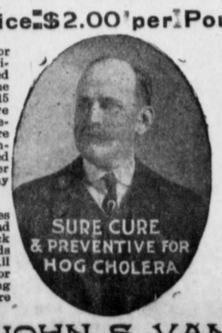
HOG CHOLERA CURE.

Price $2.00 per Pound.

Mr. Wm. Cooper, Jr., near Worton Station, came to me on Friday, Feb. 4, 1916, and purchased 1 lb Cholera Remedy. When he returned home, two of his 15 hogs were dead and four were down with the disease. He telephoned me Sunday that all were getting better, and wanted another package by mail. He called Tuesday and said all were better and eating. He did not lose any after giving the remedy.

Mr. Thos. Smith, Queen Annes county, near Chestertown, had 22 large shoats. Six were sick and refused food. Used 2 pounds of remedy, cured all but one. All are well and two left over for another year. I advise keeping Hog Cholera Cure on hand. Sure preventative and cure.



Mr. George Hatcherson, near Chestertown, had forty hogs. They all died but eight. When he began giving it to the jewelers, four were down. All are up and well now.

Mr. Frank Skirven, a few miles from Chestertown, says he had twenty hogs, lost ten. I heard of your remedy and tried it on the other ten. Lost one and the rest are all right.

I sent John Comegys of Black's Station, this county, Hog Cholera Cure free of charge and he came in and insisted upon paying for it, as he said it was the best he ever tried, and farmers should know about it, as hogs were the most profitable thing on the farm.

PREVENT DISEASE IN FARM ANIMALS

SUPPLY PLENTY OF CLEAN FOOD AND PURE WATER.

HEALTH MOST IMPORTANT

Keep Stables and Yards Clear of Trash and Filth.

College Park, May 31.—Under present conditions the need of preserving the supply of farm livestock is most urgent. The spread of disease in any community would seriously affect its food supply and make it a burden on other sections that are now taxed to the limit to meet the demand for meat. Maryland farmers are urged by S. S. Buckley, specialist in animal industry for the State Agricultural Extension Service, to take every precaution to prevent the spread of disease and maintain the healthy growth of all livestock grown for meat. In a contribution to "Successful Farming," he says: "To maintain the health and productivity of your animals, the following rules must be observed:

"1. Feed only sound, wholesome grain and fodder. Supply pure water, plentiful in amount, and frequently.

"2. Supply salt regularly. Rock salt contains the necessary minerals for body wants.

"3. Charcoal may be given occasionally with benefit and may be fed with the salt.

"4. Feed with extreme regularity, and according to the requirements of animals, in quantity and nutrition value.

"5. Developing or growing animals, females with young, pregnant females, males for breeding purposes, work animals and animals not at work require different feeds, in quantity and quality.

"6. Animals at pasture require attention. Pasturage may be adequate or it may need to be supplemented with addtional feed.

"7. Make all changes in rations gradually. Add any new addition to the ration in small and successively increasing amounts until the desired mixture is secured.

"8. Unwholesome food is frequently produced on farms, and, being unmarketable, is kept for feeding purposes. Such foods may be fed safely if proper methods are employed. Any dirty, damaged, rotten and apparently unwholesome grain is readily improved by passing once or twice through a grain fan.

"9. Keep stables, pens and yards clear at all times. Put the manure on the fields where it is needed and burn all trash. Drain any low places that collect water, and make stagnant pools impossible.

"10. Use plaster on stable floors to dry them and white wash on walls for the purifying effects.

PROFITABLE ONION GROWING.

College Park, May 31.—The need of growing staple vegetables to maintain the food supply of the country is becoming more and more apparent daily. Probably no vegetable offers better opportunities for profit than the onion owing to its scarcity and its food value. To supply the many demands made of the Maryland Agricultural Extension Service for information regarding onion growing, S. B. Shaw, specialist in horticulture, has prepared a special circular on the subject. Mr. Shaw says in part:

"Onions may be grown from either seed or sets. A great many growers are now raising their crops direct from seed in a single season. The seed is sown thinly in drills 12 to 15 inches apart, as early in the spring as the soils can properly be prepared. From 4 to 5 pounds of seed are required for planting an acre. The young plants should be tended carefully and kept free from weeds, and when well started should be thinned to stand 2 inches apart in the row.

"If onion sets are planted it will take about 8 bushels for one acre. The sets are put in 2 inches apart, in rows the same distance apart as for seed.

"As soon as the young seedlings start sufficiently to show the rows, cultivation should begin. This is important for two reasons. First, to destroy all weeds when they are small and most easily killed, and second, to establish a mulch of surface soil that will conserve moisture.

"Onions need plenty of moisture for their development. Water in the soil rises slowly to the surface, and if the crust formed after a rain is not broken, the moisture evaporates and passes into the air. Cultivating after each rain breaks this crust and forms a mulch of fine, loose soil which checks evaporation."

Wherever possible, means should be provided for ranging chickens, especially growing chicks, in the corn field. This is especially true this year when feeds are so high, for the chickens will be able to get a considerable amount of nourishment from the bugs and worms and green stuff that they will be able to pick up. Furthermore, during the hot weather, the shade of the corn is an excellent thing for them, and the chickens do very little damage and considerable good to the corn field.

Precautions, however, should be taken against hawks, crows, and other enemies, if the corn field is situated where they are troublesome.—Roy H. Waite, Poultryman, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Rev. Dr. Herbert Randolph, of Grace Church, Wilmington, Del., delivered a most masterly address to the High School graduates last Friday evening. Dr. Randolph's theme was: "Use Your Talents, or You Will Lose Them." His tribute to President Wilson and the great part he is playing in the world crisis was beautiful, and brought rounds of applause from the great audience.

Rev. Dr. Lincoln A. Ferris, pastor of Mount Vernon Place M. E. Church, Baltimore, who delivered one of the finest lectures ever heard in Chestertown some weeks ago, has resigned to accept a call to San Diego, Cal. He will leave for his new work early in July.

The Christian Endeavorers of Baltimore city to the number of 800 or 1,000 visited Chestertown last Saturday afternoon, arriving here at about 5.30 o'clock and remaining for a half hour. They were met at the wharf here by a big delegation from the local Christian Endeavor Society, and quite a number of the excursionists paid short, but pleasant visits with friends. The visitors were charmed with the beauty of Chestertown.

Rev. H. A. G. Westerfield, a prominent member of the Wilmington M. E. Conference, died in Port Deposit last Sunday. Funeral services were held on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. A. Gerry, in Port Deposit. Interment was made in Hopewell cemetery.

A number of folks from town motored over to Centreville last Sunday evening to hear Rev. Dr. W. R. Graham preach. Just as the doctor was about to announce his text the lights went out and there was no preaching. Of course the large congregation was disappointed.

Kennedyville Items.

Miss Blanche Scotton of State Normal School has returnd home. Miss Blanche graduated this year and now is fit to become one of Kent's best school teachers.
