OUR SERVANT GIRL.

We hired her, but she could not cook;
She knew not how to make a bed;
And I will swear upon the Book
She could not make a loaf of bread.

She into corners swept the dust;
A dust-pan she had never seen;
The range took on a coat of rust;
Pots, pans and kettles were unclean.

Till it was black she boiled the tea;
The pan in which she boiled the fish
She used unclean for fricassee;
At every meal she broke a dish.

Although of splendid health and strong,
Of work she seemed to be afraid;
She never cleaned the lamps as long,
As she could see without their aid.

About her rights she had no doubt,
And did not fear of them to speak;
She wanted every Sunday out,
And three nights, also, every week.

My wife to her becoming cool,
She left us, sulky, black as ink.
She is now instructress in a school,
Training servant girls, I think.

FOREIGN ITEMS.

Fifteen thousand persons have been rendered homeless by the recent great fire at Surat India.

Lord Francis Cecil, second son of the Marquis of Exeter, has been adjudged a bankrupt with £21,000 liabilities.

The Queen has paid an unexpected visit to her old nurse, Mrs. Hillier, in Regent's Park, and conversed with her for an hour.

Here is the latest Tory joke: "Why can't Mr. Gladstone have his life insured? Because no man living can make out his policy."

An extensive Nihilist printing establishment has been discovered in Warsaw, and many persons connected with it have been arrested.

While thieves were robbing a wine store at Szil, Hungary, they caught the proprietor and threw him into a wine press, where he was crushed to death.

Advices have been received from Massowah that King John, of Abyssinnia, was defeated and slain in a recent battle, and that the whole country is in a state of anarchy.

In Germany the labor strikes are spreading. Three thousand bricklayers are out in the Northern districts, 1,300 tailors in Hamburg, and 800 house-painters in Cologne.

Mr. O'Brien's appeal from his sentence of six months imprisonment was heard today, and the sentence was reduced. He will be released on the twenty-second of May.

An immense terrestrial globe on the scale of one millionth will be shown at the Paris Exhibition. The globe measures 13 meters in diameter. Paris will occupy a square centimeter of its surface.

The recent hurricane in the South Pacific Ocean caused great damage on Talfiti. Parts of the island were submerged and a great many persons were drowned. On Tonga the hurricane created great havoc. Thirty persons perished there in the storm.

Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, has purchased the Myerling estate, which was owned by the late Crown Prince Rudolph.

The main building will be turned into a Carmelite nunnery. The room in which the Crown Prince committed suicide will be turned into a chapel. Other parts will be fitted up as an asylum for aged and infirm residents of the district.

The committee appointed to investigate the plan of M. Pasteur for the extermination of rabbits have made a report. They say that they found that rabbits which had been inoculated with the virus of chicken cholera, or which ate food which had been infected with the virus, died, but that the disease was not communicated by one rabbit to another.

Population is so scattered in New South Wales that the failure of 50 per cent. of the voters to go to the polls at a recent exciting election, where the issue was between protection and free trade, is accounted for by the distance many would have had to travel to cast their votes. In one case, where there was an omission to open polls at a given locality, the electors had to travel 200 miles or lose their votes.

Acted upon the Suggestion.

A colored man, who had a load of ashes behind his mule, came to a standstill on Adams avenue the other day. He clucked and yelled and lashed at the mule, but the animal hung his head and refused to budge. Among the spectators was a woman, and as the lashing went on, she stepped forward and said:

"Colored man do you know that that mule has feelings?"

"Yes, mar'm I does," he replied; "an' Ize jist about to tackle de same."

He jumped down and gave the animal's tail a twist, and as the beast moved slowly off, the man continued:

"Sartin, mar'm—sartin; but how on airth did you happen to diskiber it?"

Mormon Statistics.

At the closing session of the Mormon Conference at Salt Lake City, Utah, Geo. Q. Cannon read the statistics of the church which are: Twelve apostles, 70 patriarchs, 3,719 high priests, 11,850 elders, 2,069 priests, 2,292 teachers, 11,610 deacons, 81,899 families, 115,915 officers and members, and 49,320 children under eight years of age—a total Mormon population of 153,911. The number of marriages for six months ended April 6, 1889, was 530; births, 3,754; new members, 488; excommunications, 113. Mr. Cannon said that many young men were leaving the Territory to take up land elsewhere. The saints, he said, had been called together to build up Zion, and this scattering must be stopped.

About Diamonds.

