SALVAGED THE GOLDFISH

The Woman's friend, who teaches, had a bowl of goldfish in her kindergarten. The children like to watch the bright darts of gold swirling through the water. But one night a predatory cat made an end of the goldfish. The kindergartner had to break the sad news to the children that pussy had eaten the goldfish.

A few days later some one presented a new pair of goldfish to the kindergartner. Next morning when the children arrived, there were the bright darts of gold swirling through the water.

One little girl stood transfixed with wondering delight. With admiration beaming in her eyes for her teacher's skill and ability, small Betty exclaimed joyfully, "Oh, you got them out of the pussy again."—New York Sun.

Well Advertised

Four-year-old Paul was taken for a ride on his birthday. It was George Washington's birthday, too, but Paul did not know that. They passed through a village gayly decorated with flags.

"How did they know it was my birthday?" Paul asked.

A little farther on they came to another village similarly decorated and Paul exclaimed:

"And they know it here, too!"

SPECIALIST

"What did that tramp say when you asked him to spade the garden for a meal?"

"Said he was sorry but his specialty was shoveling snow."

A Changed Man

In the smoking room of a club two business men just past middle age were criticizing the young men of today. Said one: "Look how reluctant young men are to marry and settle down."

"That's so," returned the other. "They seem to fear marriage. Why, before I was married I didn't know what fear was."—Tit-Bits.

Beginning Early

"Yes," said the self-made man, "I was left without a mother and father at nine months and ever since I've had to battle along for myself."

"How did you manage to support yourself at nine months?"

"I crawled to a baby show and won the first prize. That was the way I started."—Stray Stories Magazine.

Coats and Hats

It was Mary's duty in the beauty shop to take the wraps from the customers. At the close of a certain day two customers came in and after ignoring Mary's plea for their wraps several times, she shouted impatiently:

"Then please hang up your cat and hoat."—Indianapolis News.

STICKS TO HIS PERCH

Ted—Looks like Tom has been out on a lark.

Bill—Yes, and I should say he was having a bird of a time.

Wanted to Be Right

Mother—You naughty girl! You have eaten every cookie there was on that plate and I told you you might have only three.

Small Daughter—Yes, mother, but you didn't tell me which three, so I had to eat all to be sure to get the right ones."

Real Sleuths

"What happened when the police searched your house?"

"It was fine! The police found the front-door key which my wife had hidden, a penny stamp I lost weeks ago, and four collar studs."—Fliegende Blaetter.

The Tightwad

Superintendent—Lay off six men.

Foreman—We need all we have, sir.

Superintendent—I know that, but if you lay off six it will scare the rest so they'll work twice as fast.—Kansas City Star.

Discrepancy

"Why do you wear that glass in your eye?"

"That eye is very weak."

"But you don't wear a glass hat!"—Tid-Bits.

Science Note

"Mother, I know what snow is."

"Well, dear, what is it?'

"Popped hailstones."—Boston Transcript.

WHEAT CAMPAIGN OFF TO A SPLENDID START

He urged cooperation and thoughtful consideration of the efforts to secure a dollar always worth a dollar in purchasing power.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension and in charge of the wheat reduction campaign in Maryland took up the application of the lan from the state and county viewpoint. He cited the $110,000 available in Maryland (in a 100 per cent sign up) as a reward for cooperation in voluntarily entering a contract with the Secretary of Agriculture to reduce the wheat acreage not to exceed 20 per cent. The exact amount of reduction has not been announced but may be less than the maximum of twenty percent.

He cited the case of the average wheat grower of Kent with 1000 bus. (the average for the year 1930-32 the basic years). Fifty-four per cent of this amount or 540 bushels would be eligible for the benefit or bonus of 30 cents per bushel. The average man will get $150 over and above local cost of administering the plan. He stressed the point that this cash reward for cooperation in doing what all realize should be done, is but a minor detail in the philosophy and significance of the boldly conceived plan to voluntarily so control wheat production that it will insure parity purchasing power for wheat. He urged cooperative organization in attacking problems. The wheat campaign will bring over 600 wheat growers in Kent, nearly 20,000 in Maryland and 1,200,000 in the U. S. success of the plan depends on farmers The cooperation. The merit of the plan is so apparent that there is no doubt that the farmers will grasp the opoprtunity for shared responsibility in meeting the big problems incident to "speeding in" the return of prosperity.

County Agent . D. McVean referred to the schedule of meetings for the county urging every one to attend the meetings and to get full information on the plan before deciding. Widespread and complete information is available for all. Every Kent county resident and owner of farms in Kent is urged to attend and to study the philosophy and the significance of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration Plan. The discussions will help clarify the lan. A number of growers plan to attend a number of meetings as each meeting will bring out new points and new phases of the plan.

THE LAST RESORT

A man whose son was an applicant for a position in the civil service, but who had been repeatedly "turned down," said: "It's hard luck, but Bill has missed that civil service again. It looks like they just won't have him, that's all."

Friend—What was the trouble?

Man—Well, he was kinder poor at spellin' and geography an' he didn't do too well in arithmetic.

Friend—What's he going to do about it?

Man—I don't know. Times are not so good for us, an' I recokon he'll have to go back to school teachin'.

Commercial Mystery

"These are wonderful trousers I'm wearing."

"They look very ordinary."

"But the wool came from Australia; English merchants sold it to a Scottish factory; it was woven in Saxony; made into a suit in Berlin, and—"

"Nothing so wonderful about that."

"No, the wonder is that so many people can get a living out of them when I have not paid for them."—Die Woche.

Sweet Forgetfulness

"Now, girls," said the restaurant manager, "I want you all to look your best today. Add a little extra dab of powder to your cheeks and take a bit more care with your hair."

"Why, what's the matter?" asked the head waitress. "Butter bad again?"

"No," said the manager, "the beef's tough."—Humorist Magazine.

Gives Him a Trimming

"Now, if I were only an ostrich," began a husband at the breakfast table as he picked up one of his wife's rolls, "then—"

"Yes," interrupted his wife, "then I might get a few feathers for that old hat I've worn for three years!"—Tit-Bits Magazine.

IMPROVEMENT?

She—You big brute!

He—And only yesterday I was a little shrimp!

Gob Humor

One—Do you know who started the jig-saw puzzles?

Two—No.

One—A doctor who was trying to put a tattooed sailor together who had been run over by an automobile.—U. S. S. California Cub.

Vanished

"That chap is one of those fellows who will promise anything."

"But does he keep his promises?"

"He must, nobody sees or hears anything of them afterward."—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.
