Our Corn Phosphate.

TRADE MARK

We Manufacture a Special Corn Fertilizer

that has been used for years with the greatest satisfaction. This goods is prepared especially for Corn, and not only makes a vigorous growth and matures well on good ground, but is said to prevent frenching, as well as makes good Corn on stiff soil. Corn is now a good price; nevertheless we are selling the Fertilizer cheap.

A. J. HYNSON & REED Grew over fifty bushels Corn to the acre with it last season.

MR. R. J. CATLIN, of Q. A.'s county. Lofted two years ago 1700 bushels Corn off 26 acres where he used our Phosphate.

MR. WM. F. FORD, Ford's Store, Queen Anne's county, Md., says: He has been using our Phosphate on Corn for six years, and likes it the best of anything he has ever used.

MR. ALLEN WALLACE, of Swedesboro', N. J., says: I could tell to the very row where I used your Fertilizer on my Corn. When I came to mow my Grass where the goods had been used, there was such a difference in the crop that some of my friends asked me why I mowed part and let the other stand, when the truth of the matter was your Fertilizer made the Grass five or six inches higher. It was more marked from the fact that the rows ran diagonally across the field, and I could see the difference in the second mowing. I believe it to be grand good stuff.

MESSRS. W. M. PETERS & SONS, Wesley, Md., March 18, 1891, says: Your Corn Phosphate used last year by us and our tenants, acted better on Corn than anything we ever tried. Being a new goods our men were loath to take hold, preferring to use what they were accustomed to, but they did, and tested it alongside of Humphreys & Tilghman B. & Ross' C., both costing several dollars more per ton, and we all pronounced yours the best we ever used. You can ship us about April 10th fourteen tons more the Corn Phosphate, eight tons Truck Phosphate and two tons Fruit Grower.

FOR TOMATOES.

MR. R. S. EMORY, Chestertown, Md., says: The one ton of your Extant Fertilizer purchased of you last Spring was used upon my Tomatoes, and gave entire satisfaction. I applied it by sowing broadcast and cultivating in. The crop was one of the nicest I ever grew, the fruit being large, smooth and perfect, and yielded fifteen tons to the acre. If there is a cannery to grow for this year, will want to use it again.

MR. JAMES R. MASSEY, of Darlington, Harford, Md., says: He grew for the canners. Used our goods alongside of Dis. Animal Bone and Oriole Phos., and that his product netted $14 more per acre.

MR. EDWARD PLUMMER says: He put his Young Peach Orchard in Tomatoes; used our goods; sold to Lynch's cannery in 1888, and they netted him $47 per acre.

MR. PHIL. PARKER, Swedesboro', N. J., says: He used ours alongside of Mapes, that cost $44 per ton, and that ours was equal in every respect.

WE COULD GIVE THE NAMES Of Hundreds who have used our goods on their various crops, and should you want to plant Potatoes, Cabbage or any kind of Vegetables, write for one of our Circulars.

A BOY HERO.

In heartless Paris, which to foreign eyes
Seems made of mirrors, gaslight and display,
A splendid building's walls began to rise,
Ascending stone by stone from day to day.

High and more high the pile was builded well,
And scores of laborers were busy there,
When suddenly a fragile staging fell,
And two strong workmen swung aloft in air.

Suspended by their hands to one slight hold,
That bent and creaked beneath their sudden weight;
One worn with toil, and growing gray and old,
One a mere boy, just reaching man's estate.

Yet with a hero's soul. Alone and young,
Were it not well to yield his single life,
On which no parent leaned, no children clung,
And save the other to his babes and wife?

He saw that ere deliverence could be brought
The frail support they grasped must surely break,
And in that shuddering moment's flash of thought
He chose to perish for his comrade's sake.

With bravery such as heroes seldom know,
"'Tis right," he said, and loosing his strong grip,
Dropped like a stone upon the stones below,
And lay there dead, the smile still on his lip.

What though no laurels grow his grave above,
And o'er his name no sculptured shaft may rise?
To the sweet spirit of unselfish love,
Was not his life a glorious sacrifice?

—Elizabeth Akers in Harper's Young People.

How He Expressed It.

In a thriving village of Oxford county are people who still enjoy relating a little incident illustrative of the confusion likely to fall upon the stranger to our language who uses synonyms indiscriminately. The pastor of the leading church had made arrangements to exchange with a good German brother of the same denomination. Having himself been a witness to some ludicrous mistakes of that worthy, the minister was not without a feeling of uneasiness.

The German having arrived in the village Saturday was courteously invited to a pleasant gathering near the parsonage. The elite of the town were present. All went well with our German friend until he was introduced to the beautiful Miss Howard, whose matchless complexion was the pride of the village. Feeling that such beauty deserved some recognition, and wishing to compliment the beautiful stranger, the German exclaimed with his beaming admiration, "Why, fraulein, what a beautiful hide you have!"—Lewiston Journal.

Cause of Corpulency.

