POETRY.

Down by the Bunch of Rushes.

A SONG.

BY A CONTRIBUTOR.

Night's shadows flee, and morning's dawn
Comes with rosy blushes,—
I fly to meet my Molly Bawn,
Down by the bunch of rushes.

And if perchance, I wait forlorn,
A sigh from my bosom gushes;
But joy rests there when Molly Bawn
Hastes to the bunch of rushes.

I hold her to my heart all warm,
And kiss her lips as luscious;
Oblissful hour—dear Molly Bawn—
Down by the bunch of rushes.

When evening's shades fall thickly 'round,
And night all nature hushes;
I sleep and dream of Molly Bawn,
And of the bunch of rushes.

And oft I bless the happy morn
(With pride my cheek oft flushes,—)
When first I met my Molly Bawn,
Down by the bunch of rushes.

MISCELLANEOUS.

For Young Men to Think of.

In the latest of his preachings upon popular proverbs, Dr. Holland closes a thoughtful and suggestive discourse on sensual pleasure, with the following earnest remarks to young men, which deserves to be thought of:

"Oh! if this world could rise out of this swamp of sensuality, rank with weeds and dark and deadly vapors—full of vipers, thick with pitfalls, lurid with deceptive lights—and stand upon the secure heights of virtue, where God's sun shines, and the winds of heaven breathe blandly, healthfully, how would human life become blest and beautiful? The great burden of the world rolled off, how could it spring forward into a grand career of prosperity and progress? This change for this country rests almost entirely on the young men of the country.

It lies with them more than any other classes, to say whether this country shall descend still lower in its path to brutality, or to rise higher than the standard of its lofty dreams. The devotees of sense themselves have greatly lost their power of good, and comparatively few will change their course of life. Women will be pure if men will be true. Young men, this result abides with you. If you could see how beautiful a flower grows on the thorny stock of self-denial, you could give that plant the honor it deserves. If it seem hard and homely, despise it not; for in it dwelling the beauty of heaven and the breath of angels. If you do not witness the glory of its blossomings during the day of life, its petals will open when the night of death comes and gladdens your eyes with their marvellous loveliness, and fill your soul with their grateful perfume."

The Wife.

It needs no guilt to break a husband's heart. The absence of content, the mutterings of spleen, the untidy dress and cheerless home, the forbidding scowl and deserted hearth—these, and other nameless neglects, without a crime among them, have harrowed to the quick the heart's core of many a man; and plunted there, beyond the reach of cure, the germ of dark despair.

Oh! may woman, before that sight arrives, dwell on the recollections of her youth, and cherishing the dear idea of that tuneful time, awaken and keep alive the promise she so kindly gave. And though she may be the injured, not the forgetting wife—a happy allusion to the hour of peaceful love—a kindly welcome to a comfortable home—a smile of love to banish hostile words—a kiss of peace to pardon all the past, and the hardest heart that ever locked itself within the breast of selfish man, will soften to her charms, and lid her live, as she had hoped, her years of matchless bliss—loved, loving and content—the sources of comfort and the spring of joy.

The Religion of Paying Debts

One of the religious papers has the following strong remarks on this subject.

They drive the nail up to the head and clinch it:

"Men may sophisticate as they please. They can never make it right, and all the laws in the universe cannot make it right for them not to pay their debts.—There is a sin in this neglect as clear and as deserving of church discipline as is stealing or false swearing. He who violates his promise to pay, or withholds the payment of a debt, when it is in his power to meet his engagements, ought to be made to feel that in the sight of all honest men, he is a swindler. Religion may be a very comfortable cloak, under which to hide; but if religion does not make a man "deal justly," it is not worth having."

Mount Vernon.

The Ladies Mount Vernon Association having fully secured, by purchase, the homestead of Washington, on Wednesday afternoon paid an official visit to the property for the purpose of taking formal possession. A large number of ladies with several Senators and about twenty members of the House of Representatives and other gentlemen were present on the occasion. While the company was on the steamer returning to Washington, short and eloquent impromptu addresses were delivered by the Honorable Messrs. Larabee, of Wisconsin, Cochrane, of New York, and others.

