he, sir, was expelled from Rome!

The Senator quit us, sir, because th victory was to enure, not to h party but to ours, if he remained. An under what formidable circumstanc did he leave us? He went over the enemy's camp with all his par here,—horse, foot and dragoons! An his horse, foot, and dragoons were ——his own single self! He to up his musket and shot pouch, an marched over, sir, like one of his ne allies, in another case, "solitary and lone!" (A prodigious sensation.)

The earliest instance within my re collection, said Mr Clay, of the with drawal of an ally from an army, w at the memorable siege of Troy. A chilles withdrew his vessels and fo ces, and remained aloof from the scen of strife, and sullen inactivity. Unt provoked by the death of a friend be fore the siege, he led his avenging ar my against the city, drove the Trojan back within the walls; and slew th best and noblest of the sons of Priam But Achilles did not enter the camp of the Trojans! and he had been wronged, too. But, sir, we did no wrong the honorable Senator. We respected him for his abilities, his ac knowledged genius, his supposed patriotism, and what we thought he then possessed in an eminent degree, his stern and inflexible fidelity.

But he left us;—he has entered the foreign camp, distrusting, and distrusted, and whether triumph will perch upon his flag, or whether it will enure to the spoils party is a question to be settled between the high parties concerned.

[Mr. Clay then came to the consideration of Mr. Calhoun's late speech in favor of the Sub-Treasury Bill,—and most thorough work did he make of it. We cannot follow him farther. Enough to say that he was perfectly successful in demolishing the positions assumed by the Senator from South Carolina, one after the other, in their regular order. This was the most argumentative part of the speech, and was devoted to an exposition of the sophistries and false conclusions comprised in the effort of Mr. Calhoun.

Mr. Clay was extremely weak throughout the delivery of this speech; but intellectual vigor combated successfully to the close with physical debility, and rendered this one of his most splendid performances.—The hall was crowded, the whole house of representatives were in attendance, and although the eloquent Senator was obliged frequently to support himself against the railing of the bar of the Senate, from exhaustion and fatigue, yet did he continue throughout to enchain that dense multitude in breathless attention, for four hours, by an uninterrupted flow of eloquence.

The house was chiefly employed in incidental business all day.

STENOGRAPHICUS.

CHRONICLE.

CAMBRIDGE, MD.

SATURDAY MORNING, March 3. 1838.

It will be seen by reference to the proceedings published in to-day's paper, that the Whig members of the Legislature, together with numerous other persons, held a meeting at Annapolis, and passed resolutions recommending Henry Clay, as a candidate for the next Presidency, and signifying their approval of a national convention. This is as it should be.

In the present condition of our country, it is the duty of every patriot to go for measures, not men, and be willing to sacrifice his own choice for the man who is best calculated to oust from their high places the present ruinous "experimentalists" and schemers, and restore the government to its former energy and prosperity. 'There is strength in Union.'

The analysis which the Correspondent of the Baltimore Chronicle, gives of Mr Clay's speech on the Sub-Treasury Bill, is worthy the careful perusal of all our readers. Mr. Clay traces with an eloquence entirely his own, a premeditated design of the Administration to destroy the Banking system and credit of the country, and to establish on their ruin a Treasury Bank, to be under the control of the executive and his subordinates.

From the Washington Globe, of Saturday, the 24th February.

FATAL DUEL.

This evening Mr. CILLEY, of Maine, fell in a duel with Mr. GRAVES, of Kentucky—both members of the House of Representatives. They fought with rifles, & Mr. Cilley was shot through the body on the third fire, and died in a few minutes.

Mr. Graves had been the bearer of a letter from James Watson Webb, to Mr Cilley, which the latter refused to receive.—Mr. Graves demanded the reason, which Mr. Cilley declined giving. Mr. Graves then challenged Mr. Cilley, which produced the melancholly result we announce.

Reports have been quite current that a duel was certainly to take place between Col. James Watson Webb and Mr. Duncan, a member of the House of Representatives, from Ohio.

GREAT WHIG MEETING.