It is very evident that corpulency is due to some peculiarity within the system which favors the increase and storage of fat, but the actual cause is yet to be determined. Physicians who have been corpulent, and therefore have had the most favorable opportunities for study and experiment, have all reached the same conclusions—namely, that corpulency indicates a degree of ill health—not of excellent health, as many people suppose. They also hold that one and very potential cause of the abnormal storage of fat is the lack of functional activity in certain important organs of the body, and particularly those concerned in freeing the system of waste products. In other words, when the system is choked up with waste less fat is consumed therein, and its accumulation is favored.—Boston Herald.

A Butterfly Social.

A "butterfly social" is one of the novel entertainments for raising funds in charitable work. The room is decorated with butterflies of tissue paper, and in the center of the ceiling a huge butterfly of wire and thin silk or paper is suspended, some three feet from one wing tip to the other. The legs of the insect are of wire, painted black. Those who preside over the affair are dressed to resemble different varieties of butterflies, in blue and silver chiffon, black, brown and yellow velvet, with gauze wings and a butterfly for a headdress.—Exchange.

Steel Rails as Pit Props.

In consideration of the serious inroads which are being made on the timber of this country by the use of wooden props in mines, it is satisfactory to note that a patent has been taken out for a method of making steel rails into pit props and supports for collieries, mines, tunnels, bridges, etc. The rails are cut at their ends and suitably framed together. In point of cost it is said that this mode of propping compares favorably with bricking and other systems.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

The Monkey and the Rounder.

A man walks round a pole, on the top of which is a monkey. As the man moves the monkey turns round on the top of the pole so as still to keep face to face with the man. When the man has gone round the pole, has he, or has he not, gone round the monkey?

As either answer to this question may be upheld with strong and logical arguments, the reader is left to decide the question for himself.—New York Tribune.

An English North country church has published a scale for contributions expected for the collection plate. The church will be content if it receives two pence for every five shillings of income, or 3 per cent. A man in receipt of thirty pounds sterling a week is expected to give a sovereign.

Many people wondered why Mr. and Mrs. Kendal are never to be seen acting unless in each other's company. The reason is that when they married they made a vow never to be parted when playing—a vow they have kept to this day, with what happy results everybody knows.

A want of quickness in the sense of smell must be caused by anything which shuts off the air from the olfactory nerves—a polypus, for example, or facial paralysis, which interferes with nasal dilation and the necessary muscular effort in smelling.

In Genoa the wives and daughters of the fishermen get from the factor patterns and thread, hand spun flax or silk, and return the same weight in lace, receiving therefor such a price as pays them wages of five to ten cents a day.

A Daughter of a Duchess.

The younger daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught was born on St. Patrick's Day, and rejoices in the name of Victoria Patricia, so called in honor of her grandma and that Irish saint. An American lady living in London, and who seems to know a good deal about English royalty, says the little girl is a real beauty, and that her cousins, of whom there is a troop, call her "Patsy!" Whether this will render the name popular in aristocratic circles remains to be seen, but Patricia in itself is a lovely mouthful and a decided improvement on Gladys and Gwendoline, which are as common as Edith and Mabel were ten years ago.—London Letter.

Ten Times Better.

Barnum's "Brick Man."

As an illustration of one of Barnum's ingenious methods of attracting attention to his museum may be mentioned the incident of the "brick man." One day a man applied for alms to Barnum, who was sitting in the ticket office. To the inquiry as to why he did not go to work, the mendicant replied that he would gladly do so at a dollar a day if he could find employment. Barnum gave him twenty-five cents to get his breakfast, and told him to return, and he would give him a dollar and a half a day and easy work. When the man returned, Barnum gave him five bricks, and told him to place one in front of the museum, another on the corner of Vesey street, a third at the corner of Fulton—on the St. Paul's church side—and the fourth on the east corner of Fulton. Returning then to the museum, he was to take up the first brick and replace it with the fifth, and then continue his rounds, putting down one brick and taking up the other each time.

He was enjoined to answer no questions and to seem not to hear, and that at the end of each three-quarters of an hour he was to pass into the museum, look around at the curiosities for fifteen minutes and then resume his rounds with the bricks. Barnum says that the man played his part to perfection, and his eccentric conduct caused a great crowd to gather about the museum. Many of these, of course, went into the museum to seek some explanation as to the purpose of the "brick man." This was kept up for several days, until the police requested his withdrawal, because such crowds lingered about the museum that traffic was interrupted.—J. G. Speed in Harper's Weekly.

Importance of Breathing Properly.

In all the various systems of physical culture now in vogue the greatest importance is attached to taking the breath properly. The breathing should be slow and deep, six breaths a minute being a safe average. There is still a difference of opinion in regard to the relative value of abdominal and chest breathing, and each system has its advantages. One of the best exercises for increasing the capacity of the lungs is to draw a full breath very slowly and through the nose. Keep the lungs inflated as long as possible, and then expel the air suddenly through the mouth, and repeat the process.

