WIT, HUMOR AND WISDOM.

To John L. Sullivan.

Oh, J. Sullivan! Oh, J. L. Sullivan!
Oh, John Lycurgus Sullivan, all hail!!
Thou bottomless infinitude! Thou god! Thou you!
Thou Zeus with all-compelling hand!
Thou glory of the mighty Occident! Thou Heaven-born!
Thou Athens-bred! Thou light of the Aeropolis! Thou son of a gambolier!
59 inches art thou round thy ribs; twice twain knuckles hast thou; and again twice twain.
Thou scatterest men's teeth like antelopes at play.
Thou straightenest thine arm, and systems rock, and eyeballs change their hue.
Oh, thou grim granulator! Thou soul-remover! Thou lightsome, coy excoriator!
Thou cooing dove! Thou droll, droll John!
Thou buster!
Oh, you! Oh, me, too! Oh, me some more!
Oh, thunder!!!

—Life (After Walt Whitman.)

A Texas owl mistook a sleeping man's head for a chicken, and fastened its claws into his hair and scalp.

'Well! What's the matter now, old woman?' said the assailed, as he awoke.—Jersey City Journal.

Brides, as a rule, find it a new and rather unpleasant sensation to accept money from their husbands immediately after marriage. But an all-wise Providence provides for such matters, and in the course of time this feeling gradually wears away.—Philadelphia Call.

The following occurs in a recently published biography:

'Chatting with one of her neighbors, not long since, she related her experience when converted, many years ago, as follows: 'I used to be very gay and fond of the world and all its fashions, till the Lord showed me my folly. I liked silks and ribbons and laces and feathers; but I found they were dragging me down to hell—so I gave them all to my sister.

'An' they tell me that you've got a glass eye,' said an old woman to an acquaintance whom she had not seen for some time.

'Yes, got a glass eye.'

'Can you see outen it?'

'Oh, no.'

'Why, it looks like you oughter see through it, the glass is so clear. Why don't you get one so transpert that you can see through it?'—Arkansaw Traveler.

DECLINE OF MAN.—Nervous Weakness, Dyspepsia, Impotence, Sexual Debility, cured by "Wells' Health Renewer." $1

An Ohio man who had visited Gotham and got many new ideas, returned home and remarked most of his goods, so that he could say the price of this and that was so much, with so much off. Every thing seemed to work pretty well for a week or so, when one of the clerks said he needed a little more posting.

'For instance,' he exclaimed, 'we are giving twenty off on all woolenware.'

'Yes.'

'And pails are twenty cents apiece?'

'Yes.'

'Then every time a man wants a pail he gets it for nothing, and if he takes two I give him twenty cents?'

'James, are you a born fool?' demanded the merchant.

'No, sir!' was the prompt reply. 'I've got rid of the eight dozen pails we had stored upstairs in less than a week, and have promised five dozen more. If you have a clerk who pleases customers more than I do trot him out.'—Wall Street News.

BE CAREFUL!—The genuine 'Rough on Corns' is made only by E. S. Wells (Proprietor of 'Rough on Rats'), and has laughing face of a man on labels. 15c. and 25c. bottles.

It is said that while James Keene, generally referred to by the boys as Jim Keene, was a resident of the Pacific coast, a California farmer burst in upon him one day with:

'Say, Kurnel, my wife has got a bran-new baby, and we've named it Jim Keene Thompson.'

'Y-e-s,' slowly answered the gentleman, as he passed over a twenty-dollar gold piece.

In about an hour another man from the same neighborhood entered with the salutation:

'Say, Keene, what do you think? We have built a church up our way and named it the Jim Keene chapel. Can't you come down with a shiner or two?'

'Well, I suppose I'll have to,' replied Keene, as he shelled out a ten-dollar piece.

Thirty minutes had hardly passed when in came a third man with:

'Good morning, judge. We are building a schoolhouse over the creek to be called Jim Keene school. Want to contribute a few?'

'Y-e-s,' was the reply, as a five was passed out.

