"I had scrofula and erysipelas for eighteen years, until I heard

Of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery," writes Mr. Hilery Koons, of Queens, W. Va. "When I commenced to take this medicine I weighed one hundred and thirty pounds. I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and three vials of his 'Pleasant Pellets,' and am glad to say I feel like a new man. I now weigh one hundred and seventy-five pounds. When I had used one bottle of the medicine I could feel it was helping me. I realize Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best medicine on earth."

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and entirely eradicates the poisons that breed and feed disease. It cures scrofula, eczema, erysipelas, boils, pimples and other eruptions that mar and scar the skin. Pure blood is essential to good health. The weak, run-down, debilitated condition which so many people experience is commonly the effect of impure blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery not only cleanses the blood of impurities, but it increases the activity of the blood-making glands, and it enriches the body with an abundant supply of pure, rich blood.

FREE. Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 31 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

A PLUCKY WOMAN.

Started With Two Cows and now has a 700-Acre Farm.

The pluck of an Indiana woman in Colorado and her reward, including a return to her old home to enjoy Christmas, are demonstrated by Mrs. Mary Forest, sister of Judge Alfred Ellison, of Anderson. With her two sons, Mrs. Forrest went to Colorado 17 years ago, hoping to establish a home where it would be possible for them to earn more money.

Mrs. Forrest entered land 60 miles from Denver, and after fixing up a rather rude dwelling she exhausted her funds by purchasing two cows. It was necessary to haul wood many miles in winter, and water also had to be brought for a long distance. Mrs. Forrest sold milk and butter while going after wood and water, and by gradually netting some money she bought more cows, and at the end of three years she had sixty head of cattle on her farm, and some improvements were being made about her place, which finally became an important stock ranch.

Three years ago Mrs. Forrest sold her Colorado property, realizing enough money to buy 700 acres of land in Oklahoma, and divided one-half of the large tract between her sons, who chose to stay in the West. Mrs. Forrest desired to return to Indiana, and it is probable that she will remain here.—Indianapolis News.

A Talker's Misadventure.

The following story sounds as if it could not possibly be true, yet true it is: A man who prides himself on having a knowledge that might literally be called encyclopedic was in the company of a set of men who work so hard as a rule that they do not take life very seriously in their hours of leisure. He began to address them on literature, and you will presently be able to imagine the sort of stuff he talked. It was not long before he touched on George Meredith and expressed opinions which might have caused an outburst. Instead of this some one suggested deferentially that he talked too generally; that he would be better comprehended if he illustrated his views by a reference to any one of the novels. He thought the suggestion a wise one and left the choice of the book to his audience. The original proposer of this eminently reasonably plan immediately suggested "Tess of the D'Urbervilles," and the other went ahead, obligingly accepting the choice. What he said does not need to be recorded, but it is rather notable that to this day he does not know the trick that was being played on him because he is being preserved for some future occasion.—London Post.

FARM NEWS.

In many cases it will pay to buy hay and stuff to feed the pigs.

The best and cheapest pork is from hogs that have never been wintered.

A pig that is stunted early in life should never be used as a breeder.

Alfalfa is said to be the best green feed for poultry in winter.

The health of the hogs depends in a large measure upon their surroundings.

Hand separators for farm use are much discussed and have many strong advocates.

Too early killing of brood sows is one of the reasons why pork raising is not profitable.

In nearly all cases hogs are easier kept healthy if they have a free range than if closely confined.

Canned eggs are being talked about. English confectioners and bakers are said to make a considerable use of them.

Some of the New Jersey shore farmers not only use oyster or mussel mud very satisfactorily as a fertilizer, but they make quite a business of gathering and selling it for fertilizer.

Choosing the Name.

"My dear, I have been reading up within the past week, and I think I have a name for the baby," said Mrs. Greening one day.

"You have, eh? What is it?"

"I read that Phœbus, the god of day, comes up bright and beautiful in the morning; that he lights the world; that without him"—

"Now look here, madam; let's have no foolishness here. You can't call that child by any such name. Did Phœbus of history yell from 11 p. m. to 3 a. m. and intermittenly from 3 to 7 o'clock? I myself am doing the god of day business in the matter of getting up, and am not going to divide the honors. If you want a mythological cognomen for that destroyer of rest I have it."

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Greening, with considerable asperity.

"Aurora!" brutally yelled Elisha. Then he left the house.

Found a Cure for Indigestion.

I use Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for indigestion and find that they suit my case better than any dyspepsia remedy I have ever tried and I have used many different remedies. I am nearly fifty-one years of age and have suffered a great deal from indigestion. I can eat almost anything I want to now.—Geo. W. Emory, Rock Mills, Ala. For sale by M. A. Toulson, Druggist.

BLUE JAYS HUNT SNAKES.

The Birds Have a Very Strong Antipathy Toward All Venomous Reptiles.

It is commonly supposed that all birds, at least those of the small species, fall easy victims to snakes. There are stories innumerable of the manner in which the reptiles charm the feathered creatures and end by swallowing them at a gulp. But there is one bird that is not susceptible to the fascination of his snakeship's eye, and that is the common blue jay, found in the woods all over the United States, says the Chicago Chronicle.

