ASSAILS EXTREME PARTY LOYALTY

REV. J. A. MITCHELL LIKENS SPIRIT TO INTOLERANCE, WHICH CRUCIFIED CHRIST

Nicaraguan Policy Assailed. "Rabid" Fundamentalism Also Attacked

The spirit of extreme "party loyalty" in nations, in the Lord's Day Alliance, and in "rabid" fundamentalism, is among modern manifestations of the same spirit that crucified Christ, asserted the Rev. James A. Mitchell, rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Messiah, in a sermon yesterday morning.

Mr. Mitchell also contended that such party loyalty in the Anti-Saloon League, politics, extreme fundamentalism, sectarianism, and in high and low church beliefs, was another modern manifestation of the same spirit that put Christ to death.

Holds Such Spirit Deadly

Asserting that not individuals but this party loyalty was responsible for the death of Christ, Mr. Michell said when this type of party spirit "takes control of the individual it makes him more deadly than a Nero, for he does his crucifying wih a pious face and thinks he is a very praiseworthy fellow."

"Never forget," said Mr. Mitchell, "it was the patriotic nationalist, the virtuous religious Pharisee, the cultured, priestly Sadducees and the loyal disciplined Romans who put Christ to death."

Holds Calvary Easily Forgotten

Referring to party loyalty in national life, he said:

"We are still bowing down to the god of nationalism, although the World War has been over for ten years. One wave of the flag and we forget the cross of Calvary.

"We are down in Nicaragua today killing natives—men, women and children—although Jesus said we must love them. But we think we're put here to control this continent and our money must be invested, and then must be protected. Se the report still reads: 'The American sharpshooters are piling up the dead.' "

Cites Lord's Day Alliance

Citing the complaints made against Christ by the Pharisees—their insistence upon the law and their assertion that Christ broke the Sabbath law by healing a man in the synagogue— Mr. Mitchell said:

"What strange, reminiscent echoes of this exclusive party spirit one hears even in his enlightened Christian age. 'The Sabbath must be observed,' says the Lord's Day Alliance, 'God has appointed this day, and we shall see that it is kept, even if we must resort to law and force.'

Scores Fundamentalists

" 'God gave us His law in the Bible,' says the rapid fundamentalist, 'it is all down in black and white from Genesis to Revelations, and has been minutely interpreted by learned and orthodox commentators. What more do we need? Your science is blasphemy, your archaeology is nonsense, if you believe in evolution you are an atheist. As for us—God's chosen ones —we must see to it that this vile modern knowledge does not corrupt the youth. No science shall be taught in the public schools.'

"So again the spirit of truth and He who came to lead men into all truth, are hung upon a cross in mockery."

Rev. Mr. Mitchel is the son of the late Rev. James A. Mitchel for many years Rector at Centreville, Md.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

Farmer-owned cooperative associations in western Canada handled about 220,000,000 bushels out of a total of approximately 420,000,000 bushels of grain marketed from that section in the crop year of 1926-27, according to a report to the United States Department of Agriculture.

In marketing wheat there is urgent need for more accurate determination of qualities and values at country stations and terminal markets so that premiums for protein and other special qualities in the wheat may be more truly reflected to the country elevators and to the producers. Farmers' elevators, the United States Department of Agriculture believes, should take the lead in bringing about the reform

In a number of States testing cattle for tuberculosis in every county has become so much the rule that eradication is practically on a state-wide basis. North Carolina leads in this movement, and cattle in about nine-tenths of its area have been tested. It is probable that before the end of 1928 the few remaining counties will have finished testing, in which case North Carolina will be the first State to be recognized officially as free from bovine tuberculosis.

The quantity of hay, silage, and grain to feed to dairy cows will depend largely upon the condition and production of each cow. All cows do not produce the same quantity of milk and butterfat; consequently, they should not be given the same quantity of feed. Economical feeding usually demands that cows be fed liberally. Under most circumstances during the winter when cows are in milk and largely on dry feed they should be given all the roughage that they will eat readily, and the grain ration should be adjusted according to the individual cow's production.

In the total shipments of sweet potatoes in 1926, Delaware shipped 1728 1971 cars, and Virginia 6053 cars. cars, the Eastern Shore of Maryland Most of these shipments were made during the months of September and October, during which time the Eastern Shore territory shipped 6012 cars, out of a total movement for the entire United States of 8668 cars. This would indicate that approximately 75 per cent. of the movement of sweet potatoes in the United States during September and October comes from this territory.