The Loss of the Hungarian

We are glad to be able to record that the loss of life by the wreck of the Hungarian steamer will not be as large as the accounts of last week seemed to indicate. It is, however, sufficiently large to produce mournful feeling, as not one of the crew or passengers has survived the catastrophe. The loss now is estimated at between one and two hundred.

Western Maryland Railroad.

The Baltimore Exchange of the 7th says, we published on Monday an extract from an article in the Hanover (Pa.) Spectator, in relation to the extension of the Gettysburg Railroad to Hagerstown, in which it was confidently asserted that if the proposed line were completed, it would secure to Baltimore the trade of that region as effectually as will the extension of the Western Maryland road to the same point. As this is a matter of some importance in view of the application which is now pending before our City Council, for an endorsement of the bonds of the Western Maryland road to the amount of a quarter of a million of dollars, it is worth while, not only to examine into the correctness of the statement itself, but to consider what effect the extension of the Gettysburg road would have upon the future course of trade.

The distance from Hagerstown to Baltimore by the route which the Western Maryland road will take may be stated as follows:

From Baltimore to Union Bridge in Carroll county, the present terminus of the road,	47	miles.
From Union Bridge to Hagerstown	40	"
Total distance to Hagerstown	87	miles
From Baltimore to Gettysburg	76	miles.
From Gettysburg to Hagerstown, via Waynesboro'	40	"
Total distance to Hagerstown	116	miles

From this comparative statement it is evident that by accepting the Gettysburg extension as the preferable route to Hagerstown, the whole trade of Washington county would have to make a circuit of twenty-nine miles further, in order to reach this city, than would be required by the route laid down for the Western Maryland road, and that it would be subjected to a corresponding increase of transportation charges. Yet our business men are invited to aid in the construction of a road, the ultimate design of whose projectors is to tap the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Hancock, and thus, with the addition of a short link now remaining open between Oxford and York, complete an air line between Philadelphia and the Ohio Valley. By reference to the acts of Assembly for 1835, chapter 310, section 7, it will be found that Maryland granted to the State of Pennsylvania the right to build a road through Washington county to connect with the Baltimore and Ohio road at any point west of Hagerstown. The franchises of this road have been assigned by the State of Pennsylvania to the Gettysburg Railroad Company. If Baltimore assists in constructing that portion of the line which yet remains unfinished, she will inflict a serious injury upon her own interests, for so soon as the road is made to Hagerstown, Philadelphia capitalists will step in and complete its extension to Hancock, and the merchants of that city will thus be able to enter into serious competition with those of Baltimore for the products of the West. The compact between the two States is clear and positive. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad cannot in this event discriminate against the grant. If, on the other hand, sufficient means shall be obtained to extend the Western Maryland Railroad to Hagerstown, the Pennsylvania project would necessarily have to be abandoned, or if finally carried out would have to contend against the advantages presented by a much nearer route to the seaboard and an equally good market.

Personal Rencontre

A personal rencontre between Judge Henry Stump, of Baltimore, and Gen. Thomas J. McKaig, Senator from Allegany county, took place on Tuesday week at Annapolis. One account of the affair states that McKaig was peaceably approached by the Judge, while standing in front of Walton's City Hotel, and politely asked why he had signed the Senate report against his Honor without having first read it. Upon this McKaig became insolent, when the Judge struck at him with his cane, and in turn, was struck at by McKaig. It is further said that in dodging the blow the Judge fell down. Another report states that McKaig was insulted by the Judge, and then struck at, when in self-defence he knocked him down. Which story is correct we cannot say. Both are probably somewhat exaggerated.

Look out for Taxation.

☞ The Annapolis Correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, under date of March 3, in speaking of the Eastern Shore Railroad bill, now a law, says "the bill provides for a levying of a tax to meet the appropriation $847,235." When the bill appropriating $5000 to the Home of the Friendless was before the Senate, Mr. BROOKE, the Democratic President, left the Chair, and said "he was as much in favor of such humane measures as any Senator, but he was informed that there could "be a deficit of $100,000 in the Treasury on the 1st of April, to pay the State bonds, and it would be a beautiful thing for a Democratic Legislature to have to meet in extra session to increase the direct tax to pay the State's liabilities." We repeat, look out for taxation.

Sentence of the Allegany Repudiators

The fine imposed on Tuesday by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania on the three commissioners of Allegany county, for refusing to obey a mandamus directing them to levy a tax to pay the interest on the railroad bonds of that county, was $1,000 each and costs, besides imprisonment until such fine is paid.

