Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

staple products are obtained, location and form of important bodies of land, the oceans, principal rivers, homes of the races of men, location of the principal countries, some of the characteristic differences of government, the centers of population, something of the manner of living, the great cities, centers of commerce and manufacturing routes of trade and travel— in short, such familiarity with maps, such general knowledge of Geography as will make it easy for them to look up any matter of special importance to them. That is about all of the Geography any of us retain. This is about all of our knowledge of Geography that we trust.

In History omit all unimportant incidents and dates, and teach such things as are within children's comprehension and will give them a fair understanding of cause and effect in the growth and development of our country and the formation of the character of our people. Mere interesting incidents should be left for supplementary reading, details of battles with very few exceptions should be omitted.

There is not too much drill given in the fundamental principles of arithmetic nor in the ordinary business forms, bills, accounts, etc.; not too much drill for rapidity and accuracy in the four fundamental operations; but subjects useful principally to builders, bankers, brokers or to me or other special occupations, would be better left to those learning those occupations.

There has not been too much instruction given in Grammar, but too much time may have been given to a very poor substitute for Grammar. While I believe I am not insensible to the advantages of giving a child a many-sided education, of developing the whole character, the whole mind, that I am not insensible to the advantage of beginning subjects to be learned as early as possible, I do not believe that the mere sipping at all of the Sciences which has been attempted produces the best results.

While I have not covered nor attempted to cover the whole course of instruction I hope I have made plain what I believe should be some of the limitations set upon our schedule of studies for our Primary Schools. I believe that if instruction were given in the line I have indicated and text books of the kind here described were put into the hands of our pupils they could be made thorough in the fundamental principles in the branches taught and if at the same time there are accessible to them books that treat the subject more fully, and all are encouraged in consulting these, when special information is desired, we could carry along the two classes, those who can, and those who cannot attend regularly, in a parallel course, and would be possible to give all the essential threads of each so that both classes could go into the high schools or the business school with much chance of success.

THE HIGHER LIFE.

Selected Gems of Thought from Press and Pulpit of all Sects.

"One thing have I desired of the Lord." Such was the word of the Psalmist. Above and beyond all else was the passion to be in the presence and well pleasing to God. In this he knew he should have all other treasure. The one thing in all life is Christ. In Him are all things. Missing Him, we lose all.—Rev. Cornelius Woelkin, Baptist.

What is a Christian ?

A man who does the same things as other good men, but with a different motive, a different method, a different aim. The motive is devotement to Christ. The method is by the strength of the immanent God. The aim is for the love of brother man.—Rev. T. C. McClelland.

Our Relation to the Church.

Let the people who shall gather here for guidance and inspiration in the right way take as their ideal not how much can we get, but how much can we give by coming here. Let our motto be, "Not to be ministered into, but to minister."—Rev. T. E. Potterton, Universalist.

Peninsula Peach Crop.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company gives the estimate of peaches at Greensboro Station, Caroline county, this season at 280,000 baskets. This is the largest estimate from any station on the Peninsula with the exception of Bridgeville, Del., which is estimated a few hundred baskets more than Greensboro. There are a great many young orchards which will come into bearing this season, the fruit of which will be a very fine quality.

Unfavorable Report on Target Practice Proposition.

The State Board of Education met in Ocean City Wednesday, Zadoc P. Whorton, presiding. The resignation of Assistant State Superintendent J. Montgomery Gambrill was received and accepted. Mr. Worthington reported unfavorably upon the recommendation of Adjutant General Riggs that target practice be a part of training of boys within the high schools. The system was thought to be too expensive.

PLANETARY VITALITY.

Earthquakes Can Take Place Only on Living Globes.