At a meeting of the Whig members of the General Assembly of Maryland, and other Whigs of the State then present, held in the Hall of the House of Delegates, February 19, 1838, pursuant to notice, the meeting was organized by the appointment of the following officers:

RICHARD THOMAS, President,
EDW. N. HAMBLETON, } Vice Prests
WILLIAM H. TUCK, }
TEAGLE TOWNSEND, } Sec'ys.
AUGUSTUS R. SOLLERS, }

On motion, Messrs. Alexander, Lee, White, McDaniel, Jones, Kerr, and Hughes, were appointed a Committee to prepare resolutions for the considerations of the meeting. Whereupon the committee presented the following preamble and resolutions, which were adopted:

That the exalted patriotism of Henry Clay, his unwavering devotion to the principles of political liberty, and his profound knowledge of the interests of the people preeminently qualified him to discharge the duties of President of the U. States.

That in commending Henry Clay to the suffrages of the people of the United States, this meeting expresses the comon sentiment, and obeys the common will of the Whigs of Maryland, to whom he is endeared by the purity of a life devoted to the public service, and the matchless eloquence with which he has at all times defended the Constitution of his country.

That we are united together in defence of the principle of constitutional order against the present administration of the General Government, which wields its power and patronage at the bidding of irresponsible advisers, in contempt of the constutional restraints, and in opposition to the best interests of this country, and we are, therefore, ready to abondon the man of our choice in favor of any other person of tried capacity and patriotism, who may be more acceptable to the Whig party throughout the Union.

That for the purpose of securing a proper concert of action amongst all who are engaged in defence of our common liberty against unconstitutional domination, it is expedient that a convention be held at some suitable time and place, which shall consist of Delegates from the several States, and be empowered to nominate proper candidates to be supported by the whig party, for the offices of President and Vice President of the United States. That in such Convention, each State ought have a number of votes equal to the aggregate number of its Senators and Representatives in congress, but the Whigs in each State shall be at liberty to determine for themselves the number of their Delegates and the manner of electing them.

That our Whig Senators and Representatives in Congres, in concert with the Whig Senators and Representatives in Congress, from other States, be requested to appoint a suitable time and place for holding a National Convention for the purposes before stated.

That this meeting recommend the State Convention proposed to be held shall nominate two Delegates to the National Convention. One of whom shall be taken from the Eastern and the other from the Western Shore. That two delegates shall be taken from the 4th Congressional District and 1 Delegate shall be taken from each other Congressional District in this State. For the selection of those Delegates it is recommended that the Whig voters shall assemble in each Election District of the several Counties within ninety days next before the day to be appointed for holding the National Convention, to appoint one or more Delegates to represent such Election District in Congressional District meeting, and that the said Delegates meet in some suitable place in thier respective Congressional Districts and there nominate a Delegate or Delegates to represent each Congressional District in the National Convention as before stated— and in case of a vacancy, then that the remaining Delegates shall be empowered to supply such vacancy.

On motion, Resolved that the proceedings of this meeting be signed by the officers, and published in the Whig papers of the State.

Resolved, that thanks of this meeting be tendered to the officers for the manner in which they have respectfully discharged their duties.

RICHARD THOMAS, President.

AUGUSTUS R. SOLLERS, }

The latest and most excrutiating case of absence of mind is related in the Cincinnati News. A gentleman of that vicinity, at the dinner table, took the knife and fork and carved himself instead of the turkey: After completely dissecting himself, he asked the turkey with commendable politeness, what part it would have. The lack of reply brought him to his sense.

'I never shot a bird in my life,' said one to another. 'I never shot at any thing in the shape of a bird except a sqirrel, and that I killed with a stone—when it fell from a tree into the river, and was drowned,' was the reply.—(N. O. Herald.

The above is a tougher, but we tell a better and a truer one, perpetrated in this city by a Yankee. 'That ar' dog (pointing to a large white one) aint got a bit of black about him, except his ears, and they're brown.'—Phil. Ledger.

It is said that that Gen. Jackson is daily annoyed by the receipt of innumerable shinplasters, of the most ridiculous character, sent to him by mail. Such cruelty to the ex-President meets our unqualified disapprobation. He is old and infirm, and such annovances, opperating on a temper not the most lamblike, may prove the death of him. A tale in the "Arabian Nights," tells of an old Caliph who died at the sight of his own brood of hump backed children, and why may not the poor old man at the Hermitage expire in looking upon his miserable litter of ill begotton shin plasters?—Prentice.

OBITUARY.

Pallida mors æquo pulsat pede pauperum tabernas, Regumque turres.