The offending commissioners are John S. McIlhenny, Z. Patterson and J. Brauff. A peremptory mandamus will soon be issued, ordering the levy, and should the commissioners disobey it, they will be subject to another fine.—The city councilmen of Pittsburg, who also refused to obey the order of the court, are to be brought up for trial and sentence in a few days.

Breckenridge and Seymour.

The Baltimore Patriot appears to have been "behind the the curtain" when it unfolds to an astounding world that the Democratic programme for the next Presidential election, was settled in Washington last Thursday night week.

Kentucky and New York are to be harnessed to the car of Disunion Democracy, and Breckenridge and Seymour are to be the Charleston nominees for President and Vice President. Every effort to avert this decision will fail, and nothing will remain for the Charleston Convention to do, but to confirm this arrangement, which that body will be sure to do.

We put this statement on record, not in the light of a prophecy, for we are neither a prophet, nor the son of one, but as the matured decision of the Congressional leaders of the Democratic party, in council assembled, and the developments will sustain it as surely as the Charleston Convention will meet, unless, indeed, something entirely unforeseen and unanticipated should occur to change the programme, of which there is little danger in the short space of time to intervene.

Regretful as we are to see the great Douglas made to walk the plank so mercilessly, our regrets are tempered in some measure, by the reflection, that the victory to be achieved by the Opposition will be easier under Breckenridge than under the Illinois Giant. Our fears have always been, that he would be the Captain whom the Democratic hosts would select to lead them to battle, and as the only man who could by any possible chance give them the victory, but we are happy to find them so needless, and also to find our opponents so determined upon self-destruction. It is now evident that their time has come to go out of power, and we may hope forever and forever.

A poorer ticket in popularity could not have been selected. It abounds in all the elements of weakness. It takes extreme positions upon the slavery question; it flies right in the face of all the conservatism of the country; it threatens Disunion, unless it is elected; it is dictated by the Disunion Democratic Captains, and they are preparing to carry out their designs, if they are defeated.

The country is now forewarned. Let it put on the armor of resistance at once, and let all the Opposition come together without delay, counsel like brethren, and form a ticket that will sweep the nation. The thing is feasible. The thing ought to be done.—Nay, the thing is already done. It is only a question of time. Before the summer opens, the two great parties will be in the field under their regularly appointed leaders, and the result will be a triumph of the United Opposition ticket.

The determination of the Disunionist Democratic leaders, to rally under Breckenridge and Seymour, and to force the Charleston convention into their nomination, indicates an acknowledged defeat beforehand, and their choice of these men is in part to punish the other aspirants for recusancy and hypocracy, while they are preparing to carry out their treasonable designs against the Union. But they will fail in this as well as in the election as the result will clearly prove. Meantime we repeat, let the Opposition everywhere be up and doing. They now know who their opponents will be.

The New Chaplain.

The House of Representatives have covered themselves all over with the mantle of a sound judgment, in selecting the Rev. Dr. Thomas H. Stockton as their Chaplain. One of the ripest pulpit orators of the age, and pre-eminent for his piety, his venerable presence can't fail to shed a lustre over the holy office of invoking the daily Divine blessing upon the house. Dr. Stockton is a living embodiment of the true Minister of Jesus Christ, and in his declining years, when religious friends have deserted him simply because he is not a sectarian, it is peculiarly appropriate for the Representatives of thirty-three States to take him by the hand, and place him between them and the Throne of Grace.

A Series of Horrors

A Cincinnati paper of the 7th says, last night Patrick McHugh cut his wife's throat, killing her instantly; John Miller was fatally stabbed in a street affray, and A. H. Bayard fell suddenly dead in the street.

Yesterday morning a woman was found dead in her bed, on the corner of Pearl street and Western Row.

On Sunday, a daughter of John Stratton, living on Montgomery turnpike, was burned to death.

This morning the hat and cap store of L. Isaacs & Co., was damaged by fire to the extent of $1500.

Ingenious Counterfeit.

