, they will almost surely be healthy, lay a great many eggs, and keep in good condition. Besides every now and then a hen will unexpectedly appear with a brood of ten or a dozen chicks hatched under some brush where she had "stolen" her nest and done her hatching. That is all very well so far as the hen is concerned, but no one wants it to happen. We wish the hens to lay and set where we can put what eggs we please under them for hatching—and what is still more important, we wish to be able to collect the eggs for use or for sale daily. A fresh egg is a joy, a delight, a good gift of heaven—a "perfectly good" egg is an abomination. An egg, to be fit to eat, or for sale, must be fresh beyond a peradventure, and utterly untainted with a suspicion of having been brooded or weathered. For this reason it is a most untidy thing to use natural nest-eggs. The nest-egg, after a while, is almost surely gathered, and of course is not "right."

PRESERVING EGGS.—Numenous correspondents have asked if there is not some method of preserving eggs for an indefinite length of time, so that they cannot be told from fresh eggs, without the use of lime. So far as we are aware, there is no method practicable, on a commercial scale, other than the use of lime-wash. For home use several plans have been tried with more or less success. To preserve eggs the pores of the shell must be stopped up, for two reasons: to prevent the entrance of the air, and consequent spoiling of contents, and to prevent the evaporation of the moisture of the egg and a drying up of the contents. Placing the egg in a net or basket, and plunging them for a few seconds in boiling water, long enough to cook or solidify a thin film of the white next to the shell, is successfully practised in some families, but it would spoil the eggs for sale. Closing the pores by smearing the shell with lard, suet, or linseed oil, has been tried with more or less success. Many years ago a patent was taken out for the use of shellac varnish for the same purpose. The care required in the use of varnish, as each egg must be treated separately, and as a slight uncovered space would allow the egg to spoil, besides the discoloration, prevented this from coming into use. If any one can suggest any method better for commercial purposes than the lime-wash, we should be glad to have it.—American Agriculturist for January.

COLD FEET.—Good health is never attainable if the feet are habitually cold, since this implies an impaired circulation of the blood; that it does not reach the extremities. Instead of "toasting them in the oven," soak them in warm water until thoroughly warm, and then dash cool or warm water over them, rubbing them thoroughly with a crash towel, till a reaction occurs; using the flesh brush freely. This, followed for a few nights, will generally warm the feet by improving the circulation of the blood. The brush used on the whole body, is not only safe—safer than the cold bath, at least for the weakly—but will aid in equalizing the circulation. Let the feet, also, be put into warm rays of the sun; the clothing warmed and thoroughly sunned. This will do much to improve cold and sweaty feet, and can do no possible harm. Keep the feet clean, which can only be done by frequent washing.

SOME time ago a bull on the farm of Henry Schmidt, near Eltingville, became so vicious that a ring was placed in his nose. On several occasions since the animal has rushed into a deep pond of water and laid down. Each time, after much difficulty, the animal was driven out of the pond. Yesterday morning the dead carcass of the bull was found in the pond. The animal had apparently committed suicide.—New York Tribune.

THE best rule for married happiness is for man and wife to overlook each other's faults.

He Used to be a Boy Himself.

From the Little Rock Gazette.

The other day a show came to Little Rock and was shamefully imposed upon by Uncle Isom. While standing near the tent he saw a crowd of low-spirited boys grieving on account of financial depression.

"Does yer youngsters wanter go to der show?" he asked.

The boys responded in noisy chorus. "Well, come on, den. I uster be a chile myself, an' unlike de mos' of men, I hain't forgot it. Count dese boys," he added, addressing the doorkeeper. The man began counting, and by the time the boys had passed in Isom was walking around talking to his acquaintances from the plantations.

"Here," said the showman, "give me twenty tickets."

"What for? Does yer think me a lottery agent."

"You passed in twenty boys, and I want the tickets or the money."

"I doan owe yer no tickets, and I doan owe yer no money. I didn't tell yer ter pass de boys in. I said count 'em. I'se always heard that showmen is good on rithmatic, an' I wanted ter satisfy myself. Yer say dat dar was twenty boys. I doan' spute yer word, case I ain't no mathertician. Sposen I take a lot ob boys ter de cashier ob a bank an' axes him ter count 'em, does dat signify dat the cashier is gwine ter pass 'em into de money room? No, sah. Go back to yer tent; I sees a crowd goin' in."

The showman, remembering that he had left the entrance unguarded, turned, and Isom walked away.

THE activity displayed in the building of railroads in the Far West is one of the most remarkable features of the present era of national prosperity. In a short time there will be five through routes to the Pacific, where a few months ago there was only one. These will be the Northern Pacific Railroad, the Union Pacific, with its extension now building to Baker City, Oregon, the Central Pacific, with a new Eastern outlet by way of the Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, the Atlantic and Pacific, now pushing rapidly westward, and the Texas & Southern Pacific, already finished.

