The other morning a one-legged peddler in New York woke up and found that his wooden leg, which he had placed on a chair beside his bed, was gone. He used the artificial limb which was hollow for a bank, and in it he had deposited $434. It became known that the man used the leg for this purpose, and most exaggerated reports of the amount in it were in circulation; and, of course, it was stolen. A valuable artificial leg is not a novelty, the most famous being that of Miss Killmausegg which was of solid gold and which she, like the New York peddler was despoiled. But the most ingenous use to which a wooden leg was ever adapted was as a "speakeasy." In one of the towns of Maryland where the sale of spirituous liquor is not permitted by law, a one legged man had his wooden leg hollowed, and in the cavity carried whiskey. A spigot near the ankle served to draw the beverage the man became a traveling bar. As he walked along the highways and byways—the latter of course preferred—he dispensed liquor to his customers and out of this illicit trade secured no small advantage.

Two notable colored deaths occured in Chestertown last week, viz, James Bently, a well-known drayman; and Ellen Berry, widow of the late Joseph Berry. Both were eminently respectable and both were more than 80 years of age.

CLIFF CITY NEWS.

The Rate of Interest Discussed—Premature Fruit—Working on Sunday, Etc.

I read in the News of the 7th instant that the banks have concluded that they are paying the people too much money on their savings—in the same issue the Savings Bank declares an 8 per cent. dividend, "4 per cent for 6 months" and still they are not satisfied—they make and possibly earn this 8 per cent. on the people's money. I am sorry our town banks went into any such combination, many of our people were satisfied to have any little surplus they had, earn 4 per cent. but with the reduction to 3 per cent. they will hunt other pastures and thereby put a hardship on our own people—inasmuch as now farmers in a little distress find money easy, they will find the old thing in Kent viz., they will see their attorney who will tell them plainly, "I am very sorry but money is so tied up but I may get it for you but it will cost something. Now Messrs. Kent News we are comparatively prosperous, why not keep so, there is probably 150,000 in the different savings departments that keeps money easy and gives the people a chance to borrow at a fair per cent. without premiums and further encourages the people to save, the result will be that when the banks go back to 4 per cent. the people will have to put their money some other place may be in a gold brick, if the banks can make 8 per cent. on the people's money over expenses they should keep out of combinations. I note also in the Sun a letter from Chestertown relative to the Mountain Rose and other peaches in Kent prematuring. Some man has probably neglected spraying or worming his orchard or more likely missed a couple of trees either of which would premature the fruit. The worms would girdle a tree and thus premature, you can take any fruit when ⅔th grown and cut the bark and sap duct away and have it ripen premature. Our peaches are all right and in all well and properly cultivated orchards, a full one half crop of fine fruit will be produced but for prices that will depend on how much the commission men can spare.

The B. S. Ford had a Sunday trip to Cliff wharf and while resting the boat for a further trip went to work repairing the wharf. That's all right for the Pensy to work on Sunday but if some poor fellow was to sell a few quarts of the extract of corn on Sunday in Chestertown he would be "up" for $100 and 6 months in the cooler. Hiver.

An attempt was made to break into the store of Mr. H. B. Rote, near the postoffice, last Saturday night. The thief was frightened off before effecting an entrance.

T. G. Clothier had Dr. Samuel S. Buckley, Veterinarian, to visit his horses last week and reports them clear of any contagious disease.