A diamond, beside being the queen of gems, is positively the most beautiful thing that nature has ever conceived. When art reveals its hidden perfections it is the only "thing of beauty" that "is a joy forever," as it is practically indestructible. Time will dim the luster and wear away the fiber of gold, but the diamond will go on sparkling for all time. For aught we know the diamond that sparkles on the white fingers of the belle of today may have scintillated as the eye of some Hindoo god thousands of years ago. Most people imagine that diamonds have a classification like other commodities, worth so much per carat, according to perfection, brilliancy and purity, running through say a dozen grades, but there is no greater mistake. Strange as it may seem to the uninitiated, no two diamonds are exactly alike, but each has a virtue and a value peculiarly its own. It is just as rare to see two individuals exactly alike in face, form and feature as it is to see two diamonds. The idea, also, that a dealer in diamonds can tell by looking at a gem its exact value is all nonsense. A diamond has to be studied. While the aid of a glass will help to discover the slightest flaw or imperfection, it does not bring out its true value by a long way. Men who handle money constantly can detect a light coin by simply handling and examining casually, but a fine diamond has got to be studied from all points before a safe estimate can be put upon its value. Shape, size, perfection of cutting and such matters cut an important figure in a diamond's value.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Lesson in Etiquette.

The following lesson in street etiquette may contain a useful hint for more than one young man who may never have looked at the matter in the light in which it was forcibly brought to the attention of a thoughtless brother.

A young man whom we will call John stood in a doorway of one of the crowded streets of a large city. Another young man, with a young woman leaning on his arm, passed along the street.

"Hullo, Mary!" called John, from the doorway, loudly and familiarly to the young woman.

The young man with her stopped, excused himself and left the young woman at a milliner's shop near by. Then he went back to the one called John, who still stood in the doorway, and asked him what he meant by his impertinence.

"What do you mean by impertinence?" angrily asked John.

"You insulted the lady I was with," was the reply.

"I didn't do anything but say, 'Hullo, Mary!' And anyway, don't you know she's my sister?"

"Yes, I know that, but you had no right to attract attention to her on a crowded street by hollering at her. Do you suppose the other fellows and the crowd knew that you were her brother? What would they think of a girl thus accosted?"

"Never thought o' that," said the brother, slowly. "Well, I'll look out next time."—Youth's Companion.

A Little Chap's "Nerve."

A distressing accident happened in the yard at Pocatello. Orma Tolmie, a boy about 12 years old, was crushed in a shocking manner by the cars, resulting in his death a few hours after. Orma and a younger brother, in company with several other small boys, went down the track to play, and they were jumping on and off the cars as the yardmen were switching. The men ordered the boys off the cars and tried to keep them away, but they kept jumping on until finally Orma in some way got caught between the wheels and was ground down, cutting off the left arm near the shoulder, and frightfully mangling the left leg between the knee and thigh. Everything possible was done for the boy, but there was no hope of saving his life, and at 10 o'clock, about six hours after the accident, he died, apparently suffering but little, although so dreadfully mangled. The father of the boy works in the car shops here, and he was notified of the accident immediately. As the wounded boy lay on the bed, his mother came into the room and burst out crying, as only a mother can. Orma looked over at her and said: "Mamma, don't cry; go out of the room so you can't see me." All through the terrible ordeal the little hero bore up wonderfully, and showed a grit worthy the boldest knight of ancient chivalric days. —Salt Lake Tribune.

Deceived About Complexions.

"Mam'selle Chic" says women should be more particular in choosing the colors which set off to best advantage what charms they possess, especially when they have passed the point which they rarely own of thirty years. They all seem impressed with a fallacious idea that a good complexion once a good complexion forever. More particularly is this true of such women who possessed an unusually good complexion in their youth. Mam'selle remembers a case which illustrates this perfectly. A woman of some thirty odd summers and winters had a habit of recommending to every other woman, young or old, a certain cream for the skin, accompanying her recommendation with the following words: "I tell you this because it has served so well for me. I may not have anything else, but certainly I have a good complexion." And she believed it, while her skin was yellow and blotchy and not smooth. Her contemporaries did affirm that in her girlhood her skin was a marvel of waxen purity. And so we deceive ourselves, and go on wearing unbecoming things.—New York Telegram.

Birds Dazed by the Light.

The attraction of lighthouses for birds is a very curious phenomenon. It is said that just before the Charleston earthquake all the lighthouses along the coast as far north as Cape May were enveloped by clouds of agitated birds. Many wonderful scenes are witnessed at the lighthouses on some parts of the British coasts during the season of migration. Sometimes when the moon is suddenly hidden by a bank of clouds the lanterns of the lighthouses are the point to which the stream of migrants hasten, and where, in a confused, fluttering throng, they beat against the glass like moths round a candle, and fly to and fro, utterly bewildered and completely lost. They seem to have no idea of their true course, and fly aimlessly about, many killing themselves against the glass, others falling into the water below. The light men are alert on these occasions, and capture numbers of the poor, lost travelers with handnets. Many of the birds are too tired or too dazed to move, and allow themselves to be taken by the hand as they sit on the balcony.—Advocate.

