Mr. George Hatcherson, near Chestertown, had forty hogs. They all died but eight. When he began giving it to the jewelers, four were down. All are up and well now.

Mr. Frank Skirven, a few miles from Chestertown, says he had twenty hogs, lost ten. I heard of your remedy and tried it on the other ten. Lost one and the rest are all right.

I sent John Comegys of Black's Station, this county, Hog Cholera Cure free of charge and he came in and insisted upon paying for it, as he said it was the best he ever tried, and farmers should know about it, as hogs were the most profitable thing on the farm.

THE TORPEDO SPEAKS.

Tells Its Own Story of Its Doings In War and Peace.

Well, well, well! I am surprised! With all the notoriety that I have gained and the destruction that I have caused that nobody would tell you what I am made of and what I am capable of doing!

I am twenty-one feet in length and twenty-one inches in diameter, and ordinarily I am assembled in three parts known as the tail and afterbody, the flask and the head. My tail contains the machinery which turns the propellers that force me through the water; the flask carries my fuel in the form of compressed air that sends me on my mission of destruction—and when I start, woe unto them who may be in my path, for I am the most dreaded weapon that ever sailed the seven seas.

I cost $9,000 and can run for 10,000 yards before my energy is used up, traveling that distance at the rate of about fifty feet per second. I am a monster made of forged nickel steel and weigh 2,000 pounds and have turbine engines, which are capable of making 1,760 revolutions per minute. In my head I carry a high explosive called guncotton, which explodes upon contact.

In times of peace, when I am practiced with, the guncotton is taken out of my head and water is substituted to compensate for its weight. When I have been fired in practice and have made my run and expended all my energy I have lost sufficient weight to float to the surface until I am picked up, recharged and refired.—A. Freed, Gunner's Mate, U. S. N., in Washington Star.

THEY FEAST ON SNAKES.

A Queer People With Queer Tastes Are the Philippine Pygmies.

High up on the slopes of Mount Mariveles, in the Philippine Islands, dwell the last remnants of an ancient and most mysterious race, the Negritos, or "little negroes." Scientists differ hopelessly as to their origin and history, but the traveler who is fortunate enough to penetrate into their carefully hidden villages finds the quaint little people extremely interesting.

Though disinclined to work, the Negrito is indefatigable in the chase. He will hunt all day without eating anything but the mango or banana that he seizes as he rushes by. If dogs are scarce for any reason women are pressed into service, and these go loping through the brush, yelping in imitation of the canines.

Sometimes a beater will emerge from the brush carrying a pig he has encountered and killed or, more important still, bringing news of the sighting of a python. In this case the whole hunt is called in and its energies directed to the capture of the big snake, which when killed is carried in triumphal procession to the village, where it furnishes a feast.—World Wide Magazine.

An Interesting Test of Wits.

A game that affords fun and an interesting test of wits is "your native town." At a party it will tide over any dull moments that threaten. Provide the players with paper and pencils and ask them all to write the places of their birth. Then give them a limited time in which to make a sentence consisting of words that begin with the letters in the name of the town and follow the same order.

For example, if the city is Baltimore, then the sentence might be, "Behold, a large town in Maryland, old, rich, enterprising!" The more aptly descriptive of the town the better is the sentence. At the end of a specified time have the players read their sentences, and, if you wish, award a prize to the best one.—Youth's Companion.

Igorrote Dog Eaters.

During our trip through the Philippines we visited the dog market, where the Igorrotes bought and sold half starved canines with visions of a great feast off the protruding ribs. The Igorrotes are about as much like the cultured Filipinos as they are like cultured Americans or cultured Japanese. But the fact that the Igorrotes eat dogs has done as much to prejudice us against the Filipinos as has the story that the Chinese eat rats to turn us against the well bred Chinese, who not only do not eat rats, but even have a distaste for caviar and limburger.—Maynard Owen Williams in Christian Herald.

High Prices.

In San Francisco in 1849 clerks in stores and offices had munificent salaries. Five dollars a day was the smallest stipend even in the custom house, and one preacher was paid $10,000 a year. Laborers received $1 an hour. A pick or a shovel was worth $10 and a butcher's knife $30. At one time the carpenters, who were getting $12 a day, struck for $16. But it should be noted that prices were exceedingly high also.

When Youth's Life Is Shaped.

"The hand that rocks the cradle rules the world?" Nonsense. It only handles the material. The time of the shaping of life is from twelve to eighteen years old. That is the formative period. All great educators know that. Professor Earl Barnes.

Its Kind.

"I hear Bangs is getting on so well that he gave his wife a machine."

"He's getting on so well because he gave her the machine. It is a washing machine."—Baltimore American.

Great men are they who see that spiritual is stronger than any material force; that thoughts rule the world.—Emerson.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Having accepted a State position, I have rearranged with Mr. Edgar P. Beck, to take care of my insurance business during my absence from Chestertown. Mr. Beck is an experienced Insurance man, and I am confident he will look after he interest of my patrons faithfully and well. All my business and the companies I represented have been transferred to his agency. Thanking you for past favors and hoping to retain your business, I am,

Very truly yours,

Council of National Defense, Washingtion.

BY HERBERT HOOVER.

The weapons in this war are fighting men, munitions, food, ships and finance. If we are to defend liberty in this year 1917, all these must be upon such a scale as will demand the energies of our whole people. In previous wars a small proportion of the community went to fight, another small portion was devoted to their support, but the great bulk of the nation did "business as usual."

Autocracy has been for years organizing its resources to the end that they have placed one out of seven of its population on the fighting line and have so mobilized the civil population as to afford them complete support. They have suppressed production of every luxury and reduced even every necessity. Their arrogant confidence that they will become "Masters of the World" is based upon their belief that the materialism, the selfishness and the jealousy of individual interest in Democracy makes it impossible for it to organize such a strength. They do not deny the bravery of the men of Democracy in battle, but they comfort themselves in the belief that we have not the self-sacrifice at home for their support.

Our problem is not alone to mobilize our civillian population for the support of our fighting men, but we also have the responsibility of the support of the fighting men of our allies. And food is not the least of their necessities. One of the great European statesmen has said, "the war will not be won by the last 500,000 fighting men, but will be won by the last 500,000 bushels of wheat. It is within our ability to give this last 500,000 bushels, but only if we organize to produce, organize to save, and organize to supply all.

We must feed our Allies that their people may remain constant in the war. Liberty cannot be obtained upon the empty stomaches of the women and children. Through the drain of war our Allies have steadily decreased in food production and other agencies also curtailed their supplies. Out of our abundance, by eliminating waste and extravagance, it is in our power, and in our power alone, to hold the wolf from the door of the world. Our obligation is greater than war itself, humanity demands it of us.

We must save in all food. We must eat plenty, but wisely and without waste. If we save in our consumption and our waste we can increase our surplus to export, if we substitute other commodities for those we can export, we can further increase this surplus.

Furthermore, by our economies we can save a major portion of the cost of the war. We can increase our ability to subscribe to Liberty Loans. If we save food we can lower the price of living to our own people and relative the strain and distress under which they labor today. We can only do this by organization so that there shall be no profiteering from our economy, that all shall bear the burden equally.

The Food Administration is a volunteer organization to be endowed with powers by the government. This volunteer organization is not to be limited to a few executives in Washington. We are solicitious, nay, anxious, to secure as actual members of this volunteer effort, evey man and every woman, every boy and girl in these United States who will undertake the task with us. There is no dictatorship in volunteer effort. It is by voluntary mobilization that we can answer autocracy with democracy. It is as great in efficiency and greater in spirit.
