TO ENCOURAGE THRIFT

Schools Called Upon by Treasury Department to Make Saving Happy Habit.

Through the government savings directors of the twelve federal reserve districts, the Savings Division of the United States Treasury Department has called upon the normal schools colleges and universities of the country to aid in the government campaign to make thrift a happy habit. The American Council on Education representing institutions of higher learning throughout the country, has joined with the Savings Division to secure the co-operation of the schools.

The plan evolved by the Savings Division and the Council on Education contemplates the creation of thrift organizations in each of the normal schools, colleges and universities, to teach the basic principles of intelligent saving—wise buying, sane spending, safe investment and avoidance of waste, and to aid in featuring the advantage of Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps as the ideal investment for small savings. Through the American Council on Education the presidents of the institutions of higher learning have been urged to name institutional thrift representatives, who will co-operate with the local savings organizations. This has been done in most cases. The educational institutions are expected to have a large influence in the movement to make the United States a nation of intelligent savers.

What [illegible] stopped the blood in my veins hundreds of these homeless and famished urchins crowded the street. They collected on the steps and crept into the corridors of the buildings.

At the beginning they only looked on; then they began to beg, and finally one snatched at the crust that a ravenous child was eating. With a rush, all the street children were within the room, clawing at the food and fighting with their teeth and nails—not loudly but with grim and silent determination. The teachers were forced to drive off the pack that their 'own' orphans might not lose the last bit of their food. One needs a heart of steel to see such sights as this."

But there need be no such sights as these if America responds generously to an appeal for funds to relieve these people, which is now being made. Maryland's drive will begin November 22 and last a week.

Constituents of Manna.

The belief that it has discovered one of the constituents of the manna of the Bible is agitating the United States federal bureau of chemistry. It has found and secured several pounds of melezitose, a form of sugar extremely valuable in scientific experimentation, and hardly more plentiful than radium. Melezitose is the original honey dew. It gets its name from the French word melez, which means larch tree. It seems that bees and peculiar summer weather in central Pennsylvania recently conspired to lay up a lot of this unusual saccharine substance in numerous hives, where it crystallized and dealt death and destruction to many bees when they tried to live on it. It was found to have been too rich for their digestion and that they literally starved to death.

Man Leads in Endurance.

Man is a truly wonderful animal. Although the majority of the human race ruin their strength and constitutions by unwise eating and drinking, by lack of fresh air, and by unnecessary exposure to all sorts of infection, yet, even so, man can more than hold his own with the brute creation.

Not, of course, in muscular strength. A tiger with one pat of his paw can reduce a human skull to pulp; a hare can run two yards to a man's one. It is in endurance that man beats the lower races. For a short distance a racehorse can gallop nearly 35 miles an hour, but in a 500-mile race a trained man will easily beat any horse that ever lived.

Remarkable Animal.

One of the strangest animals known is the platypus, a creature inhabiting the river banks of Australia and Tasmania. It resembles both an animal and a bird in that its body and tail are like those of a beaver, while its feet and bill resemble one of a duck. It has teeth for chewing its food, but it has no external ear, although its hearing is acute. It lays eggs like a turtle, but suckles its young. A specimen of the animal has been placed on exhibition in the National museum, Washington.

THAT BAD BACK

Do you have a dull, steady ache in the small of the back—sharp, stabbing twinges when stooping or lifting—distressing urinary disorders? For bad back and weakened kidneys Chestertown residents recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. Read this Chestertown woman's statement.

Maggie Clements, S. Mill St., says: "A short time ago I suffered from a bad back and disordered condition of my kidneys. My back was very painful at times and when I stooped over, sharp pains caught me in the small of it. My kidneys acted irregularly causing me a great deal of trouble. At times I could see sort of a mist before my eyes and I had spells of dizziness. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills procured from M. A. Toulson's Drug Store, and they rid me of the trouble."
