Dodge Brothers Are Fourth In Production.

According to Automobile Topics, a trade authority, recent figures submitted to Wall Street interests with regards to the volume of business done by the various motor car companies during the first nine months of 1915, put Dodge Brothers in fourth place.

Dodge Brothers have no dealings with the financiers, as the business is owned entirely by the brothers, John F. and Horace E., but the figures were submitted by another company which placed itself considerably further down in the list.

The accomplishment of Dodge Brothers in one year of starting the manufacture of motor cars and then jumping into fourth place in the nation is regarded as the most amazing performance in the industry, which has always been full of eurprises.

No announcement on production plans for next year has been made by Dodge Brothers but it is known that several new buildings are being rushed to completion and that the total floor space of the plant will total more than 60 acres when these new buildings are occupied.

IMPROVING MARYLAND FARM CONDITIONS

Boy Prize Winner In Maryland Week Contest Gives His Views—County Demonstration Agent.

JESSE M. HUFFINGTON,
Wicomico County.

In bringing a new spirit into our agriculture, we must work for more profit and pleasure and the improvement of rural living conditions. The productive capacity of our farms as well as the productive ability of our farmers must be increased. Our farmers must have more money to improve their farms, to support their churches and schools, and with which to pay their taxes. To accomplish this, they must be able to supply more and better produce and not be handicapped by unsatisfactory market conditions. To protect themselves, our farmers must be united, in encouraging the growth of institutions for co-operative enlightenment and protection. Finally, our schools must be organized to equip our boys and girls with the knowledge suited to their needs as the farmers and farm women of the next generation.

The County Demonstration Agent.

One way to do this is by bringing them in touch with a County Demonstration Agent. The business of such an agent is to induce the farmer to cultivate a small piece of his ground according to scientific methods, proving the value of these methods for himself on his own farm. This method of teaching makes their value better known to him than if he had to depend entirely on the literature and lectures of the Agricultural College, Experiment Station, Department of Agriculture, and other agencies of information. The County Demonstration Agent makes it his main business to secure co-operation between the farmers of his county, the Agricultural College, the Department of Agriculture, and the various other institutions and organizations that are connected with the farming life of his section. In addition to arranging for field demonstrations, the County Agent gives lectures, visits farms, co-operates with the public schools in starting and conducting Boys' and Girls' Clubs, and does everything possible to bring about better farming conditions. He should pay especial attention to the business end of farming, encouraging the individual farmer to keep accurate accounts of expenditures and income. He should also assist in forming co-operative marketing organizations, through which lower rates of transportation and better prices for his products may be secured by the farmer.

Improved Living Conditions.

Every community should have at least, good dirt roads although more improved roads are desirable. Telephones, trolley lines, rural delivery of mail, and any advance whatever in securing better communication and transportation should be promoted.

Any spread of disease should be promptly checked, and protection against typhoid germs, insects, flies, mosquitoes, etc., should be provided. The community should co-operate actively with the local health officer in maintaining sanitary conditions.

The better arrangement of farm buildings for promoting attractiveness, convenience and efficiency should be encouraged. The more general use of labor saving machinery would do away with much of the hard labor and drudgery on the farm and in the home. The gasoline engine, electricity, and riding attachments to farm machinery are good examples of such labor savers.

The social life of our communities needs improving. We should have more social gatherings and institutions to promote culture, recreation and co-operative activity. Local improvement associations, Women's Clubs, Boys' and Girls' Clubs, Granges, and the like all work together in making better living conditions possible.

MACHINE SHED AND REPAIR SHOP FOR THE FARM.

G. H. ALFORD,
Maryland Agricultural College.

There should be a machine shed and a repair shop on every farm. One of the big losses on many farms is the deterioration of farm machinery. The greater part of the loss sustained is due to negligence in housing the farm implements. I have had the use of a workshop practically all my life, and I cannot understand how farmers get along without one. The shop on the home-place was a necessity, and it is yet.

The machine shed and the repair shop may be under one shed. The building to be efficient, need not be very expensive. There should be proper drainage to insure dry storage. There must be ample protection against sun, wind and rain. The location must be convenient so as to be easily reached with all kinds of farm machinery. It ought to be so constructed that it is as easy to put the tools away as it is to have them out, and it must be so arranged that the different implements can be reached without any great inconvenience. A very convenient shed consists of a building of medium width, say 18 or 24 feet, the length being governed by the number of machines and implements to be stored and the size of the repair shop which should be a part of the building. A building 18x35, 25 feet long for implements and 10 feet long for repair shop is usutily considered ample room for 160 acres of land.

The shed need not be built very high, unless one desires storage room on the second floor.

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ oz. of glycerine. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the desired shade. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair, and removes dandruff. It is excellent for falling hair and will make harsh hair soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off.

Subscription to the Transcript $1.00 per annum.
