SCOTT'S POINT,

CHESTERTOWN, MD., Aug. 20th, 1889.

Notwithstanding the floods in the swamps and the difficulty of getting

SHINGLES and FENCING

we have the past week unloaded a cargo of the best, and have more to follow direct from the swamps.

We have a dry, seasoned stock of 1x6 Cypress and White Pine, and 1x12 White Pine and Yellow Pine 12 feet, 14 feet and 16 feet long. This we can shape into plain dressed or

Novelty Worked Siding

FOR HOUSES AND BARNS,

to suit the taste of the purchasers.

Large Stock of Georgia Timber, Long Lengths of Yellow Pine Logs to cut special bills from.

Besides keeping the largest and most varied assortment of

BUILDING LUMBER!

(outside the city of Baltimore) in the State. My Saw Mill, Planing Mill, Scroll Saw, Lath, Sash, Door and Blind Machinery enable me to furnish everything, not only from first hands, but with promptness unequaled.

All orders and correspondence directed to me will receive attention in my absence by my efficient assistants.

Orders by mail and telephone ought to allow for some delay in obtaining cars long enough to load lumber.

We have a great many daily inquiries for prices that are answered in my Printed Book. We guarantee the printed prices to be the maximum, and only reserve the privilege of charging less whenever the orders are large, the expense light and we can afford a lower figure.

Cash, prompt customers are always given the lowest figures without time wasted in parleying.

I try to make the establishment deserving of patronage and the good will of the public, and every transaction to the interest of the purchaser as well as myself.

JOSEPH TURNER.

A PRACTICAL POET.

Come around to SHAW'S and see a pair
Of Shoes whose great attraction,
Is that they will not rip or tear,
But give you satisfaction.

Young man, we have a pair for you,
Whatever be your station,
We surely can produce a Shoe
To suit your occupation.

A pair for you whose feet may tread
The gorgeous halls of State;
A pair for you whom fate has led
On richer men to wait.

I have a pair for all who will,
Whatever he may follow;
We care not so he pay the bill,
We want the mighty dollar.

AN UNPUBLISHED INTERVIEW WITH NAPOLEON.

From an article in the September Century on "Napoleon in Exile," described in unpublished letters by British officers, we quote the following: "When I was presented he said that he was once a great enemy, but that now he was as sincere a friend. He said that we were a great and generous nation. He asked me about the wind, weather, distance to Elba, and other nautical questions; he then bowed and retired. He was very dignified—still the Emperor. I received his command to dine with him. There was at table all the commissioners and the Grand Marshal; the conversation was most interesting.

"He laughed when I asked him if he did not issue his Milan decree for the purpose of forcing America to quarrel with us. This he did not deny. He said 'all his plans were on an immense scale,' and would have been finished in four or five years. I have not time to repeat all of his interesting conversation.

"That night we embarked all of his numerous baggage. In the morning he sent for me. He asked how the wind was, and said that he had made up his mind to embark at eight in the evening. At seven o'clock he sent for me, and I remained an half-hour alone with him (an immense mob had gathered round his hotel). His sword was on the table, and he appeared very thoughtful; there was a very great noise in the street. I said to him, 'The French mob are the worst I have seen.' He answered, 'They are a fickle people.' He appeared in deep thought; but, recovering himself, rang the bell, and ordered the Grand Marshal to be sent for, he asked if all was ready. Being answered in the affirmative, he turned to me and said in his usual quick way, 'Allons.'

"The stairs were lined on each side with ladies and gentlemen. He stopped a moment, and said something to the ladies which I could not hear. He walked to his carriage and called for me (not a safe berth); he then called the Austrian commissioner and the Grand Marshal. I sat opposite to him in the carriage, and we drove off. My boats were almost two miles from the town. We were accompanied by an Hungarian regiment of cavalry. It was a delightful moonlight night, the country we passed through a paradise. Then the carriage stopped, the bugle sounded, and the regiment was drawn up.

"An interesting scene now opened—bugles sounding, drums beating, horses neighing, and people of every nation in Europe witnessing the embarkation of this man who had caused so much misery to them all.

