AMERICAN POLICIES

If the American people want Socialism they are entitled to have it. But let the American people thoroughly realize what Socialism involves. It means the completed and unquestioned control by politicians over the nation's instruments of production, to the exclusion of private enterprise. It means that all would work for the government, and that all men's jobs would be at the mercy of the officials in power. It means the absolute elimination of State's Rights and local control and regulation of local resources. Don't think that Socialism here would ge basically different from Socialism in Europe.

So far as the war effort is concerned, socialization of the power industry would in all likelihood decrease power output. As a writer to the Spokane, Washington, Spokesman Review pointed out, "Political control is efficient only in placing inexperienced and unqualified persons in positions where experience and qualifications are essential. Political management will not increase our power or war production."

Will we permit free enterprise to be destroyed at home while we fight against its enemies abroad? The future of the nation is at stake from within as well as without.

DRIED FOOD FIELD OFFERED U. S. AID

The Agriculture Department has offered technical and financial assistance and an insured market to encourage canners and processors to expand vegetable dehydration facilities.

Because of a shortage of tin and other containers and a necessity of conserving transportation space, the department said greatly increased quantities of dried vegetables were needed.
