The Modern Funeral

The methods and system in vogue a few years ago and still adhered to by many are no longer applicable in this age and generation.

A better understanding of the duties of the funeral director has changed the old order.

One of the most difficult problems confronting the modern funeral director, will be solved when the public realizes that SERVICE is the principle and only commodity which we have to offer.

The casket and funeral appertances are negligible or practically so, requiring little or no experience and in the matter of expense consistent with the cost of production.

SERVICE is the main consideration , the care and disposition of the body of the one who has past on knowledge and ability, a readiness to relieve the burdens of the ones who are left to mourn.

The principal reason for Embalming are: (1) Sanitation, for it is an absolute prevention of communication by infection. (2) The restoration of color and form.

Embalming is not as generally supposed, a lost art. The modern embalmer is a thoroughly trained sanitarian, a student of anatomy and chemistry. In his work he employs none of the crude and laborous methods used by the ancient Egyptians.