Died in this Town on Monday night last in the 51st year of his age JOSEPH HOPKINS Sr. after a short illness. His family have suddenly lost a friend, and the community a most valuable citizen. The writer of these lines announces his death with the most poignant sorrow. He knew him intimately, and feels that he has indeed lost a friend. But it is not wise to grieve over misfortune. Adversity overtakes us all.—None can escape the poison of its chalice; and as we receive it to purify our nature, as it is the means by which we are exalted to that high sphere which encircles the throne of God—let us bow to him by whose fiat calamity befalls us.

The subject of this notice has been a citizen of this place for many years, and during the whole period of his long residence among us, was universally loved and respected. He was in truth a man integer vitæ, scelerisque purus. His hand was at peace with all men, and his tongue was free from slander and detraction. Enemies he had none. Whoever knew him was his friend. Inflexibly honest, free from all deception, of unbending integrity, he never even suspected another of dishonesty or meanness. Mens sibi conscia recti emphatically belonged to him. He has suddenly been taken from us, and now his arms are folded in the cold embrace of an everlasting sleep. But although dead he yet lives.—His pure spirit lives to drink unspeakable happiness from the River of Eternal life, and to dwell forever in the realms of unfading light. B.

Feather Dressing!

THE inhabitants of Cambridge and its vicinity are respectfully informed, that the subscribers have put in operation in an adjoining room at their Steam Mill, in Cambridge, a machine for extracting the gasses and all impure substances from new feathers, and cleansing the dust and filth from old and worn feathers while the operation restores them to lightness and elasticity.—The beds sent to the machine in the morning, may be returned at night, in perfect order for use. The public are invited to call and examine the Machine, which will be in operation about three months. All orders sent promptly attended to.

The following names among many of the citizens of Cambridge bear witness to the merits of this renovating process.

ROSS & VANE.

Having had feather beds dressed in the above mentioned machine we find them so much improved that cheerfully recommend the opperation to all who would consult their interest or comfort in this matter.

DORCHESTER COUNTY,—To WIT:

ON application to me, the subscriber, one of the Justices of the Orphans' Court of Dorchester County, by Denwood H. Brinsfield, of the said county, stating that he is in confinement for debts which he is unable to pay, and praying to be relieved thereform agreeably to the acts of Assembly for the relief of Insolvent Debtors, a schedule of his property and a list of his creditors and debtors, on oath, so far as he can at present ascertain the same, being annexed to his petition, and the said Denwood H Brinsfield being in actual confinement, and I being satisfied that the said Denwood H. Brinsfield, has resided for two years last past in the State of Maryland, and he having taken the oath prescribed by the act of 1805, and given bond with sufficient security for his appearance before the judges of Dorchester County Court, to be held at Cambrige, in the said county, on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in April next, and at such other time or times as the said Court may direct, to answer the allegations of his creditors, and having complied with the requisitions of the act of December session, 1825, and the several supplements thereto, by executing a deed of all his property, real, personal or mixed, to Elijah Brinsfield, appointed by me trustee to the said Denwood H. Brinsfield, and the said trustee having given bond with approved security for the performance of the trust and certified in writing to me that he is in possession of all the estate of the said Denwood H. Brinsfield, mentioned in his schedule—I do, therefore, order and direct that the said Denwood H. Brinsfield, be discharged from his imprisonment, and that he be and appear before the Judges of Dorchester County Court on the day above mentioned; the same time is appointed for his creditors to attend, and show cause, if any they have, why the said Denwood H. Brinsfield, should not obtain the benefit of the said Insolvent Laws—And I do further order direct, that the said Denwood H. Brinsfield give notice to his creditors by causing a copy of this application to be inserted in a newspaper published in Cambridge, three months before the said day, and to be continued in such newspaper once a week for four successive weeks, and also a like copy to be set up at the Court House door three months before the said day.

Witness, my hand, the 30th day of August, 1837.

CAUTION.

Beware of violating a law when the public are injured,—The habit of hiring negroes of late years and giving them permission to act for themselves, has become so common, that it is difficult to get hands willing to be controlled after such liberties have been granted them, & hands are so scarce that many farmers are put to great inconvenience, & some have not one to assist, even to feed their stock, owing mostly to this illjudged practice of obliging a set of ungrateful negroes. Information will therefore be given and the penalty of the law enforced against all who continue this injurious and illjudged practice, and to prevent cost and trouble, it is hoped that those now offending will take immediate steps to prevent it.

WANTED two likely boys from 8 to 15 years old, to remain in the State. Enquire at this office.
