NO SHADOW

Of outward misfortune can darken the smile of the loyal wife and loving mother. But when disease comes the smile slowly fades, and in its place comes the drawn face and tight closed lips which tell of the constant struggle with pain.

When the delicate womanly organism is diseased the whole body suffers; the form grows thin, and the complexion dull. The first step to sound health is to cure the diseases which undermine the womanly strength.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription establishes regularity, dries disagreeable drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. The wonderful cures of womanly diseases effected by the use of "Favorite Prescription" place it at the front of all put-up medicines specially prepared for the use of women.

"I was troubled with female weakness for eight years, and suffered more than I can tell," writes Mrs. Gust. Moser, of Ovando, Deerlodge Co., Montana. "My disposition was affected to such an extent that to say a pleasant word to any one was almost an impossibility.
"I had two operations performed by one of the most skilled surgeons of the West, but did not get relief. Then, against my doctor's strict orders, I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and also followed the advice given in the Common Sense Medical Adviser.
"I continued this treatment for three months, and to-day am as healthy and well as a woman can be. I cannot thank Dr. Pierce enough for his kind letters to me."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure biliousness and sick headache.

"SNAPPER" TURTLES

Chestertown Market Was Stocked During the Past Winter.

The Chestertown correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, wrote to that paper as follows under recent date:

Chestertown market has been stocked with turtles of the loggerhead variety during the present winter. Push cart loads of the inhabitants of the vast mud flats along the shores of the Chester river are trundled about the streets for sale, and are sources of considerable revenue to the old trappers, who know where to find the "snappers" in their winter quarters, about four feet below the surface of the flag covered marshes. The loggerheads, or "snappers," as they are usually called, range in size from about three to twenty pounds, and sell for from 25 cents to $1. The "snapper" pie is a dish, when properly made, fit for the banquet of a king, but care should be used to select the smaller or younger turtles, as the very old ones are liable to be tough and somewhat strong. Then, too, the female adds to the richness of the dish by her not infreguent contribution of from thirty to forty daintily flavored eggs. Unlike the "slider," a large terrapin, or the muskrat, often known to Eastern Shore epicures as "mock terrapi," the loggerhead, because of the coarseness of its meat, is not to be mistaken for the unimpeachable delicacy and richness of flavor of the Chesapeake bay diamond-back.

The method of capture of the turtles is simple in the extreme. The trapper soon learns that both turtles and terrapins bury in the marshes where the morning sun will strike during the winter. Armed with a long staff or stick, he plunders through the mud and tussocks, sounding wherever favorable conditions are found. He can tell the instant the shell of the game is touched and by a dexterous move a hook is forced under the shell and the winter numbed game is taken from his cold-water quarters to be served in the local market.

The crow is the evil genius of the turtle just as of the diamond back and other terrapins. When the warm days of spring come and the female terrapins and turtles leave their beds in the marsh the crow goes on guard, knowing that a season of feasting is at hand. Both terrapins and turtles seek the warm, sandy uplands near the shore to deposit their eggs. A hole is dug several inches deep and from twenty to thirty inches oblong, white eggs are deposited and then the nest is filled or covered with sand. This is an interesting performance. Having neatly piled the sand over the eggs, the turtle raises herself just as high as is possible, then comes down with a heavy thud on the sand. This is continued until the sand is quite hard, when the eggs are left for the sun to hatch. In the meantime the crow has been on guard, and by means of his sharp bill and strong claws the work of breaking into the treasure house of the unsuspecting turtle is quickly accomplished and the feast is soon over.

The crow is considered by many to be the greatest enemy which the diamond-back has. Be this as it may, it is an easily established fact that the crow destroys thousands of the egg of all kinds of terrapins, not making an exception of the diamond-backs,

With the passing of the eighty-dollar diamond-back from local waters the Kent county epicure is being forced to seek a substitute for the toothsome mor- which the Colonial Marylander felt called upon to legislate from the bill of fare of the negro slave oftener than once a week.

HOW TO BAKE SHAD.

There's an Art in Having it Tender and Delicate.

The dry, tasteless dish sometimes served as baked shad bears very little resemblence to the "real article" skillfully prepared, with delicately-browned surface, and delicious flavor. It must be understood that a mere stuffing with highly seasoned bread crumbs, and setting in the oven to bake, will not bring about the desired results, but here is the plan that will:

Reduce to crumbs the inside of a loaf of bread, heat in a saucepan a lump of fresh butter the size of an egg, chop one-quarter of a large onion and add to the butter when it begins to bubble; when slightly brown add the bread and stir well till thoroughly hot, then season highly with pepper and salt and a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley. Remove from the fire, add immediately one well-beaten egg, stuff the shad with this dressing and sew up; sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour, put a few pieces of breakfast bacon in the pan and lay the shad upon them. pour a little hot water into the pan and bake in a hot oven with a few slices of bacon on top of the fish. Baste very often.

When done remove the bacon, sprinkle with a little melted butter in which chopped parsley is mixed, and serve in a dish in which fried shad roe is arranged about the fish in a nest of parsley.

The Best Blood Purifier.

The blood is constantly being purified by the lungs, liver and kidneys. Keep these organs in a healthy condition and the bowels regular and you will have no need of a blood purifier. For this purpose there is nothing equal Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. One dose of them will do you more good than a dollar bottle of the best blood purifier. Price, 25 cents. Samples free at M. A. Toulson's drug store.