A gentleman who has lived for many years in the country asserts positively that the blue jay can speak at least one word as plainly as a human being and that word is "snake." "When a boy," he said recently, "I killed many snakes that would have escaped but for the sharp eyes of the blue jay. Some species of reptiles will climb small trees and bushes and trap their prey in that manner. They feed on small birds principally. But they never catch a jaybird. He is the snake detective for the whole bird family. As soon as a blue jay sees a snake he sounds the alarm. You can hear him squall a quarter of a mile away, and he articulates the whole 'snake' as plainly as I can. He will hop about on a limb and yell 'snake! 'snake!' in such a thrill, excited voice that pretty soon others of his tribe hasten to the scene, and all join in giving the alarm. All other birds, hearing this warning cry, fly away, but the bluejay splits his throat with cries until the enemy has disappeared:

"A snake once caught a blue jay by charming him. The jay yelled 'Snake! snake!' at the top of his voice. Several hundred blue jays flew to his rescue and pecked the snake's eyes out, and literally picked him to pieces, thus saving the life of their companion. Ever since that time the blue jay, upon seeing a snake, gives the alarm and all blue jays within hearing will hasten to the scent and lend their voices to the warning. This may sound incredulous, but its true," said the narrator in conclusion. "Not at all, but it's a good story to forget under the circumstances," added the nervous young man, who at once proposed the consideration of the relation of the jocund grape to the doctrine of metempsychosis.

SPINSTERS HAUE A UNION

Bachelor Girls of Advanced Age Propose to Abolish the Male Celibates.

The spinsters of Adams county, Pennsylvania, with headquarters at York, have recently been forming old maid societies to engage in various social diversions calculated to attract the bachelors. reports an eastern exchange.

At Gardner's Station the Old Maids' union held a left hand social recently. at which all the old maid societies of the county were represented. The social was held at the home of Rev. Mr. Rhoades and Miss Ida Rhoades was assisted in receiving by Miss Aggie Zeigler and Miss Rebecca Myers. The guests were required to receive the refreshments with the left hand, the right hand of each guest being tied behind her.

These resolutions were unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, the need of a good husband has long been felt as a pressing necessity, and repeated efforts have been made to induce the legislature of Pennsylvania to enact a law that would compel all bachelors throughout the commonwealth to marry; therefore;

"Resolved by the Old Maid society of Gardner's Station. That we do hereby most earnestly request (not our present representatives of Adams county to use their best efforts and cast their vote for the enactment of a law that will compel all bachelors to marry, but) all men between ages of 28 and 45, who are in hunt of good companions address the secretary, Old Maids Society, Gardner's Station, Pa.

Without Prejudice.

Mr. Nesbit, who had painted a picture of the noble red man in war paint and feathers, wanted an unbiased opinion of his work. His wife said that the picture was the best thing of the kind that she had ever seen. His dearest friend, too, was decidedly enthusiastic. Both declared, in short, that any one would know at a glance that it was intended for an Indian.

"To tell the truth," said Nesbit, looking somewhat doubtfully at the picture, "I haven't a great deal of confidence in either of you. You always praise everything I do. Now I'm going down to the street to see if I can't find some person who can be depended upon to give me an absolutely unprejudiced opinion of this picture—a child, for instance. Children always tell the truth."

Five minutes later Nesbit returned with three small boys whom he had found playing marbles, in the street.

"Now, boys," he said, "take a good look at this picture. I'll give each of you 10 cents if you'll tell me just exactly what you see."

"A rooster!" shouted the three boys simultaneously.—Youth's Companion.

Essay on Hens.

A boy who was required to write an essay on hens produced the following:

"Hens is curious animals; thep don't have no nose nor teeth nor no ears. They swallow their whittles whole and The outside of hens is generally put inchew it up in their crops inside of 'em to pillers and into feathers dusters. The inside of a hen is sometimes filled with marbles and shirt buttons and sich. A hen is very much smaller than a good many other animals, but they'll dip up more tomato plants than anything that ain't a hen. Hens is very useful to lay eggs for plum puddings, Hens have got wings and can fly when they get frightened. I cut off a hen's head with a hatchet, and it frightened her to death."

Started His Collection.

A woman who was riding uptown on a Broadway car the other afternoon, proved her possession of at least a modicum of wit. When the conductor passed up the aisle on his quest for fares she handed him a quarter, he giving her in return two 10-cent pieces. On his return from the forward end of the car, she said:

"Conductor, one of these dimes is a Canadian piece, and I will thank you to give me another piece of money for it."

The conductor had evidently received his training on an East Side route, for he immediately began to bluster.

"What's that matter with it? Ain't that good enough money?" he demanded.

The woman quietly said, "I would prefer American money, if you please."

"Well, I wish I had a thousand of 'em!" grumbled the conductor, but he made no motion to comply with her request.

"Very well," was the instant reply, "I will give you this one to start your collection."

The laugh that greeted this thrust was even too much for the Hibernian wit of the conductor, and he quickly fished out ahother dime and then made his escape to the rear platform.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Hard for any woman to do housework—to attend to daily duties with a constantly aching back. Every woman should learn the cause of backache and the cure.

Doan's Kidney Pills

relieve a bad back and cure it—cure every kidney and bladder disorder, from backache to complicated cases.

Mrs. Sarah Walmer, widow of the late Jacob Walmer, the wagon maker of Union Deposit, who spent thirty-one years of her life in that corporation, but is now living with relatives at the corner of North Sixth and Peffer streets, Harrisburg, Pa., says: "From a fall I received on a wet boardwalk in my yard about sixteen years ago, when I injured my back, I had any amount of trouble with my kidneys, having severe backache very near all the time. It hurt me to stoop or lift anything of ordinary weight. Many times at night I could not turn in bed on account of sharp pains. Medicine did very little to relieve, and I had about given up taking any when I saw such glowing accounts of Doan's Kidney Pills. I concluded to try just once again, and I got a box of them at Forney & Knouse's drug store, on Market street. They did me a wonderful amount of good and relieved my aching back."

Doan's Kidney Pills sold at all drug stores; 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.