A moonquake is now unthinkable, because the moon is as dead as a doornail. Our satellite is "ever foreshadowing our own ultimate doom, like the mummy at Egyptian banquets," but in the meantime, if the Edinburgh Review has correctly conceived the teachings of seismology, the inhabitants of earth may console themselves for the havoc wrought through earthquakes by reflecting that they demonstrate the vitality of our planet. In that distant past when the moon actually quaked there may—some scientists declare there must—have been forms of animation upon its surface. "Though the moon, by reason of its smaller size, was bound to lose its atmosphere, it must have taken millions of years to do so, and there may have been time for the cycle of life, from the primeval germ up to sentient beings and down again to the hardiest lingering plant cells, to run its full circle." The writer in the Edinburgh Review continues to develop his line of thought:

"Earthquakes are a sign of planetary vitality. They would seem to be characteristic of the terrestrial phase of development. Effete globes like the moon can scarcely be subject to the stress to which they are due, nor can they be very suitably constituted for the propagation of elastic waves. Inchoate worlds, such as Jupiter and Saturn, are still less likely to be the scenes of reverberating concussions. Their materials have not yet acquired the necessary cohesion. They are pasty or fluid, if not partially vaporous. On the earth the seismic epoch presumably opened when, exterior solidification having commenced, the geological ages began to run. It will last so long as peaks crumble and rivers carry sediment, so long as the areal distribution of loads fluctuates and strains evoke forces adequate for their catastrophic relief.

"Our globe is by its elasticity kept habitable. The separation of sea from dry land is thus and not otherwise maintained. The alternations of elevation and subsidance manifest the continual activity of this reserve of energy. The dimensions of the globe we inhabit depend upon the balance of pressure and expansiveness. Relaxation or enhancement of either instantly occasions a bending inward or an arching outward of the crust. Just by these sensitive reactions the planet itself shows itself to be alive, and seismic thrillings are the breaths it draws."—Current Literature.

Early and Late Easters.

Easter Sunday cannot happen earlier than March 22 or later than April 25, but between these two dates it has a range of thirty-five days. At the time of the council of Nice, 325 A. D., it was agreed by the representatives present that from that time forward Easter should fall on the first Sunday after the full moon occurring on or next after March 21, or, in other words, "on the first Sunday after the first full moon after the sun crosses the line." Since the above arrangement was adopted by the great ecclesiastical council referred to Easter has fallen on March 22 and on every date between that and April 25, but it is only after long intervals of time that it occurs on its extreme dates. In 1886 Easter fell on April 25, its latest possible date, an event which will not again occur until the spring of 1943. The last time Easter fell on its earliest date was in 1818. This will not happen again until after this century.

Failure.

"Very frequently," says a New York lawyer, "there is an element of unconscious humor in the findings of a jury. To my mind, the best I ever heard in this connection was the verdict brought in by a coroner's jury in Michigan, who were called upon to pass upon the case of the sudden death of a merchant in Lansing.

"The finding was as follows: 'We, the jury, find from the physician's statement that the deceased came to his death from heart failure, superinduced by business failure, which was caused by speculation failure, which was the result of failure to see far enough ahead.'"—Harper's Weekly.

The Thermometer Habit.

The clinical thermometer habit has taken such a hold on many persons that one physician has forbidden his patients to have them on pain of refusing to treat them if they disobey. The clinical thermometer fiend is a person who keeps one of these medical registers in the house and the instant that he, more often she, has a headache, real or imaginary, thrusts the tube under her tongue and takes her temperature. Finding it varying one millionth part of a degree from normal, she thinks she is about to have some deadly illness, packs off to bed and sends for the doctor.

Good Temper.

Good temper is the most contented, the most comfortable, state of the soul; the greatest happiness both for those who possess it and for those who feel its influence. With gentleness in his own character, comfort in his home and good temper in his wife the earthly felicity of man is complete.—Anon.

The Answer.

"Why should we cast our bread on the waters?" asked the Sabbath school teacher.

"Becus dey'll arrest youse fer t'rowin' scraps in de street," was the knowing response of little Mickey Flynn.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Principle of the Hinge.

The principle of the hinge is seen in almost every joint in the animal kingdom. No animal is without a hinge joint somewhere or other in its anatomy.
