A CARD.

CHESTERTOWN, January 24, 1862.

THE present distracted condition of our once prosperous and happy country—my advanced age—the uncertainty of life—my duty to my creditors, friends and family, all admonish me of the necessity of closing my business, which I shall proceed to do with all the means in my power.

I have therefore concluded to discontinue the practice of Medicine, or so abridge my field of operations as to enable me to devote some time to the collection of my dues, and payment of my debts. If there are any entertaining a particular preference for me, and are willing to pay me half-yearly, or yearly, I will for such, still endeavor to discharge my professional duty. I will not decline without returning my kind acknowledgments to the community for the pleasant intercourse I have so long enjoyed and most earnestly hope that they will find some one who will more successfully and faithfully discharge the arduous and responsible duties of so extensive a practice as I have had for the last twenty years.

If after getting my affairs in a more tangible or intelligible form, the community should stand in need or wish my professional services, I may conclude to resume.

Daily's Ventilated Truss.

THIS celebrated Truss has proved by the numerous cures it has effected in the short time since its invention, to be the great improvement of the age for the relief of ruptured persons. Parties on whom I have applied the Truss say they would not take a thousand dollars for it, and yet it is furnished at a fourth the price asked by truss makers in our large cities for an inferior article. I will apply the truss myself either at my store or at the dwellings of persons desiring it. Particular attention paid to children. All children can be cured of this troublesome complaint, by having a proper Truss applied. Ladies' Trusses and bandages will be applied by a competent lady.

Constantly on hand, and made to order, a large and complete assortment of Surgical Instruments, Bandages, Supporters, Braces, in fact every surgical appliance that can be wanted, may be found at my store, or I will make it to suit any special case.