MR. BLAINE GONE.—Mr. Blaine on leaving the State Department found himself a private citizen for the first time since he began his political career as a member of the Maine Legislature in 1859. Whatever may be his present desire for quiet and rest, it is scarcely probable that, with his active temperament, his natural qualities of leadership, and his strong hold upon the confidence and affection of the best elements of the Republican party, he will remain in retirement. He has not yet passed his fifty-second birthday, and must be accounted as still in the prime of life. With his good health and good habits he may be expected to continue to play an important part in American politics for twenty years to come.

WHAT an American merchant marine would mean is indicated by Mr. Lorillard's project to build steamers which will cross the Atlantic in six days. It is declared that the project will be carried out. A basin, to be surrounded by docks, has been selected near Fort Schuyler, and passengers from New York will be taken to and fro by sail. When American vessels competed for the carrying trade of the ocean they excelled in speed. The Collins steamers beat the Cunarders. Now an American line that will make express speed is the newest idea.

A CONGREGATION of ladies at a gathering last week heard, with bated breath, that over President Arthur's bed, in the White House, is thrown a sky-blue silk quilt, lined with rose color and wadded with eider down. On the blue silk around the edges human figures in groups are traced in colored embroidered silk, and, with exquisite suggestion of one of the felicities of a President's life, some of the figures are shaking hands.

A FAMOUS scientist says there is often a marked personal resemblance between husband and wife after they have been married awhile. We have noticed that fact. Sometime ago a gallant Philadelphia man, whose eyes were blue, married a jealous black-eyed woman and in less than a year he had black eyes himself.

WHEN a man calls you a liar and you know you are not one nothing need be done, as time will prove that the other fellow is a fool or a knave. But if you really have lied you may preserve your reputation for veracity an hour by knocking him down.

Rheumatism

Neuralgia, Sprains,
Pain in the Back and Side.

There is nothing more painful than these diseases; but the pain can be removed and the disease cured by use of Perry Davis' Pain Killer.

This remedy is not a cheap Benzine or Petroleum product that must be kept away from fire or heat to avoid danger of explosion, nor is it an untried experiment that may do more harm than good.

Pain Killer has been in constant use for forty years, and the universal testimony from all parts of the world is, It never fails. It not only effects a permanent cure, but it relieves pain almost instantaneously. Being a purely vegetable remedy, it is safe in the hands of the most inexperienced.

The record of cures by the use of PAIN KILLER would fill volumes. The following extracts from letters received show what those who have tried it think:

Edgar Cady, Owatonna, Minn., says: About a year since my wife became subject to severe suffering from rheumatism. Our resort was to the PAIN KILLER, which speedily relieved her.

Charles Powell writes from the Sailors' Home, London: I had been afflicted three years with neuralgia and violent spasms of the stomach. The doctors at Westminster Hospital gave up my case in despair. I tried your PAIN KILLER, and it gave me immediate relief. I have regained my strength, and am now able to follow my usual occupation.

G. H. Walworth, Saco, Me., writes: I experienced immediate relief from pain in the side by the use of your PAIN KILLER.

E. York says: I have used your PAIN KILLER for rheumatism, and have received great benefit.

Barton Seaman says: Have used PAIN KILLER for thirty years, and have found it a never failing remedy for rheumatism and lameness.

Mr. Burditt writes: It never fails to give relief in cases of rheumatism.

Phil. Gilbert, Somerset, Pa., writes: From actual use, I know your PAIN KILLER is the best medicine I can get.

All druggists keep PAIN KILLER. Its price is so low that it is within the reach of all, and it will save many times its cost in doctors bills. 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

THE Philadelphia
TIMES

Now stands confessedly at the head of Philadelphia journalism in all that makes a thoroughly complete, general and family newspaper. It is more complete in its news, in its special correspondence, in its varied contributions on all subjects of popular interest, and in all the qualities of a newspaper for the family circle and for the business man than any of its contemporaries, because its facilities and resources are equal to every want of a first-class national journal.

"The Weekly Times" has nearly doubled its former large circulation during the year. Its contributors from week to week are among the foremost men of the nation, and no department of news or literature is slighted in any number on any pretext. It is adapted as well to women as to men; hence, although its political intelligence is full and accurate and its political editorials free and fearless, liberal provision is made for literary, dramatic and musical matters, travels and adventure, fiction, poetry, fashions and the chronicle of current social events. In all these departments the pens of the best writers are engaged, while selections from other journals are made with care, taste and fullness that are unsurpassed.

The "Annals of the War" embracing chapters of unwritten history contributed by prominent actors in the war of the rebellion, are a valuable feature of the paper and have become a recognized depository of such matters, whether from Northern or Southern sources. This department, as well as all others, will be kept fully up to the high standard of former years.
