THE Senate passed the enforcement dry bill, with the referendum, Wednesday by a vote of 23 to 4. This means that the bill must be referred back to the House for its concurrence. Should the House refuse to pass the bill as amended in the Senate, then the measure will be lost. If the House agrees to this amendment, then the enforcement question will come before the voters of the state in the form of a constitutional amendment for ratification or rejection at this coming fall's election.

THE "Snow Hill Messenger," which, perhaps, is the closest newspaper in the state to Hon. John Walter Smith, published as an editorial last Saturday the following:

Successor Of Senator France

"Maryland Republicans need not give themselves so much concern about the successor of Senator Farnce, now that he has deserted the Republican party. Mr. France was electea Senator of Maryalnd as was Mr. Weller, by fool Democrats who have since regained their equilibrium and are sorry that they lost their heads and did such injury to their state and nation.

"But there is a silver lining to most every cloud! So it is with Maryland politics—there will be no more Republicans in the United States Senate from this state. The people desire the return of Honorable John Walter Smith to the Senate. It is true that he is getting along in years, and it is equally true that he is not seeking a renomination by his party—those nearest to him declaring that he does not want to go back. He is strong mentally and physically. He made a splendid record in the Senate. He is safe and sure, and all who have been mentioned as his successor fall far short of his qualifications for the position of United States Seantor. He is not an orator, but he can say what he wants to say forcibly and logically and with convincing earnestness.

"His long experience with national and international questions, his ripe intellect—his genuine Americanism—all eminently fit him to be the representative in the United States Senate of the grand old State of Maryland.

"We have not seen or heard from Senator Smith for many weeks, we only have hearsay evidence as to his desire to give the remainder of his life to his private affairs, but we do know that all over this state there is a feeling of regert that he was pulled into the political maelstrom of 1920 and the people of Maryland want him to go back to the Senate, for the good of the state and the nation."

LEGISLATIVE NOTES

Happenings At The Maryland Legislature Since Our Last Issue

Senator Russell has introduced a bill in the Senate authorizing a bond issue by the Commissioners of Chestertown of $50,000 for the improvement of the streets of Chestertown. This bill was drawn at the request of the Business Men's Association and on a resolution passed at a largely attended public meeting of the citizens, which was called in Fireman's Hall some time ago.

Senator Russell has also introduced a bill, providing for the transcribing of Kent county land records.

The $15,000,000 School Loan Bill, which authorizes the mayor and city of Baltimore to issue stock for this amount of money, to be expended by the Public Improvement Commission for the construction of new schools and additions to old ones, will be favorably reported to the House Saturday by the city delegation.

President Norris sounded a warning note Thursday when he called the attention of members of the Senate to the nearness of the close of the session with some of the most important measures still in committee. Only two weeks remain during which these must be cleared up. He made particular reference to the budget bill.

Not until the Legislature reconvenes on Monday night after its adjournment over the week-end will the House of Delegates take up the question of concurrence or rejection of the Senate referendum-amendment to the State Enforcement Act if the indications of Thursday night are any surety of the action of the days that follow. Not until the members of the lower branch have had an opportunity to return to their homes, talk to their constituents and plumb the depths of public sentiment will the House cast its votes for either the killing of the entire act or concurrence in the referendum that the voters of Maryland may be given the opportunity to say once and for all whether they want prohibition enforcement as interpreted by the Anti-Saloon League. Following the mandate of the League, the "dry" leaders in the House are preparing to throw the full weight of their influence against the adoption of the referendum, irrespective of the fact that such an action would place them in the position of preferring to kill their own bill rather than take the chance of having the Court of appeals decide that the referendum is constitutional and that the people may vote to accept or reject the Enforcement Act as introduced in the General Assembly.

AN APPEAL TO REASON

Maryland has on its statute books a so-called "Full Crew Law," which requires railroads to man all freight trains of thirty (30) cars or more with crews of six (6) men, viz.: 1 Engineer, 1 Fireman, 1 Conductor, 2 Brakemen and 1 Flagman (3 Brakemen).

The movement for the enactment of "Full Crew Laws" had its origin during the period of operation under the old link and pin coupling, and hand brake systems, which preceded the installation of the automatic coupler and automatic air brake.

Brakemen were formerly required to brake by hand on the tops of freight cars, and to go between cars to couple or uncouple.

With the installation of the automatic coupler it is no longer necessary to go between cars to couple or uncouple, and by the use of the automatic air brake the train is controlled by the engineer, eliminating the necessity for braking by hand.

Formerly brakemen spent most of their time riding out on top of cars, regardless of the weather conditions, whereas now they spend nearly all of their time riding on the locomotive or in the caboose.

Therefore, there is no longer a necessity, if such ever existed, for the "third," or "additional brakeman," as required by the Maryland "Full Crew Law."

A careful analysis of the reports covering investigations of accidents made by the Maryland Public Service Commission and Interstate Commerce Commission disclosed no instance of the jeopardizing of the safety of either the public or employes, and that not one accident has been attributable to an insufficiency in the number of men comprising the crew of the train involved.

The repeal of this law will not mean more unemployment. It will mean the transfer of men from unnecessary and unproductive employment to useful and productive occupations in other departments.

PUBLIC OPINION as reflected through the PRESS of Maryland is practically unanimous for the repeal of a law which has caused the railroads to expend unnecessarily, in Maryland, in ten years in which the law has been in active effect, a total of about $2,500,000; money which is after all the public's, for the public must in the last analysis pay the bill.

The paramount interest of a railroad is "Safety First." That fact alone insures the maintenance of efficient crews; and the repealer, also, provides an additional safeguard, if such is needed, in that it leaves the Public Service Commission of Maryland in a position to order on duty the "extra man" if it is shown that safety demands such a course.

Safety, efficiency, common-sense and justice all call for the repeal of the Maryland "Full Crew Law."
