SEEDING TIMOTHY ALONE IS HIGHLY RECOMMENDED.

Improved Quality Of Hay and Higher Yield Result From That Practice.

NICHOLAS SCHMITZ,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

It has long been the custom in Maryland to sow timothy with wheat in the fall, adding clover in the late winter or early spring. The seed is placed in the grass-seed attachment of the grain drill and allowed to fall either behind or in front of the hoes, usually in front. This method of seeding is cheap and gives fairly good results in Garrett, Alleghany, Washington and Frederick counties. In the other timothy growing counties this method is unsatisfactory, except on fertile soil in a high state of cultivation. The low yields and poor quality thus obtained are not due so much to poor germination and poor stand in the spring after seeding as to the growth of weeds.

Where the old way of seeding timothy does not give satisfactory results the only remedy is sowing the timothey, or timothy and clover, alone in early fall, not with a grain crop. The plan is to seed the wheat without the timothy in the fall and the clover in the spraing; then, as soon as possible after harvest, the stubble should be plowed down and very firm, finely pulverized seed bed prepared. This, to be sure, will involve an extra plowing and preparing of the seed bed, but the increased yield and quality of hay more than pays for the extra labor. A full crop will be ready for cutting the next June or July, which will be the same time as if it had been seeded with the wheat, the stubble of which was plowed down. Timothy may also follow such crops as early potatoes, early tomatoes, cow peas cut for hay, etc.

If fertilizer is sown with the grass, then seeding with the grain drill as when sowing with wheat in the fall, is by far the most economical way of seeding. But the chances for getting a perfect stand are greatly increased if the seed is dropped behind the hoes and a light harrow or weeder run over the field for covering. On soils not subject to much washing or baking after heavy rains, the seed may be dropped in front of the hoes and a roller run over the field to assist in covering. This firms the soil around the seed and brings the moisture to the surface, which adds greatly to the chances of getting a good stand.

Where fertilizer is not sown with the grass the seeding can be done more quickly with a wheelbarrow seeder, covering with a spike tooth harrow or weeder, and, wherever conditions permit, following with the roller.

POULTRY PROFITS DEPEND ON PROPER FEEDING.

Do your hens have free ra hey do, are they all this range do the
of the questions you will have to consider before you can feed your hens intelligently. Hens require certain things in their feed. They get some of these things naturally and some have to be supplied from the feed bin. You may think that proper feeding of poultry is merely giving them what they will clean up properly, but this is far from right.

MAKING HEALTHY GROWTH.

We have obtained good results with corn, 250 lbs., wheat bran 100 lbs., middlings 100 lbs., beef scraps 50 lbs., and salt 1¼ lbs., as a feed for hens which are confined in a small yard. But suppose these same hens were running out on a large range in the spring time where they could pick up worms and insects all day, do you think they would require the same feed? For example take meat, the most expensive ingredient in the feed. Would it be necessary to give them so much when they are picking up meat all day in the form of insects and worms?

Then supposing you cheapen your ration during the spring time by cutting down on the meat feed, what are you going to do next fall and winter when the natural meat supply cannot be obtained by the birds? Will you keep on feeding nothing but grain feeds, like so many do, or will you put in some of the meat that the birds require for egg production? Hens cannot lay eggs unless they have the raw material out of which to manufacture them. In the springtime they get meat feed naturally and lay eggs. In the fall and winter they cannot lay eggs unless you give them meat in some form.

Note:—The various forms of milk can be used to supply the animal or meat feeds spoken of above. Nothing is better as a feed for laying hens or growing chicks Roy H. Waite

BIRD FOR WILSON NUPTIALS.

Philadelphian Trains Canary to Sing the Wedding March.

Solos by a canary bird will be heard at the wedding of President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, if Uriel Davis, musical director at the Bellevue-Stratford, receives word that such music would be acceptable. Davis caused a mild sensation last summer among patrons of the hotel's roof garden when he induced the tiny bird to warble a tune while he accompanied on the piano.

No sooner had announcement of the President's engagement reached the public than Davis began to prepare Andy, his protege, for the wedding. Alone in a room on the top floor of the hotel Andy and his trainer began a series of deligent lessons. Passages from the wedding march from "Lohengrin" and Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" were pounded out by Davis on his piano, with Andy as his only listener. The little bird took aptly to both tunes and has fairly well mastered them. Inside of several weeks, in plenty time for the wedding, the bird will be able to sing both numbers without hesitancy, Davis says.

DU PONTS COINING $100,000,000 A YEAR.

Profits Will Take Care of all Baldwin Stock Company Cares to Buy.

The Wall Street Journal says:

The du Pont Powder Co. is making 750,000 pounds of powder a day on which there is a profit of at least $350,000 a day.

On this basis the profits each week run up to about $2,000,000, or in excess of $100,000,000 annually. And this from powder alone. In the year ended December 31, 1914, gross was about $25,000,000, and in 1913 about $26,675,000. Net averaged about $5,000,000 in 1914 and 1913.

The profits this year in excess of the hundred million can be easily depended upon to take care of the 6% dividend on the $59,661,000 accumulative debenture s ock, which only requires $3,579,000. This $100,000,000 powder profit in excess of debenture stock dividend requirement is equivalent to over 170% on the outstanding $58,854,200 common stock, and is available for any purpose to which the management wants to put it.

This will take care of all the Baldwin Locomotive stock the du Ponts care to buy. They have been and still are the big buyers. Or it can be utilized for another melon cutting.

There is a growing belief that all the Pont melons have not yet been cut.

In the car were Mr. Shriver's son and daughter and another lady. They secured another car and proceeded on their way to their home near Tolchester.

Using The Mails to Defraud.

In four years the American people have been swindled out of the huge sum of $239,000,000 by fraudulent schemers who have used the mails to defraud. The Government is doing all it can to stop these swindles by means of "fraud orders" which bring about the punishment of the swindlers and return of the money, as far as possible, to those who sent it. In the four years, about 15,000 such cases have been investigated.

One case is recalled, of an "infallible potato bug killer," which could be obtained of the inventor by sending two dollars. Those who sent the money received by mail two small blocks of wood, with directions to place the potato bug between them and press them firmly together. There are plenty of other schemes as fraudulent and nearly as absurd.

Paint or Not.

Is a horse worth more or less after feed?

Hay and oats are high to-day; shall I wait to-day and feed him to-morrow?

That's how men do about painting their houses and barns and fences. Paint has been high for several years; and so they have waited. Some are still waiting.

Their property drops a trifle a year and the next job of paint creeps-up creeps-up creeps-up; it'll take more paint by a gallon a year; they don't save a cent, and the property goes on suffering.