"I informed him that the boat was now ready, and we walked together to where she was. He was handed into the boat by a nephew of Sir Sidney Smith's, who is my fourth lieutenant—rather a strange coincidence. Lieutenant Smith had been confined in prison for seven or eight years. I introduced him. The Emperor seemed to feel his conscience prick him: he only said, 'Nephew to Sir Sidney Smith; I met him in Egypt.'

"When we got on board he walked round the ship. My people crowded round him, and he said 'for the first time in his life he felt confidence in a mob.' His spirits seemed to revive, and he told me the next morning that he had never slept better. Next day he asked me a thousand questions and seemed to be quite initiated in nautical matters. At breakfast and dinner there was a great deal of conversation. He spoke of the Scheldt expedition. I asked him if he had ever thought we should succeed. He said, 'Never': and turning a little to the Austrian commissioner, he said, 'I wrote from Vienna that the expedition was intended against Antwerp.' He told me his motive for annexing Holland to France was for a naval purpose, and that he thought the Zuyder Zee particularly well adapted for exercising his conscripts.

"At breakfast one morning he asked me to bring too, to a neutral brig that was passing. I said, laughing, that I was astonished his Majesty should give such an order, as it was contrary to his system to denationalize. He turned round and gave me a pretty hard ray, saying, 'Ah, Capitaine!'

"When we were sailing by the Alps he leaned on my arm for half an hour, looking earnestly at them. I said that he had once passed them with better fortune. He laughed, and liked the compliment. He told me that he had been only once wounded; it was in the knee, and by an English sergeant. He looks uncommonly well and young, and is much changed for the better, being now very stout. He showed me a portrait of the king of Rome; he is very much like his father. He likewise showed me one of the Empress, which is rather pretty. We had a smart gale when off Corsica; he asked me to anchor at Ajaccio, the place of his birth; but the wind changing made it impossible. In the gale I told him I had more confidence than Cæsar's pilot; this compliment pleased him,

"He dresses very plain, wearing a green coat with the decoration of the Legion of Honor. The portrait of him with the cocked hat and arms folded is the strongest likeness I have ever seen."

(Here a sheet of the letter appears to be lost, and we find ourselves at Elba.)

UTAH'S HIGH AND DRY OYSTER BED.—I visited what is considered one of the most unaccounted for sights in Utah. It was a mountain about thirty-five miles northeast of this city, occupying an area of about thirty acres, and completely and thickly covered with oyster shells. The mountain is between 300 and 400 feet high, and situated over 4,000 feet higher than Salt Lake City, which is 4,300 feet above the level of the sea.

IT PICKS OUT BOOBIES.

Beware of the Rocking-Chair. It May Give You Away.

The "booby-trap" is the latest device by which high society families test the manners of their new acquaintances and determine whether they shall be put upon the list of eligibles or barred out. Many a young man has unknowingly fallen into the "trap" at his first appearance in a high-toned house, and has never known why he was never favored with an invitation to call again.

The "booby-trap" is a very simple affair—merely an innocent appearing rocking-chair in which the stranger is seated by his host evidently with nice regard for his comfort. Around him gather the members of the family, and although he may never know it, his every movement is carefully watched. If he knowingly or innocently sits quietly and does not rock a mental note is made by the inquisitors to the effect that he is a promising young man and worthy of being accorded a more extended trial. If, however, he should rock in the chair as his conception of the use of the chair might lead him to do, his fate is sealed. He is set down as deficient in the manners of polite society and his name is stricken off the family's visiting list. Knowing young men who have had a tip on this scheme fight shy of the rocker.

