Understand Now That Sun Radiates Health

Two architects at Paris have built a house of which any room may have sunshine at any moment of the day, provided the sun is shining. It turns on a pivot like a railroad turntable. A finger on the electric button is all that is needed.

This may not initiate a new style of architecture, or house-building. It would be a little expensive for the average householder; he will content himself with moving his sitting or dining room to it. But the house illustrates and emphasizes the new devotion to the sun.

Our doctors and scientists have just found out new and exceedingly valuable therapeutic qualities in the sun's rays—rays that strike the skin without any intervening medium. It is nature's oldest and finest remedy, constantly used and relied upon by the lower animals but long misunderstood and unappreciated by the high animal, man. We have always talked of the benefits of out-of-door life, but we did not realize our dependence on and debt to those healing and vitalizing rays direct from the source of all life on our planet.

We are still discovering gold under our feet.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Nature Has Provided for Needs of Aphids

Aphids are the tiny insects that live on the tips of tender plants and the under side of leaves. The extraordinary thing about them is that although they can exist for generations without wings, when the need arises they can grow them in a night. The aphids are sap-suckers. They settle down, drive their beaks into the bark until they reach the sap, then sit contentedly drinking their fill. They are so contented, in fact, that they often sl[illegible] their skins, casting off legs and eyes, and cling there blind and helpless. Clinging thus, the helpless mothers give birth to their young, who having eyes and legs, run about quite actively until they find the sap streams. The processes are repeated until the plant harbors so many of these tiny creatures that they drink all its sap, and the plant dies. The aphids, having to seek new sources of food, produce a generation of aphids with wings. These they unfurl and then fly to a live plant.—London Tit-Bits.

Nation Without Language

One of the strangest things to be found among the nations of the world is the fact that Switzerland has no language of its own. The official languages of Switzerland are French, Italian and German, all three being recognized as the "mother tongue" of the majority of the inhabitants.

A majority of the people speak German, while the others use French and Italian, varying as a rule, according to the proximity of the people to each country whose tongue they speak.

Public documents and notices are printed in both the French and German languages.

In the Swiss national parliament the members make their speeches either in French or German, the members being as familiar with one language as the other.

Statements from the President of Switzerland are furnished to the newspapers in both languages.

To Clinch the Bargain

A Kansas City man employed in an expert capacity received an offer from a rival firm recently, and went to talk the matter over. The prospective employer named a certain sum to start the salary discussion, but the expert did not like the looks of the new job, and so he said, "I'm sorry, but I have a contract with my company which has two years to run."

"Contract be blowed!" said the rival boss, who is also a lawyer. "I can break any contract ever written. Now, you come with us, and I'll give you $100 a month more than you're getting now."

"Well, I guess I'd better not."

"Listen. I'll give you $150 more."

"No, I—"

"And a contract!"—Kansas City Star.

Jewels in Legend

The fact that the misfortunes that have so often attended the careers of famous jewels may be explained away as coincidences, just as the mystical qualities ascribed to pearls may be dispelled on scientific grounds, will probably not lessen the appeal of the stories and legends about them. On the other hand, optimists may point with some pleasure to a contrary example, in which the pawning of some more or less valuable jewelry financed Columbus' discovery of a new world.

Youth Laughs Last

A professor at George Washington university failed to show up on time for class. The young men waited 15 minutes. No professor! The class evaporated. Next day the teacher avowed he had been "constructively present" because his hat had been on his desk. On the third day the instructor entered the classroom to find the usual chairs, each with a hat upon it. American humor is still "constructively present."—Lafayette Journal and Courier.

Burial of Giantess

To bury a woman who died at Maquassi, South Africa, the services of 30 men were required. The coffin was 3 feet 4 inches high at the shoulder and 6 feet 3 inches in length. Twenty men had to assist in putting the corpse into the coffin, and 30 pallbearers lowered it into the grave. The deceased, who was a young woman, had been bedridden for a year. Owing to her weight a special bed had to be made on the floor.

"INS AND OUTS OF SANDWICH MAKING"

In olden days a chef made his name or lost his head for the dishes he prepared. For a dainty delicious dish he was famed and for an untasteful one he was hung.

It was about that time that a certain cheif accidentally invented the sandwich and became famous forever after. The sandwich has developed from the original piece of meat between two pieces of bread into a variety of tempting and delicious shapes and fillings.

There are a great variety of sandwiches for all occasions. They may be grouped as school lunch and picnic, party sandwiches and open sandwiches.

The types of bread appropriate for sandwiches are nut bread, raisin bread steamed brown bread, whole wheat bread and of course the ordinary white bakers bread.

It is best to have the bread at least one day old as fresh bread is very hard to cut in regular pieces.

The butter should be creamed before using it in order to make it spread smoothly and evenly.

If the sandwiches are not to be eaten at once they should be kept fresh by wrapping in a damp cloth.

The charm of a sandwich lies as much in its dainty appearance as in its contents.

School lunch and picnic sandwiches should be substantial as they may be the main dish of the lunch. The bread should be about 1-4 inch thick and the crust may or may not be left on.

Bread may be cut 1-8 inch thick and into many shapes. The triangle, the heart, the diamond and many other shapes make sandwiches very attractive. If lettuce is used it should be cut to fit exactly.

Ham, chicken, cold roass of veal and pork may be used in meat sandwiches.

Vegetable Sandwiches

It is well to use vegetable sandwiches for summer days as they are especially tempting in warm weather. The following may be used for these sandwiches:— Lettuce, water cress, celery, onions, tomatoes, radishes, beans, cucumbers, cabbage and carrots.

These fillers should be similar to a salad and the sandwich should be made only a short time before serving.

Cream Cheese Sandwiches

With cream cheese put finely cut nuts and green pepper. Season with salt and cayenne. Spread on whole wheat bread.

Olive And Celery

Chop olives and celery into very small bits. Add a little onion juice, then with mayonnaise spread on white bread.

Pineapple Sandwich

Pour grated pineapple into a strainer and let all of the juice run off. Leave until pineapple is fairly dry. Spread both sides of bread with mayannaise. On one put pineapple in a layer. Over this sprinkle grated cheese. This makes a delicious sandwich.
