Peace Reigns In Disputed Oyster Areas

Peace apparently had returned to the oyster industry this week with all but three of 40 dredgers victorious over the Conservation Commission, in its effort to prohibit dredging in closed areas. Nineteen of 22 oystermen tried at Annapolis for dredging on reserved areas were freed because of lack of evidence, but the outcome of 18 similar cases tried at Crisfield, brought a challenge to enforce its ban on two areas.

Those areas, Great Rock and Ditch Bank, have been closed for more than two years, State's Attorney F. Kirk Maddrix told Magistrate E. P. Wyatt, and the State law prohibits the closing of such areas for longer than two years.

Magistrate Wyatt acknowledged Maddrix's recommendations and observed that "if the two year period is not long enough (for oyster cultivation) it is up to the legislature to lengthen it."

The ruling paved the way for a possible showdown in higher courts of the commission's authority to keep oystermen from closed areas in the future.

The three found guilty at Annapolis drew suspended fines of $100 and costs each. They were Dewey Anderson, E. Shores, and Ralph Gladen.

Charges against the others were dismissed when Captain William P. Marshall of the Herring Bay Conservation Station testified he took the names of the dredge boats operating in the closed area but could not identify the captains.

Magistrate Joseph M. Armstrong asked the men to promise they would observe the closure laws in the future.

After promising cooperation, the men were told they could reclaim their oyster cargoes after they were culled to conform to legal size. The skippers had been ordered not to dispose of their cargoes until the charges had been settled.

In recommending that the charges against the men tried in Crisfield be dropped, Maddrix said that "in 1927 the legislature passed a law limiting the power of the commission as to the time within which the commission may keep a reserved area closed. That limitation is two years."

The 50 acres of Great Rock were closed by the Commission November 1, 1935, he said, and the Ditch Bank was legally closed September 1, 1936. Maddrix said neither had been opened since.

Christmas Decorations On City Hall Very Atrractive

Cambridge's City Hall has been elaborately decorated for Christmas. Santa Claus and his reindeer, a lighted Angel, a Christmas star and a lighted Cross, supplementing the lighted Christmas bulbs, have transformed the building into one of the most attractively decorated structures on the Shore.

Various changes in the decorative scheme will be made from time to time between now and Christmas, and toward the latter part of next week, Christmas carols will be broadcast from the Engine House over an amplifying system installed in the clock tower.

Red, green and blue lights, entwined in laurel ropes, have been used in decorating the building. Using only red and green lights, the laurel has been used to outline each of the doors and windows of the engine house, while the entrance to the office of the City Council has been outlined with blue lights. Directly over this is a wreath of red lights. Windows in this part of the building are also outlined with red and green lights.

Immediately above the engine house is a sleigh, drawn by six reindeer and carrying Santa Claus and his pack of toys. The design is lighted at the base, and can thus easily be seen. Just above Santa Claus is a cross of red lights, and above this a lighted angel. A brilliant star tops the grohp.

The base of the clock tower is lighted with vari-colored bulbs and the interior of the tower which houses the clock, is illuminated with a soft red light. Surmounting the tower is a design of red and green lights, giving the appearance of a lighted Christmas tree.

Sometime this week a row of two hundred stars will be stretched from the clock tower directly over the Santa Clause design.

William Guy Burton was in charge of the decorations. He was assisted by Brice Kinnamon, whose wife, designed the Santa Claus and reindeer scene and the angel.

Sarah, I was down town and saw the book written by S. H. Jones, so I bought a lot of them for Christmas.

YES, you decide, there must be a Santa Claus!

Someone with a special knack of knowing just what you like, and how to give it to you!

No one else could produce a car that's quite so much fun as this sightly, sprightly Buick—quite so eye-gladdening a thing to see, or so prideful a carriage to drive!

Step on the waiting treadle—and you feel like Johnny, when he first throws the switch on his new electric train! Sit back in its deep cushions—revel in its steady, fluid, flowing gait—and you wouldn't change places with any king on his gilded throne!

Your very outlook on the world is brighter through these new wide-paned windows—you've up to 413 more square inches of safety glass to see through, and you see everything better.

Your shortest trip takes on holiday quality from the flashing performance of this mighty Dynaflash straight-eight engine. On slippery winter streets or bumpy country roads, you'll sing constant praises of its jar-smothering BuiCoil Springing.

To see this sweet dream of a car, of course, is to feast your eye on the trimmest, cleanest, sleekest, neatest piece of smooth-rolling beauty that ever rambled the highway—but you've more to congratulate yourself on than that.

You drive a bargain, when you drive this Buick, mister! For with all its size, all its comfort, all the spirited smoothness of its great eight engine, this Buick costs less than last year, less than you'd think from its looks—less even than some sixes!
