FIRST AMERICAN TRAITOR.

Benjamin Church Played That Role During the Revolution.

Benjamin Church, a graduate of Harvard and a member of a distinguished New England family, was the first American traitor. Church became eminent as a surgeon and as a writer of verse and was one of the leading Whigs in the years just preceding the Revolution. At one time he was a member of the Massachusetts provincial congress and became a member of the famous Boston committee of safety.

The committee's plans were consistently revealed to General Gage, governor of the province, but the source of the leak was not discovered until after the Revolution was fairly under way. At the time of the actual break between the colonies and England Church was assigned to an important colonial hospital. In September, 1775, a letter from Church to a British army officer, containing secrets of the colonist army, was intercepted. Church had intrusted the letter, written in code, to a woman, to be conveyed to one of General Gage's staff officers. The woman confessed her share in the treasonable move and implicated Church.

The traitor was taken before a council presided over by Washington, and he there practically admitted his guilt. Congress, acting on the suggestion of the trial council, ordered Church kept in close confinement in the Cambridge jail, "without the use of pen or paper, and that no person be allowed to converse with him except in the presence and hearing of colonial officers until further orders from this or a future congress."

Church's health failed rapidly, and he was permitted to undergo banishment to the West Indies. He sailed in a merchant vessel in May, 1776, and neither the ship nor Church ever was heard of again.—Kansas City Star.

PACKING GOLD IN KEGS.

Care Taken In Preparing the Money Metal For Shipment.

When a gold shipment is to be made by ship the necessary number of kegs are taken in a truck to the assay office, where they are received at a door in the rear. The gold bars are then placed on a hand truck and rolled to the kegs. In the presence of the agents of the shippers and of the officials of the assay office the bars are packed in the kegs, and sawdust is placed around them to prevent abrasion. When the heads of the kegs have been placed over the packed bars a piece of red tape is stretched across and fastened between the chine and the edge of the head. The seal of the shipping house is then attached to the head and the bottom of each keg.

After sealing the kegs are rolled to the wagon and lifted on. It takes two men to handle each keg, as there are ten bars to a keg, with a total gold weight of about 180 pounds. It may be mentioned that $100,000 weighs in gold about 380 pounds, and $1,000,000 weighs 3,800 pounds. Some time ago one of the officials of an assay office compiled figures showing how much gold a man could actually handle. It is a singular thing that great difficulty is experienced in carrying gold for any distance. The weight seems to be more "dead" than that of other metals, although that may be an illusion.

For instance, the average man could carry 100 pounds of gold one mile without much discomfort. Its value would be about $20,000. A strong man could carry, say, 150 pounds a mile, reaching the end of his journey with just under $40,000. A very powerful man might carry 200 pounds, or nearly $53,000, a mile without exhaustion. Carrying gold is almost as difficult as getting it.—Los Angeles Times.

Courage In Elephants.

An elephant with a good mahout gives perhaps the best instance of disciplined courage—courage, that is, which persists in the face of knowledge and disinclination—to be seen in the animal world. They will submit day after day to have painful wounds dressed in obedience to their keeper and meet danger in obedience to orders, though their intelligence is sufficient to understand the peril and far too great for man to trick them into a belief that it is nonexistent. No animal will face danger more readily at man's bidding—London Spectator.

True to His Promise.

"William, when we were married you promised to stop smoking."

"So I did, my dear. You will remember that I said to you, holding up three cigars I had in my pocket, 'As soon as I smoke these I'll quit.'"

"Well, you haven't kept your promise."

"Oh, yes, I have. You see those three identical cigars are still unsmoked. I have them in my desk."—Boston Transcript.

Young Men Should Enlist Now

The recent announcement that the destroyer force of the United States Navy will be largely increased, under the plans of Secretary Daniels, means that young men going into the Navy at this time will get the advantage of soon being assigned to this branch of the service. Many of the destroyers are now in European waters.

For those of the Navy who take an active part in the early developments of the war with Germany there will be an unlimited future in the Navy. With this branch of Uncle Sam's fighting forces more than doubled the possibilities of rapid promotion are greater than ever before, and the young man who enlists in the Navy to-day is opening a great field for himself.

There is still an urgent need for men in the Navy and recruiting officers all over the country are working hard to bring the right class of men into the Navy.

Full particulars of Navy enlistments can be obtained from the nearest postmaster; directly from the Navy Recruiting Station, Calvert and Lexington streets, Baltimore, or from the Navy Recruiting Sub-stations at Cumberland and Hagerstown.

THE TEST THAT TELLS

Is The Test Of Time. Many Chestertown People Have Made This Test.

Years ago this Chestertown citizen told in a public statement, the benefit derived from Doan's Kidney Pills. The statement is now confirmed—the testimony complete. Instances like this are numerous. They doubly prove the merit of Doan's Kidney Pills. Can any Chestertown reader demand more convincing proof? It's Chestertown testimony—it may be investigated.

Harry Hodgkin, N. Mill St., Chestertown, says: "I had various symptoms of kidney trouble. There were pains through my loins and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. My supply of Doan's Kidney Pills was obtained at M. A. Toulson's Drug Store, and this remedy made me feel better in every way." Statement given May 27, 1911.

On August 17, 1916, Mr. Hodgkin said: "You can still keep right on using my name as you have been, because I still have a high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. I have had no kidney trouble since they cured me."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Hodgkin has twice publicly recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.