Counterfeit five dollar gold pieces, have been put in circulation. A cotemporary who has seen one says that the ingenuity displayed in getting it up is astonishing. In appearance it is exactly like the genuine coin, but when you come to examine it you find that the outside only is gold—the inside being filled with silver the only metal having a density sufficient to stand the pressure to which it is necessarily subjected. The value of the coin is about two thirds that of the genuine article, and its appearance such that the experienced in such matters only can detect the fraud.

Taxation in Baltimore County.

The annual levy of the County Commissioners of Baltimore county, for the ensuing year, was made on Monday.—It is the same as last year—40 cents on the $100, and the 10 cents on the $100 for State tax, make it 50 cents. The assessable property in the county is set down at $22,600,000.

There are, in all, 2,624 locomotives used on all the railroads in France.

A Curious Prayer.

A correspondent of the Western Christian Advocate sends that paper the following:

"A reverend gentleman, direct from the interior of Texas, stayed at my house a few days, at the time Millerism was at its zenith in Cincinnati. He related to me a rumor which he had heard in Texas of a man he met in our streets, as a Millerite preacher. In Texas, this man professed to be a Campbellite preacher, and as such got permission to preach in a school house, and took occasion to abuse all other denominations in general, and the Methodist in particular. He said there were men who professed to be called and commissioned of God to preach the Gospel, but that he—the preacher—pretended to no such high credentials. After preaching immersion and abusing all who would not say amen to his views, being about to close, a wag whispered to him, if he wished some one to close for him to call on Mr. H———. He did so. Mr. H———took the stand, gave out a hymn, and then prayed in this wise:

"Lord, we thank thee that thou hast ever sent thy ministers among us; we were a very wicked people before they came; some of us, however, have reformed. We think thou art we believe thou hast called, commissioned, and sent thy ministers to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ; but as for this fellow, he has told us thou didst not commission him, and we believe him. We hear strange stories of him. Lord, we know not whether they be true or not; thou knowest; but we hear he went to Galveston a gambler; that afterwards he became a preacher; that the young men who knew him in these two characters thought them rather incompatible, and in consequence, ducked him in the bay; from which we doubt not, he dates his commission to preach the doctrine he has proclaimed to us! We then say also, that he stole a horse at Galveston; we know not whether they be true or not; thou knowest; but one thing we do know—that is, we know he stops here with the widow C———, and we know that no decent man would stop there." By this time the preacher was making his escape without dismissing his congregation, and soon after was holding forth in the big tent of Millerism, Cincinnati.

Taken by Surprise

A neighbor of mine missed corn from his garner, and his suspicion rested upon a reckless fellow whom everybody called "Sam." The corn was kept in a chamber over the kitchen, adjoining the woodhouse; toward which the chamber was left open and accessible by a ladder. The victim of this midnight "thefery," as another neighbor calls it, determined to satisfy himself concerning the identity of the thief, made a temporary bed upon his kitchen floor and lay down to watch. About the hour when "churchyard-yawn," he was aroused from a partial slumber by the rattling of the corn overhead, when he suddenly called out at the top of his voice—

"Sam!"

"Hello!" responded the thief, taken entirely off his guard by this sudden call.

"Don't take more than a bush!"

"Then I shall have to pour it out; for I've got two in the bag already!"

☞ We give no compendium of foreign news for the reason that the recently arrived steamships brought nothing of special importance. The only feature of news which commands attention relates to Louis Napoleon's Italian movements. It would seem that France and England are now allies; commercially and politically, and are determined not to crush out the temporal power of the Pope, but to set all Italy free from Austrian and other foreign influences. Louis Napoleon has hardly finished one great project until he astonishes the world with another. He possesses not only extraordinary abilities, but the most extraordinary courage. No other monarch, dead or living, hardly excepting his great uncle, would have ventured to dictate to the Pope, and formed the late commercial treaty with England.

Horrible Murder.

At Cincinnati, on Wednesday, an Irishman named Patrick McHugh, approached his wife whilst she was at a friend's house, placed his arm around her neck and cut her throat with a razor. The stroke was given with so much power as to cut away even a part of the vertebrae. The woman died almost instantly.—McHugh had recently been liberated from the Penitentiary where he had served a sentence for a deadly assault upon his wife.

Crops in Texas.

The planting in Texas is said to be either rapidly progressing or finished, as far as regards corn and vegetables. In the lower and western counties corn is already up. In Middle and Eastern Texas the ground has been in fine condition, and has been broken up easier and deeper than has been usual.