Care should be taken not to try to make the period of holding the breath too long at the start; the more gradually the power of doing this is attained the better will be the permanent results. There are many breathing exercises, and one of the best is the taking of a deep breath and swinging the arms, first one, then the other, and finally both, while the breath is inhaled. Excessive practice of any system should be avoided, and the golden rule of taking moderate and judicious exercise should be observed.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

An Outfit for Traveling.

A woman who has traveled a great deal abroad says: "A steamer trunk ought to hold all of one's baggage for a summer trip to Europe. In addition to a warm, loose flannel wrapper for cabin use and half a dozen changes of linen, all that is really required is a close fitting traveling suit of dark cloth or serge with toque to match sitting firmly on the head in case of a stiff breeze while upon the deck, while some prefer the less dressy worsted or velvet hood to protect the ears and throat; a short wrap of warm material, a long mackintosh to envelop the form during stormy weather, stout shoes and a light plaid to throw over the knees, either when seated upon the deck of a steamer or traveling around in an open carriage upon land.

"With this necessary outfit and a light summer silk for the warmer days of sight seeing, one is well equipped for the longest journey, and may travel at ease free from the anxiety attendant upon the possession of the usual list of trunks carried by most novices while upon a journey."—Boston Transcript.

The Vanderbilt System and Its Managers.

More than 7,000 miles of railroad are absolutely controlled and operated by the Vanderbilt family. The roads which are advertised as the "Vanderbilt system" are the New York Central and Hudson River, the Michigan Central, the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern, the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis, the West Shore, and the New York, Chicago and St. Louis. These six roads with their leased lines and the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg, which has been purchased by the Vanderbilts, have 7,300 miles of line and represent a capital stock of more than $150,000,000. Their bonded indebtedness will aggregate nearly $300,000,000. These roads are under the absolute control and personal direction of Cornelius Vanderbilt. As his principal aids in managing this property Cornelius Vanderbilt has surrounded himself with four brainy men. They are Chauncey M. Depew, John Newell, Henry B. Ledyard and Melville E. Ingalls.—Chicago Herald.

Manuscript of "Home, Sweet Home."

The death of Mrs. Asa Jackson in Athens, Ga., has brought up once again the much talked of mystery of the whereabouts of the original of John Howard Payne's "Home, Sweet Home."

Mrs. Jackson was a near relative of Miss Mary Hardin, who was much admired by John Howard Payne. For a long time Miss Hardin had the only known copy of the famous song in the handwriting of its author. When she was dying several years ago in Athens it was rumored that in one of her eccentric moods she had willed the copy to be buried with her, but when asked on her deathbed if this were true she told Mrs. Jackson that she had not done so, but had left the manuscript, as well as all her other earthly goods, as a bequest to her.

After Miss Hardin's death the manuscript was searched for by Mrs. Jackson, but was not found. Only a few days ago a reporter called on Mrs. Jackson and asked if nothing had ever come of the search.

"Nothing yet," was the reply, "but I hope to find it before I die. Mary kept the copy concealed all the time while she lived. John Howard Payne sent it to her when he was consul to Algiers, and between the lines were written little love messages. They were sweethearts once, these two. Mary was offered tempting sums for the manuscript in her lifetime by publishers, but would never part with it.

"Several lawyers have lately been to me to get my permission for them to ferret out the whereabouts of the manuscript, but I have refused to let them take the case. I feel certain that it will come to light before I die."

It is generally believed that the manuscript will some time be found. Some think that the copy, which was known to be the only one extant written by Payne himself, was stolen from the house by a servant.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

If Your House is on Fire

You put water on the burning timbers, not on the smoke. And if you have the catarrh you should attack the disease in the blood, not in your nose. Remove the impure cause and the local effect subsides. To do this, take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, which radically and permanently cures catarrh. It also strengthens the nerves. Be sure to get only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

The Best

Blood Medicine

So say Leading Physicians and Druggists, and their opinion is indorsed by thousands cured by it of Scrofula, Eczema, Erysipelas, and other diseases of the blood.

"Ayer's Sarsaparilla has won its reputation by years of valuable service to the community. It is the best."—R. S. Lang, Druggist, 212 Merrimack st., Lowell, Mass.

Dr. W. P. Wright, Paw Paw Ford, Tenn., says: "In my practice, I invariably prescribe Ayer's Sarsaparilla for chronic diseases of the blood."

Dr. R. R. Boyle, Third and Oxford sts., Philadelphia, Pa., writes: "For two years I have prescribed Ayer's Sarsaparilla in numerous instances, and I find it highly efficacious in the treatment of all disorders of the blood."

L. M. Robinson, Pharmacist, Sabina, O., certifies: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla has always been a great seller. My customers think there is no blood-purifier equal to it."

"For many years I was afflicted with scrofulous running sores, which, at last became so bad the doctors advised amputating one of my legs to save my life. I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla and soon saw an improvement. After using about two dozen bottles the sores were healed. I continue to take a few bottles of this medicine each year, for my blood, and am no longer troubled with sores. I have tried other reputed blood-purifiers, but none does so much good as Ayer's Sarsaparilla."—D. A. Robinson, Neal, Kansas.