It wasn't over twenty minutes before a fourth man bustled in and called out:

'Keene, I discovered a new canon up the country the other day, and I dedicated it to you.'

'Look here,' said the gentleman, as he turned in his chair; 'I want you to go back and hunt up all the new babies, schoolhouses, trotting horses, canons, lunatic asylums, burying grounds and berry-patches in your county which are to be Jim Keened, and come back here and give me the lot at wholesale, for I'm blamed if I'm going to fool with the retail business any longer. Good-day, sir!'—Wall Street News.

LOOK OUT FOR FRAUDS!—The genuine 'Rough on Corns' is made only by E. S. Wells, (Proprietor of 'Rough on Rats'), and has laughing face of man on labels. 15c. and 25c. bottles.

A Detroit lawyer who had business in one of the northern counties a short time since put in a night at a farm-house. It was a long structure containing two rooms, and such furniture as pioneers get along with. The family consisted of an old man, his wife and a girl of twenty, who was slashing around barefooted and had a fist like a slugger. After supper the old woman took a seat in front of the lawyer and suddenly asked:

'Do you wear sich fine duds all the time?'

'All the time, madame.'

'Is that a real diamond in your shirt?'

'It is.'

'And I heard you tell the old man you had a horse and buggy at home.'

'Yes, ma'am.'

'And that watch and chain are real gold, I suppose?'

'Yes, the real stuff.'

'Cost as much as $200?'

'Yes, over $300.'

'My stars! Why, you must get as much as $40 a month and board!' she gasped.

'Madame, I sometimes make $50 per day!' he placidly replied.

'Shoo! Why, you are worth a thousand dollars!'

'Yes, ten times that.'

'Stars and stars!'

There was an interval of silence as she recovered from her amazement. Then she tiptoed to the corner of the house to see if there were any eavesdroppers. Coming back she walked up to the lawyer and dropped her voice to a whisper and said:

'Say! We've bin saving Sally these last two years for the boss of a saw-mill four miles up the creek, but if you are struck on her and she is struck on you, I'll run the old man six miles through the brush after a preacher to do the splicing!'

The lawyer had to decline on the grounds of having a wife in Detroit, and the old woman felt so bad that the husband had to rise at midnight and make her a mustard plaster.—Detroit Free Press.

FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS

IF all the Johns in America were to meet in one field, that field would have to be pretty large to hold them. And of all the Johns in the field, it would be doubtful whether any could surpass in shrewdness a certain little Johnny, whose home is in Boston. Last month, the family of which Johnny is a member was living at a country home near the city. One evening, just as a company had sat down at the tea-table, the astounding news was brought in that the cream and berries had disappeared. Now the cream and berries formed an important part of the meal, which, without them, threatened to be distressingly scant. The guests said nothing, and the lady of the house was disposed to pass the matter over until she discovered also that there was no milk.

'It must have been the cat,' said a domestic, who was standing, with her arms akimbo, behind the lady's chair.

'Johnny,' said the head of the household, 'do you think the cat drank the milk and cream and ate the berries?'

Johnny hung his head.

'Johnny is not very well,' remarked his mother, by way of apology.

'Oh! he's been sick, has he?' said the father. 'More evidence. Johnny, did you drink that milk?'

'Y—yes, I did,' the culprit replied, screwing a tear out of his eye with his knuckle.

'And why did you do it?' continued the father, growing harsh in spite of the smiles of the guests.

'Cause,' said Johnny, blubbering, 'I saw a big cloud comin' up and thought 'twas going to be a thunder-storm.'

'Well, what's that got to do with it?'

'Well, I—I—I knowed, 'cause my philosophy book says so, that thunder soured milk, and 'twouldn't be good for nothin'. So I pitched in and drank it up, and the cream, too; and—and the berries, too, just to save them from wastin'—boo-hoo!'

