THE HOMELIKE STORE

There is a ring of genuineness and sincerity to the greetings of Baltimore's Best Store to its visitors.

That is one of the many reasons why it is the most popular shopping place, not only for residents of Baltimore, but for the thousands of visitors who come to Baltimore to shop during the year.

YOU should make yourself acquainted with the Hochschild, Kohn & Co. Store the next time you visit Baltimore. You will find it not only a pleasant, but an economical shopping place—for it sells only dependable goods, and, in most cases, sells them at a price no higher than is ordinarily asked for inferior articles.

Bear in mind, too, that whatever you buy here is returnable, for exchange or refund, without question or argument, if it does not prove entirely satisfactory.

METHODS OF EDUCATION.

Plea For Fewer Studies and Longer Time Devoted to Them.

The defect of American education is diffuseness. The children are bothered and confused by being dragged across the surfaces of too many studies in a day. All of our schools, both public and private, and all our universities and colleges suffer from this same national vice, which is a vice in the American character, a weakness in our temperament. It ought to be met and corrected in every field of life.

What we need is depth. Depth can be imparted through the teaching of anything. It can be imparted through Latin grammar, through handwriting through carpenter work, through arithmetic or history. The one element required is time. Depth cannot be imparted quickly or in many subjects at once. Leisure is necessary—a slowing down, a taking of things, not easily, but slowly, determinedly, patiently, as if there were plenty of time and nothing else counted.

This is the road to rapid and brilliant work, and there is no other. The smallest children should be set on this road and guided and governed and helped and slaved over by the best of your masters. One subject understood means the world mastered. My friend Frederick Mather of Yale puts the thing as follows:

"If one of our small colleges should, after the manner of the English colleges, devote itself to a few old fashioned subjects, such as Latin and Greek, and some kind of history and philosophy, and should really teach these things, its graduates would soon be so famous and so eminent that banks and railroads would be clamoring for them at the college doors."

The epigram summarizes the present needs in American education.—John J. Chapman in Atlantic Monthly.

GARRICK'S MOBILE FACE.

Its Varying Expressions Put Gainsborough In a Fit of Temper.

At an entertainment at which Gainsborough and the famous actor David Garrick were present an ardent admirer of the great artist declared, according to "Bibliothek der Unterhaltung und des Wissens," that Gainsborough had never failed to take a person's likeness in a portrait, no matter how difficult the subject might be. Garrick thereupon asserted that Gainsborough could not paint his likeness and begged to be allowed to sit for his portrait. Gainsborough, pleased at the commission and expecting to find it very interesting to paint the actor's expressive countenance, gladly consented. Garrick then made a secret wager with the artist's friends that he could prove to them that there was one face at least that Gainsborough could not paint.

The results of the first sitting were very satisfactory to the complacent artist. At the second sitting, however, Gainsborough was made uncomfortable and nervous at finding it necessary to make several alterations in his work. At the third sitting his displeasure became extreme when, on comparing the half completed work with Garrick's face, he saw that the two bore so little resemblance to each other that the portrait had almost to be repainted. When Garrick appeared for the fourth time, with the most innocent expression imaginable, and begged the painter to begin work Gainsborough, thoroughly angry, broke out:

"I've no use for you! You can ape thousands of faces and never have one of your own!"

Smiling, Garrick left the studio to announce to the artist's friends that he had won the wager.

Hunting the Elusive Spark.

To find a dead spark plug I take an ordinary hammer and hold the wooden handle in my hand, says James Atcherson in the Farm and Home. Laying the face on the cylinder head, I bring the claws slowly toward the head of the plug. If the plug is alive the spark will leap across when the right gap is reached. If no spark is made the plug is dead. This method does away with the danger of receiving a shock, as you are holding the wooden handle.

Imprisoned by Her Tongue.

In translating the Bible for the Zulus and for some other aboriginal peoples it is necessary to have two versions, one for the women and one for the men. The Zulu law compels a married woman to cut herself off from her father-in-law and all her husband's male relations. She is not allowed to pronounce their names even mentally. As a result, there is a distinct dialect among Zulu women.—Christian Herald.

Earthquake Regions.

The most shaken countries of the world are Italy, Japan, the Pacific slope of South America, Java, Sicily and Asia Minor. The lands most free from earthquakes are Russia, Canada, Scandinavia and Africa. The United States and Australia are to a large extent unshaken by earthquakes save on the Pacific (in the United States) and in a few localities in the island continent.—New York American.

