THE HYNSON FAMILY.

An Interesting Article by Hester Dorsey Richardson, Published In the Baltimore Sun.

In view of the recent prominence given to the question of divorse as the result of the action of the Episcopal Convention at Boston, it is pleasing to find that there was no divorse court in early Maryland, where evidently the old-fashioned way was to marry for better or worse.

The home life was fuller in the early days, and every woman's mission was to be queen of her household and the father generally was content to be the revered head of his kingdom, where many little pattering feet ran to do his bidding and many sweet, young, flowers-like faces wreathed his daily board as for a festal feast. Those were the days on which the ideal of the home life is based. The sanctity of the marriage vow was inviolable in early Maryland. Knowing this to be true it was more than surprising—It was shocking— to hear a son of a Colonial family recently assert that the reason why there are so very early marriage licenses in the county courthouses is because people were not as a rule married in Colonial times. Indeed, this youth was apparently as pleased with his discovery as a new convert to Darwinism is when he first claims his monkey origin.

However, as Maryland was settled by a Christian people of a civilization which produced a Shakespeare, we need not give other proofs of the marriage vow, but will rather cite the most notable case on record regarding the impossibility of obtaining a divorce in the Palatinate of Lord Baltimore. It appears on record that one Robert Holt was married to one Christiana Bonnefield by the Rev. William Wilkinson in the year 1658, and in the trial that ensued it transpired that Robert Holt had a wife still living, from whom the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson had released him from all claim of marriage by drawing and signing a paper to that effect upon his wife's refusal to be reconciled. The result of the rector's action fully confirms the sacredness of the marriage vow at that date in Maryland. Robert Holt was indicted for bigamy and Rev. William Wilkinson as an accessory. The indictment against Holt is for marrying Christiana Bonnefield during the lifetime of his "lawful wife," that of Rev. Mr. Wilkinson "for feloniously joining the parties after he had divorced ye said Robert Holt."

The impossibility of a legal divorce in the province is confirmed by the investigations of the late Geodrie Lachina Davis, who, in referring to Rev. William Wilkinson's gilt, says the Bishop of London had no power under the English law to dissolve the bond. The Parliament was without any practical or real jurisdiction over the case and the Provincial Assembly never granted a divorce a vinculo for any cause whatever, and the English Church having no higher representative or depositary of her authority in this province than the clergyman indicted. It is of interest to know that Mr. Thos. Hynson, High Sheriff of Kent, was foreman of the grand jury that indicted these parties, and Major Thomas Ringgold was foreman of the trial jury, as they belong to the family today given.

The Hinson Family.

Arms—Azure; a chevron between three suns or, and a bordure ermine. Crest—a fleur-de-lis per pale azure.

William Hinson, of Fordham, at the Damside, is registered as living there, in County Cambridge, in the twenty-third year of the reign of King Henry VI. His grandson, Thomas Hinson, married Ann, daughter of Sir William Spring, of Norfolk, knight. Other alliances of his grandsons were that of Richard Hinson with Johanna, daughter and co-heir of Peter Salisbury, of Soham, whose son, Richard Hinson, of Barnard Inn, gentleman, married Margaret, daughter of John Howard, of Bradish Hall, County Suffolk, esquire.

Thomas Hinson, of Hunts Court, in the County of Gloucester, esquire, married the daughter of Lawrence, of Badgeworth, while his sister, Rebecca Hinson, became the bride of Thomas Lloyd, of Gloucester.

Thomas Hinsen 4th, of Fordham, married Ann, the sole heir of Thomas Petchy, of Soham, and left decendants. Among the grandsons of Thomas Hinson and Ann Powell were Thomas Hinson, B. C. L. Register-General for the Province of Munster, in Ireland: Sir William Powell, alias Hinson, Baronet, who married Dame Mary, relict of Sir John Budge, of Wilton, County Herford, Baronet, daughter and heir of Joseph Pearl, of Acornburg, County. Hereford, esquire, and Elizabeth, his wife, daughter and heir of John Parry, of Acornbury aforesaid, esquire.

We find that Sir Edward Powell, Knight and Baronet, late of Fulham, in the County of Middlesex, and of Pengethely, in the County of Hereford, being uncle by the mother's side to William Hinson 2nd, son of Thomas Hinson, of Fulham above named, did constitute the said William Hinson, his heir and executor, and did settle and bequeath his estate in land and goods upon him on condition that he should write Powell and suffer himself and his posterity to be called Powell, alias Hinson, according to the deeds of conveyance, and by virtue therefore he enjoys the estate of Sir Edward Powell and has since been created a baronet by King Charles II, A. D. 1661, by the name of Sir William Powell, alias Hin-