THE miners in the vicinity of Ketchum, in the Wood River region, Idaho, were amused not long ago at an occurrence in their midst.—While several men were chopping logs on a mountain-side, a brown bear leisurely stalked upon the scene. All the loggers ran except one man, who was deaf and did not hear the shouts of his comrades. The bear walked slowly toward the deaf woodman, and, when within three feet of the unsuspecting chopper, stood up on his hind legs. Then it was that the man looked up from his work. He says that as long as he lives he never shall forget the sensation at that moment. He dropped his axe and leaped into the branches of the nearest tree. The bear did not attempt to climb the tree, but took up his quarters at the roots. Resting his head on a paw, the bear kept an eye turned upward all the time. The deaf logger made himself as comfortable as possible under the circumstances and bided his time. He remained in the tree for nearly three hours, when his comrades, ashamed of their long desertion, approached and began to shoot at the bear, which fled after a few shots had been fired. Then the deaf man came down, and the loggers went to work again.

HOLD on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie or speak harshly, or use an improper word.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to punch, strike, scratch or steal, or do any improper act.

Hold on to your foot when you are on the point of kicking, running off from study, or pursuing the path of error, shame or crime.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited or imposed upon, or others are angry with you.

Hold on to your heart when evil associates seek your company and invite you to join in their mirth, games and revelry.

Hold on to your good name, for it is of more value than gold, high places or fashionable attire.

Hold on to the truth, for it will serve you well, and do you good throughout eternity.

Hold on to your virtue; it is above all price to you in all time and places.

Hold on to your good character, for it is and ever will be your best wealth.

IT is sometimes quite puzzling for very little folks to understand what a railway tunnel is. The other day, a little girl, who was traveling in Maine, passed through one of the underground ways and she was much alarmed at the darkness into which she had suddenly been plunged.

'Oh, dear! where are we going?' she whispered, as she closely clasped her mother's hand.

'We are going through a tunnel,' replied the mother. 'There is no danger.'

As suddenly as they had dived into the gloom they emerged into the sunlight again, when the child asked:

'Mamma, what is a tunnel?'

'It is a hole in the ground,' said the mother.

The child looked out at the car-window, with great surprise, and said:

'Then this is the bottom of the world!'

She evidently thought that she had passed through the world and was in China.

AT Perranporth, in Cornwall, England, recently, the driver of a wagonette party wandering on the beach found his retreat cut off by the tide. He tried to climb the cliffs; but when halfway up he found progress impossible, and descent probably fatal. The ledge on which he rested would only give space for one foot, and the ground above, to which he clung, was loose and crumbling. The poor fellow endured the suspense for some hours, when the visitors at the top of the cliff caught sight of him. The news spread, and a crowd soon gathered. A coast guardsman volunteered to go down to the rescue. A rope was tied around him, and he was let down one hundred feet over the face of the cliff. Great was the joy of all when the guardsman clasped the driver in his arms. The two were lowered to a larger ledge, from which they easily ascended to the summit.

WHEN the great musician Chopin was a boy, he was very sensitive in regard to everything connected with the art he loved so much. He made his first appearance at a concert, his age then being nine years. His mother, anxious to adorn her pet, put him on a chair to see if there was any flaw in his appearance, and she made him particularly happy by adding to the charms of his little velvet coat a lace collar. At the concert little Chopin achieved extraordinary success. The audience applauded him vociferously. When he returned home he was very quiet, however, somewhat to the surprise of his mother, whose delight was unbounded.

'Why, my son,' she said, 'they applauded your success!'

'Oh, mamma!' he replied, 'I believe it was my lace collar they were applauding!'

AT Albany, N. Y., there lives a little girl whose pet is a dog twice as large as his little owner. Not long ago the child and the dog were romping in a third-story room when the dog leaped upon the window-sill, the window was open, and, as the dog lost his balance, the little girl saw that her pet was about so fall. As quick as thought the child grasped one of the dog's hind legs and held him suspended for nearly a minute. The violent struggles of the poor brute caused her to let go finally, however, and she was afterward found weeping in a corner of the room. The singular part of the incident is that the dog in his descent struck and clung to the edge of a brick wall, twenty-five feet below, and jumped to the ground unhurt.

