THE DIARY OF BOOTH.

The recent publication of the long-concealed diary of J. Wilkes Booth, though of little practical value at this late day, seems very generally to have confirmed the impression which largely prevailed in the public mind previously that the original plan of Booth was to capture and not to kill President Lincoln, and that Booth suddenly, and of his own volition, changed it into a tragedy, without prompting from other parties who might have been privy to the original intention. In the diary this sentence occurs: "For six months we had worked to capture, but our cause being almost lost, something decisive and great must be done. But its failure was owing to others, who did not strike for their country with a heart." Who or how many had been privy to the daring plot to capture the President may now never be definitely known, unless brought to light in the trial of young Surratt, yet to take place; but if the diary, as published, be the whole document, it seems certain that Booth was not the agent of others—at least he implicates none—but shows finally a terrible awakening in his own mind of the atrocity of his crime. But as taking away the idea of an original conspiracy for assassination, the monstrousness of the trial and condemnation by the military commission of Mrs. Surratt becomes more clear. It is well said, that had this book, retained in the hands of Judge Advocate Holt, been produced, it would have been a great deal better evidence than much which was given. It is not probable that it would have changed the result of the trial, since that was a foregone conclusion. Probably nothing would have saved Mrs. Surratt, however clear; for the melancholy fact remains, says the Journal of Commerce, that there was no evidence against her which was worth consideration, and she was unquestionably a victim to the wild passion of the hour. The most important bearing of the notes in Booth's diary is with reference to her. If the assertion of Booth be accepted as true, that he never contemplated killing Mr. Lincoln until the morning of Good Friday, it is clear that the slight evidence which was given against Mrs. Surratt falls to the ground. The Journal pointedly remarks that the important point at present is to know on what principle or with what design the Judge Advocate suppressed such evidence as this, carried it in his pocket, and deprived it as he has of all value for all time. We remember with shame, as Americans, the testimony which was introduced in this case. Anonymous papers, said to have been picked up in the waters of remote seas, not ascribed to or proved as the hand-writing of any individual on earth, were read as evidence and weighed in the balance against lives.—What possible explanation, then, is there of the suppression of written notes, found on the person of the assassin, and forming a part of the fatal history?

HARD ON BOSTON.—Boston will be greatly disgusted when it learns that Lord Lorne, the latest English traveler in this country who has published an account of his travels, pronounces it to be a detestable place, and actually tells the world that its people seemed to him "hard, bitter, relentless, and wanting in the heroic virtues of generosity and magnanimity."—For an English lord to speak in this way is more than Boston should be called upon to endure. The very fact, however, that such a terrible excoriation comes from such a source, may lead Boston to inquire, with something like fervor, whether there is any foundation for the charges. We shall wait anxiously for the result.

ADVERTISING.—The Louisville Journal, in a late number, bears the following testimony to the advantages of advertising: "We have been carrying on the Louisville Journal between thirty-six and thirty-seven years. During all this time we have known no man of business in the city to fail who advertised liberally. And we have known no one to succeed in any considerable, if even in a respectable degree, who didn't advertise liberally."

TRUSTEE'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF A DECREE of the Circuit Court of Kent county, as a Court of Equity, the undersigned as Trustee will expose to Public Sale, on WEDNESDAY,

The Nineteenth day of June, 1867, at 11 o'clock, A., at the "Voshell House," in Chestertown, the

FARM IN WORTON,

in Kent county, Maryland, commonly known as

"GREEN POINT,"

formerly the property of Major Samuel G. Kennard, and late the property of John S. Kennard, deceased, containing about 360 ACRES.

This Farm has been limed, is under good fencing, is divided into seven fields and two lots, and there are three Tenant Houses on the premises.

ABOUT 100 ACRES ARE IN

WOOD,

mostly on navigable water, on Worton Creek. There is also a WHARF on the Creek and every facility for loading vessels.

The soil is good, and grows Wheat, Oats and Grass very finely. With suitable cultivation Corn is also raised in considerable quantities.

The location is one of the finest in the county, and the site for a Dwelling is probably unsurpassed. The Banks are high, and a beautiful view of the Bay, of Harford, and the country in the vicinity of the premises is presented to the eye. The elevation of the place is a security to a great extent against sickness; the situation of this property and the surrounding country is healthy, and the neighborhood is very good. Very little fencing is necessary for the farm, which adjoins the lands of Messrs. James W. Skirven, Joseph W. Edwards and others.

Mr. EDWARD PLUMMER, the tenant, will shew the property to any one who may call to examine it.

The Buildings

consist of a FRAME DWELLING, quite commodious; KITCHEN, STABLE, GRANARY, &c., in fair condition.

THE TERMS OF SALE ARE:

Three hundred dollars on the day of sale, or within thirty days thereafter, at the option of the Trustee; one-half of the balance of the purchase money in two years from the day of sale, and the residue in two equal instalments in three and four years from the day of sale, with interest from the first day of January next, payable semi-annually, to be secured by the Bond of the purchaser to the Trustee, with security to be approved by him.