It is thought proper to publish in connection with this notice the subjoined sections of the registration law, which bear particularly upon the rights of the citizen and the powers and duties of the Register:

SECTION 3. And be it enacted That each of the said officers of registration shall have in addition to the other powers conferred upon him by this Act or which may hereafter be conferred upon him by law, during the respective times of his appointed sittings, under the provisions of this Act, the powers of a Justice of the Peace to preserve order and enforce obedience to his lawful commands at or around his place of registration—to keep the access to such place open and unobstructed, to prevent and suppress riots, tumult, violence and disorder and all other improper practices, at, around or near to his place of registration, tending to intimidation or to the obstruction of the work of registration, or of the revision of the registration, and to protect and keep safe the registries of voters or poll-books, hereinafter referred to, while in his custody and possession; he may compel the presence of witnesses before him while sitting as an officer of registration, for all purposes connected with the performance of the duties of his office, by summons and attachments; he may while sitting as such officer of registration commit for trial any person committing, at or around his place of registration, any offense forbidden by this Act; he shall have the power to issue any of said summons, attachments or commitments, when sitting in any county of this State, to the Sheriff of said county, or to any Constable thereof; all such processes shall be served by said respective officers in the same manner as if they were issued by a Judge of a Court of Record, having jurisdiction of the subject matter, or by a Justice of the Peace, exercising police powers within such respective jurisdictions; the Sheriff or Constable in any county of this State, who shall serve any of said processes, shall receive the same fees, and in like manner, as it is, or may be by law provided, that he shall receive fees in other State cases; but no officer of registration shall charge or receive any compensation for any service performed under this Act, except such as is provided by this Act.

It is also thought proper to publish the following sections of chapter 155 of the Acts of 1888 showing changes of times for sitting of registrars and their duties:

SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That said several officers of registration for the respective election districts in the counties of this State, instead of sitting five days in September and two days in October in each year as prescribed by the said Act of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, chapter twenty-two section ten, shall sit for the purpose of performing the duties imposed upon them by said Act, and by this Act, daily for two successive days in the month of May, for three successive days in September and for five successive days in October in every year in which an election shall be held in said counties; said sittings in May and September to commence on the second Monday of said months respectively, and the October sitting to commence on the first Monday in October. Said sittings shall in like manner be called the May, September and October sittings. The said respective officers of registration shall sit at the said several sittings in the several counties with open doors from 8 o'clock A. M. until 6 o'clock P. M. on each day of their sessions, and their proceedings shall be public and open to free inspection, without any obstruction whatever. The places of their sitting shall be selected as prescribed in said Act of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, chapter twenty-two.

SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That each of said officers of registration in Baltimore city shall be entitled to receive four dollars per day for every day he shall be engaged in the discharge of his official duties, exclusive of office rent and the cost of stationery, and each of said registration officers in the counties shall receive a per diem of four dollars for every day he shall be engaged in the discharge of his official duties.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That the said several officers of registration shall give notice signed by him or them of the times and places of his or their several respective sittings for five days before his or their several respective sittings in May, June, July, September and October, by publication as prescribed in the said Act of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, chapter twenty-two; and should changes of the places of their sittings become necessary, due notice thereof shall be given as provided by section fourteen of said Act.

SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That said Officers of Registration, when sitting at their respective May, June, July and September sittings, and the first sitting in October, shall register as provided in the said Act of eighteen hundred and eighty-two, chapter twenty-two, all qualified voters who shall present themselves for registration; and in addition to said work of registration they shall carefully revise and scrutinize the said registries of voters so received by them from said Clerks of the several Circuit courts and of the Superior Court of Baltimore city, to the end that all errors therein shall be corrected; and the names of all voters entered therein who shall have died or become for any reason disqualified, or who for any cause shall have ceased to be entitled to remain on said registration books, shall be stricken off. In order that the work of striking off from the registries the names of all dead and disqualified persons, and of all persons erroneously or improperly placed thereon, may be thoroughly and accurately accomplished, it shall be the duty of said several Officers of Registration at their May sitting to go carefully over the whole list of names upon said registries in their respective precincts and election districts, and to note for striking off the names of all persons whom from their own information, or from information furnished to them from others, they have good reason to believe to be proper to be stricken off. Having made out this list, which shall be at all times open to public inspection, it shall be their duty to address written notices to all the persons whose names are set down thereon, except those known to be dead, calling on said persons to appear before them on or before the first day of July sitting in the city of Baltimore, and the first day of the September sitting in the counties, to show cause why their names should not be stricken from said registries, which notices shall be served in Baltimore city by the police of