'WHAT is the complexion of your baby brother, dark or fair?' asked a lady of a small boy.

'To tell the truth,' was the reply, 'he is a little yeller.'

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Patent Improved

COLD AIR ICE CASKETS for the preservation of the dead; also Embalming Fluids. I have recently introduced a remarkably cheap BLACK CLOTH CASKET, which in appearance is almost equal to the finest. Remember I do not confine myself exclusively to fine and high-priced work, but have an endless variety at medium and low prices.

I have THREE HEARSES, two large ones and one small white one for children and young persons; and with my handsome new Glass Hearse and fine pair of Black Horses, can furnish as fine a Funeral Turnout as can be seen in our large cities. I am constantly adding new features and improvements to my business, in order to keep up with the times; and as there are such changes in style and kind constantly going on, and, as is generally the custom, some friend is called into the embarrassing position of ordering what he supposes may be wanted, it would be much more satisfactory to all concerned to name the price of the article wanted.

☞ ALWAYS REMEMBER that I guarantee to furnish anything in my line, of the same kind and quality, at lower prices than any other establishment of the kind. Ever grateful for the very liberal patronage heretofore extended me, I respectfully beg a continuance of the same.

Some Special Things

that prove to be strangely low. A few of these have been in store some days, but, to give everybody a fair chance, we held the announcements until the return of people from their holidays.

A good lot of first-rate Jerseys at $2.25. These are all black. The colors are $2.50.

A Black Dress Silk at 75 cents, that until recently was always $1.00.

A fine Black Rhadama, 22 inches wide, at $1.50.

Half-wool Black Dress Goods at 12½ cents, which is just half-price.

All-wool stylish Plaid Suiting, 42 inches, at 50 cents. We sold the same at $1.00.

Another in stripes at 65 cents. Not dear at $1.00.

A quality of Lupin's Cashmere for 50 cents (all wool). The new tariff will prevent this quality from ever again selling at this price.

A Black Albatross at 25 cents, exactly half-price.

A fine Black Camel's Hair 46 inches wide, at 60 cents.

A good 36-inch all-wool Cashmere at 40 cents.

An excellent Black Cashmere, all-wool, a yard wide, at 45c.

A very few much admired Embroidered Robes at one-third off of usual price.

A Bleached Muslin, full yard wide, for 10c. The best we ever had at that price.

The best Twilled, All-Wool Red Flannel we ever sold for 25c.

The best Canton Flannel for 12½c. We never could get so good a quality at the price before.

An extraordinary lot of Towels at 25c.

Eight lots of Ladies' and Children's Hose that are on our counters at 25 per cent. under prices.

These lots of Shoes that are amazingly desirable for the prices:

China and Glassware we hardly dare to risk saying anything about, as the lots announced are nearly always sold out in a few hours of the day they are presented. Watch the city daily papers for the announcements, and if these lots are sold when you come do not be disappointed, as we have new lots in every day or two.

In Furniture. Young couples should see

The new Ash Suite of Bed Room Furniture for $25.
The same goods in Cherry for $28.

Our Works at present turn us out only four suites per day of these goods, so that first come, first served. Nothing like this has ever been done in Philadelphia before.

A fine frame Body Brussels Carpet at $1.25 that we are willing to endorse as a good thing.

We are not permitted to give the makers' names. The goods are new this season, and fifty patterns at least to choose from.

The First Fall Offering of Ladies' Robes are all-wool, of ample material, in nine varieties, dark, rich hues, and the new patterns are on the palm-leaf order. The effect is much the same, if not a full equivalent, as though an expensive Cashmere Shawl were dissected and made into a robe, as is often done. The expense being infinitely less—$25.

Also a few Wrapper Patterns, Persian, and with a decided Oriental effect. The olive, old gold and rich, dark hues are subdued in a broad border of consistent but curious formation, 10 to 11 yards each. $2.00 per yard.

There are other lots equally interesting, and new things daily arriving.

Samples of Dress Goods sent by mail; a "Postal" will receive immediate attention.