The Difficulty.

"My wife's mad with me and has gone on a hunger strike."

"Then let her go hungry till she comes to her senses. Why should you worry?"

"Because I'm the one that's going hungry."—Baltimore American.

Seed Potato Growers Form Important Organization

Western Maryland Farmers Unite With Other Business Men To Promote A New Industry.

On Friday, April 14th, there was organied at Frostburg, Maryland, The Western Maryland Seed Potato Growers' Association. The object of the organization is to promote the growing and marketing of seed potatoes grown under such conditions of altitude and climate as make the seed as well suited to the requirements of Maryland and Virginia potato growers as is seed grown in Maine, Michigan or other higher altitudes.

The final organization of this association, which will be incorporated under the laws of Maryland, represents the culmination of the efforts of a number of banks and business men of Allegheny county, aided by Mr. John McGill, Jr., county agent for Allegheny county, and Professors Temple and Bomberger, of the State College of Agriculture.

The bankers and business men financed the project by procuring a carload of the best Maine seed potatoes for distribution among the farmers of Allegheny and Garrett counties. Mr. McGill and Professor Temple superintended the growing of last year's crop, which is to serve as seed for this year's planting. Professor Bomberger prepared the plans for the incorporation and management of the organiation of the growers. In the final steps of the organiation valuable service was rendered by Mr. C. E. Bassett and O. B. Jessness, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

On Friday the 14th instant, about thirty seed potato growers of Western Maryland met and adopted a constitution and by-laws, elected officers and directors and outlined the work for the current season.

This organization represents the development of a new business for Maryland. Heretofore Maryland potato growers have depended upon northern grown potatoes for seed. It has been demonstrated by the Experiment Station that seed grown at the high altitudes prevailing in the mountain region of Western Maryland are fully equal to northern grown seed. It remained for the farmers of that region to undertake the growing of seed under proper regulations for guaranteeing a standard product free from disease in order to establish the business upon a sound commercial basis. The organiation effected will do this; and, as the business expands, the potato growers of Maryland will not be compelled to send outside the State for standard seed. In time the seed potato industry of Western Maryland should assume large proportions and hundreds of thousands should be saved to the potato growers of the State. Already the farmers of Garrett county are preparing to follow the example of their Allegheny county neighbors. The organization formed contemplates the affiliation of all the seed potato growers of Western Maryland with the association formed at Frostburg.

PROTECT YOURSELF IN BUYING CRIMSON CLOVER SEED.

C. P. SMITH,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Last year several farmers made the mistake of buying seed of crimson clover that was not properly tagged as to germination—lacking the germination test entirely, or without the date when the test was made. Were you one of them? Every lot of a bushel or more (10 pounds after October 1st) should be labeled to show as much information as: "Germination 90 per cent, tested June, 1916."

One lot of seed sampled last summer by the seed inspector was tagged 96 per cent germination—no date given. The sample was secured August 21 and our test of a month later, about as soon as the lot could have been planted in the field and there judged, showed a germination value of 32½ per cent; a December test later, 24½ per cent.

The prospect for crimson (scarlet) clover seed for 1916 is very poor: limited supplies and correspondingly high prices, some low purities and especially low germination. If you MUST have crimson clover seed regardless of cost and quality, do not risk buying seed that is offered you without the germination as shown by a RECENT test—i. e April, May, or June, 1916. If the germination is given as 50 per cent, sow twice as thick as you usually do; if 25 per cent, sow fully four times as thick as with good seed.

If you desire a more recent or confirmative test, send a fair sample direct to the State Seed Laboratory, College Park. While the complete laboratory test takes four days, the second day or first count is commonly sufficient to judge the general germination value of the stock. When requested, the report will be based upon this first count. KNOW WHAT YOU ARE PLANTING.

Gardens.—Keep up a succession of garden crops. Continue to plant beans, tomatoes and sweet corn. Tomatoes should be staked and pruned. The shoots appearing in the axils of the leaves should be removed as rapidly as they appear. All garden crops should be cultivated often and shallow. Horse cultivation is best. If this is not practicable, wheel hoes should be secured. A small outlay in good garden tobls saves time and labor.

Allen's Foot—Ease for the Troops.

Many war zone hospitals have ordered Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic powder to shake into the shoes and use in the foot-bath, for use among the troops, because it gives rest and comfort to hot, tired, aching, swollen, tender feet and makes walking easy. At druggists everywhere, 25c.