From Washington.

The receipts into the Treasury the past week is $2,700,000, including Treasury notes. Drafts paid to the amount of over $1,000,000; drafts issued nearly $3,758,000. The reduction from the amount on hand the previous week is $1,050,000; amount subject to draft $4,723,000.

Fire at Bridgetown, Barbadoes

By an arrival from Barbadoes, we learn that a terrible conflagration occurred on the 13th ult. at Bridgetown.—A large portion of the business part of the town was destroyed and an immense amount of merchandise. The loss is estimated at $2,500,000.

AMERICAN AND FOREIGN STEREOSCOPIC EMPORIUM.

F. ANTHONY,

308 Broadway, New York,

Over May 1st, 1860, at 501 BROADWAY, two doors from the St. Nicholas Hotel.

The Stereoscope is the most instructive, instructive, entertaining, amusing, and cheap of all form investions.

None are too young, none too old, none too intelligent, none too uneducated, to acknowledge its worth and beauty.

Nothing is complete without it, and it must and will penetrate everywhere.

It presents to your view every part of the world, in all the relief, solidities, perspective, and sharpness of detail, as if you were on the spot.

Photographers are everywhere exploring Europe, Asia, Africa, America, in search of the grand and the beautiful, and the results of their skill are constantly enriching our stock.

We have an immense variety of paper Views of Science in Paris, London, England, Scotland, Ireland, Wales, France, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, Spain, The Rhine, Versailles, St Cloud, Fontainebleau, Tuilleries, Italy, Turkey, Egypt, Athens, the Holy Land, China, India, Crystal Palace, also Groups Historical, amusing, marriage scenes, breakfast scenes, pictures, statuary, &c., &c. An exquisite assortment of illustrated Interiors of Palaces, Churches and Cathedrals of France, Italy &c., &c. The effect of these illuminated views is most remarkable.

Every gentleman of wealth and refined taste should have in his drawing room some of our exquisite views on glass, with a revolving stereoscope, showing 12, 25, 50 or 100 scenes. Nothing can be more fascinating, and one can offer no greater treat to a friend fond of the picturesque and the beautiful.

Anthony's Instantaneous Stereoscope Views are the best Photographic wonder. They are taken in the fortieth part of a second, and everything no matter how rapidly it may be moving, is depicted as sharply and distinctly as if it had been perfectly at rest. This gives an additional value to the beauties of inanimate nature it adds also the charm of life and motion. The process is a discovery of our own, and being unknown in Europe, we receive from London and Paris large orders for Anthony's Instantaneous Views of American life and scenery.

Among other things we have just published Stereoscopic Illustrations of the Scene of the FOXES SECRET PRAYER MEETINGS, in which many hearts feel an interest. The particulars of this will be found in our catalogue.

Our CATALOGUE of subjects and prices will be forwarded to any address on receipt of a stamp.

Parties at a distance sending us $3, $5 $10, $15, $20 or $25 can have a good assortment and such pictures as they may request, sent by Express.

Views alone, (without instrument) can be supplied.

Parties who wish to be advised of every thing really valuable in the line that comes out, may send us their names to place on record, and we will keep them posted at our own expense.

Men of leisure will find Photography a most fascinating and delightful amusement. We are prepared to fit out amateurs with everything necessary for their success together with instructions "How to take Stereoscopic Pictures."

WISTAR'S COUGH LOZENGES

(FROM THE ORIGINAL RECIPE.)

FOR COUGHS, COLDS, ASTHMA, INFLUENZA, &c., &c.

THESE celebrated Lozenges cannot be too strongly recommended as a safe and efficient remedy in Coughs, Colds and Influenza. They give relief in soreness and tightness of the breast, difficulty of breathing, hoarseness &c; and have been found particularly serviceable in that troublesome sensation, tickling in the throat, which is so often a source of great uneasiness. A trial only is needed to prove their efficacy. Prepared and sold by

LAW OF NEWSPAPERS.

1. SUBSCRIBERS who do not give express orders to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order a discontinuance of their periodicals, the publishers may continue to send them until all arrearages are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their periodicals from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have settled and ordered them to be discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing their publishers, and the papers are sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The Courts have decided that refusing to take periodicals from the office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.