Engineered by England.

Count de Kernirry, in a letter to The Figaro, declares that the signal for the coup d'etat in 1851 came from the foreign office in London, and that its originators were Count Walewski, French ambassador at London, and Lord Palmerston. A few months before the event Louis Napoleon granted a subsidy for laying a new submarine cable between Calais and Dover, saying that it was imperatively necessary that the two governments should be in quick communication before the night of Dec. 2, 1851.

Where They Burn Water.

This burning of water is a curious thing. When I went to England many years ago, a perfect novice in matters relating to combustion of fuel, and saw the firemen and engineers pouring bucketfuls of water on their coal heaps just before shoveling the coal on to their fires. I at once told them that they were doing a very foolish thing, for it took a lot of heat to drive off the water before the coal would burn. But when they told me it was a matter that did not admit of an argument, as they had proved that they had got much hotter fires when they wet their coal than when they put it on dry, I was completely nonplused, and when with my "stoker" I fed the furnaces with tan bark, &c., so wet that the water ran out of the hoppers I believed the firemen were right.—Boston Manufacturers' Globe.

Rheumatism and Neuralgia

These twin diseases cause untold suffering. Doctors admit that they are difficult to cure—so do their patients. Paine's Celery Compound has permanently cured the worst cases of rheumatism and neuralgia—so say those who have used it.

"Having been troubled with rheumatism at the knee and foot for five years, I was almost unable to get around, and was very often confined to my bed for weeks at a time. I used only one bottle of Paine's Celery Compound, and was perfectly cured. I can now jump around, and feel as lively as a boy." FRANK CAROLL, Eureka, Nevada.

"Paine's Celery Compound has been a God-send to me. For the past two years I have suffered with neuralgia of the heart, doctor after doctor failing to cure me. I have now taken nearly four bottles of the Compound, and am free from the complaint. I feel very grateful to you." CHAS. H. LEWIS, Central Village, Ct.

Paine's Celery Compound

"I have been greatly afflicted with acute rheumatism, and could find no relief until I used Paine's Celery Compound. After using six bottles of this medicine I am now cured of rheumatic troubles." SAMUEL HUTCHINSON, So. Cornish, N. H.

Effects Lasting Cures.

Paine's Celery Compound has performed many other cures as marvelous as these,—copies of letters sent to any address. Pleasant to take, does not disturb, but aids digestion, and entirely vegetable; a child can take it. What's the use of suffering longer with rheumatism or neuralgia?

Harper's Bazar.

Illustrated.

Harper's Bazar will continue to maintain its reputation as an unequalled family journal. Its art illustrations are of the highest order, its literature is of the choicest kind, and its Fashion and Household departments of the most practical and economical character. Its pattern-sheet supplements and fashion-plates alone will save its readers ten times the cost of subscription, and its articles on decorative art, social etiquette, house-keeping, cookery, etc., make it indispensable to every household. Its bright short stories, and timely essays, are among the best published; and not a line is admitted to its columns that could offend the most fastidious taste. Among the attractions of the new volume will be serial stories by Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett, Mrs. Alexander, William Black, and Thomas Hardy, and a series of papers on nursery management by Mrs Christine Terhune Herrick.

The Sun

FOR

1889

And for the Democracy.

THE SUN believes that the campaign for the election of a Democratic Congress in 1869 and a Democratic President in 1892 should begin on or about the fourth of next March. The SUN will be on hand at the beginning and until the end of the most interesting and important political conflict since the war, doing its honest utmost, as ever to secure the triumph of the Democratic party and the permanent supremacy of the principles held by Jefferson, Jackson, and Tilden.

The great fact of the year is the return to absolute power of the common enemy of all good Democrats—the political organization for whose overthrow THE SUN fought at the front for fifteen years, the memorable years of Grant and Fraud Hayes, and Garfield and Arthur.

It is the same old enemy that Democrats now confront, and he will be intrenched in the same strong position. It has been carried once by brave and hopeful fighting. Do you believe with THE SUN that the thing can be done again? Wait and see!.

The hope of the Democracy is in the loyal efforts of a united press, cherishing no memories of past differences in non-essentials, forgetting everything but the lessons of experience, and that victory is a duty.

Probably you know THE SUN already as a newspaper which gets all the news and prints it in incomparably interesting shape; which chronicles facts as they occur and tells the truth about men and events