In the shipments of Irish potatoes, it is found that during the month of July, 1926, the Easern Shore of Maryland and Virginia shipped a total of 10,358 cars, as compared with the total shipment of the United States of 20,310 cars in that period. In other words, the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia during the month of July were shipping more than 50 per cent. of the potatoes shipped throughout the United States. During certain weeks the percentage of white potatoes shipped out of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia amounts to as much as 65 per cent. of the total shipment of the United States.

Jefferson Found His Letter Writing a Burden

Thomas Jefferson liked to write letters and to receive them, but the burden became almost unendurable. He wrote John Adams in 1817 that from dinner to dark he was "drudging at the writing table."

"All this," he continued, "to answer letters into which neither interest nor inclination on my part enters; and often from persons whose names I have never before heard. Yet, writing civilly, it is hard to refuse them civil answers. This is the burden of my life, a very grievous one indeed, and one which I must get rid of."

He consented to write a few lines of introduction to one of Delaplaine's books that he might make there a public appeal for relief from this burden, but it does not appear to have been successful, for he wrote Adams in 1822 that he had received 1,267 letters the previous year and had answered all, though many of them had required long replies and some extensive investigation.

"Is this life?" he asked. "At best it is but the life of a mill horse that sees no end to his circle but in death. To such a life that of a cabbage is paradise." Since he had earlier described the life of a cabbage as "surely not worth a wish," he had evidently come close to the irreducible minimum in enjoyment of existence. At the time of his death he had 26,000 letters filed and had copies of 16,000 replies.—J. G. de Roulbac Hamilton, in Century Magazine.

Even Finest Violins Must Have Exercise

A violin, like a growing boy, according to the experts, is much better when kept busy. And dance tunes are just as good for "exercising" even a priceless Stradivarius as are the highest class concert numbers. A violin, bearing the date 1713 and believed to be a genuine "Strad," has been in the possession of the family of William McDonald of Rice Lake, Wis., says the Milwaukee Journal, for 175 years. Mr. McDonald, who owned the instrument for 53 years, has used it in old fiddlers' contests throughout this part of the state.

Inside the violin is this inscription: "Antonius Stradivaris Cremonensis. Faciebat Anno 1713" (Cremona of Antonio Stradivaris, made in the year 1713). The famous Cremona carver was at the height of his career as a violin maker in 1713, and all the evidence to be found in the family records leads the McDonalds to believe the instrument is an original of the noted maker.

Daily Loss of Weight

The loss of weight that we undergo every day has been the object of recent research, says Science. In the experiments, conducted by the Carnegie institution at Washington, two sensitive balances were used. Both were strong enough to weigh a man, but delicate enough to register minute changes in weight. One of the balances would indicate a change of one-third of an ounce, and a person could sleep all night on its platform. The other was a hundred times as sensitive, but could be occupied only for an hour or so at a time. The total moisture losses through the lungs and skin of a woman of average weight averaged around 30 grams, or one ounce per hour; for a man the figure was about one-third higher.

Longest Bridges

In estimating which is the longest bridge in the world, the length of the main span is usually considered, without the approaches. The Quebec cantilever bridge over the St. Lawrence, 1,800 feet main span, is the longest. The new Delaware river bridge between Philadelphia and Camden, 1,750 foot span, is the longest suspension bridge in the world. If approaches are considered, the Key West extension of the Florida East Coast railroad, a 30-mile viaduct, is perhaps the longest. The Lucin cut off across the Great Salt lake is 20 miles long. The Cerno Voda bridge over the Danube at Constanza is 12 miles long.

Rocky Mountain Flowers

One of the great charms in the national parks in the Canadian Rockies is the variety and beauty of the wild flowers. At first thought one would perhaps not expect to find an abundant and interesting flora amid the higher altitudes, but, strange as it may seem, the wild-flower gardens which bloom above the clouds in the upper regions are among the most beautiful in the world. Over 500 varieties have been identified by botanists, and their exquisite color, fragrance, and delicate loveliness add the last touch to the charm of that wonderful region.

Dog Witness for Itself

A dog recently testified for itself and its master and mistress at a court in Nottingham, England. The owners swore that they had been wantonly attacked by a man who declared that the dog should be chained up when it started frisking around the assailant. The case turned on whether the dog was vicious or merely playing, and throughout the hearing the dog sat quietly on the clerk's desk or gently licked the hand of anyone who approached it, and the magistrates decided that the assault had been unprovoked.
