Must Obtain License Tags Before January 1.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Baughman has made public the following notice:

"The Maryland office will start to issue licenses on December 1, and as I have decided not to allow any additional time to auto owners, all must have licenses on their cars on January 1. Heretofore some extension of time has been given to owners, but this year our office will be ready to accommodate all comers. This year we expect to be flooded, we are now issuing something around 75,000 licenses; while all of these do not require re-issuing about 50,000 will.

"The new law will compel all owners of cars to become more familiar with their machines than heretofore, as all applicants will have to fill out their own blanks, stating the exact diameter of bore of cylinders. Heretofore the office force has been in the practice of helping fill out these applications by referring to last year's registration. The law has been changed and the burden of this work must be done by the owner.

"Instead of paying a fee of from $10 to $15, as has heretofore been required, the license for next year will be issued and paid for by car. This charge will be 50 cents on all pneumatic tired motor vehicles except those for hire; such motors will be charged $1 per horsepower the minimum charge to be $5. Solid tire machines will have to pay $8 for the first ton and $6 for each ton thereafter. Motorcycles are to pay $3 regardless of horse power.

Peninsula Horticultural Society.

The Peninsula Horticultural Society will hold its thirtieth annual session in Dover, Del., January 9, 10, 11, 1917. It will be attended by the most practical fruit growers of the Delaware and Maryland Peninsula who will discuss their problems of growing and marketing fruits and vegetables. The program has not been completed, but assurances have been received from Prof. J. C. Whitten, of Missouri, and Dr. J. P. Stewart, of Pennsylvania, that they will be present, and a number of other outside speakers have been invited to attend the meeting.

The workers in the Horticultural Departments of the Delaware Agricultural College and the Maryland Agricultural College will be present to read papers on their specialties and to answer questions.

The exhibit of fruit and vegetables to be made at the time of the meeting will be held in the State Armory, together with the exhibit of the Delaware State Corn Growers' Association. These exhibits are expected to fill the entire Armory and will doubtless prove very attractive and instructive.

The program for the Corn Growers' meeting will follow the program of the Horticultural meeting and will be carried through Friday, January 12, when the meeting will close. More than $2,000 will be awarded in prizes for the fruit, vegetables and grains that will be on exhibition, and upon the whole the occasion will be one of great interest and value to the farmers on the peninsula. Admission will be free to all the meetings and all the exhibits.

County Superintendents Organize.

The county superintendents of public education throughout the state met in Baltimore last week and perfected a permanent organization by electing Edgar W. McMaster, of Worcester county, as permanent president, and H. W. Caldwell of Cecil county, as secretary-treasurer. President McMaster was authorized by the association to appoint an executive committee of five of which the president and secretary will be members ex-officio.

The movement to organize the public school superintendents started some four years ago, and the association has grown to such proportions that it was necessary to permanently organize. The association is one of the first to be started by any state in the union. The school superintendents desire to bring about greater uniformity of supervision and the administration of educational affairs throughout the state.

Big Profits in Potatoes.

Five thousand dollars net profits from 50 acres of potatoes during the past year is the record made by Robert W. Knight on the Cunningham farm in Delaware. The 17,500 baskets of potatoes produced were sold for 76 cents per bushel.

The land on which this record crop was grown had never before produced more than $500 worth of farm products. The land was cut both ways, plowed six inches deep and fertilized heavily. Choice seed potatoes were used and the crop carefully sprayed and handled throughout the season.

Thanksgiving In Venezuela.

In a big armchair in a large New York hotel sat a tall, distinguished looking man.

"This is the best Thanksgiving I ever had," he said, fairly glowing with contentment. "It makes me think in contrast of the worst I ever spent. I was in La Guayra, Venezuela, sent down by a New York newspaper to wait for a war that never happened. I was forced to spend Thursday there, and the prospect of a dinner at the hotel there was nauseating. I had been there before, and I knew the meal would be odds and ends floating in grease. With such thoughts in my mind I strolled down the main street of the town. Ahead of me I saw a man, tall, thin, unmistakably American. He went into a building. I quickened my pace and found it was the American consulate. I rapped. The gentleman opened the door himself and, seeing I was an American, asked me to come in and have Thanksgiving dinner with him.

"The man was Thomas Moffat, then consul. A box from Brooklyn contained turkey, pumpkin pie, slightly the worse for wear, to be sure, and even cranberry sauce."—New York Tribune.

Nearing the Year's Close.

A famous English novelist tells of a hillside Scotch village with no special beauty, but which once every twenty-four hours at the close of day becomes transfigured. The kirk and cot stand bathed in sunset glory. So the year's doings and happenings, though commonplace they seem, find their transfiguration. It is when toil is requited, harvests garnered and fireside reunions are enjoyed and memories record God's unfailing goodness in his house. Such transfiguration is Thanksgiving day.
