The Proposed Constitution for Virginia.

The Virginia Convention, composed mostly of Northern men and foreigners, who had been drifted to Virginia by the wars, of native Africans, and a few native radicals, with a moderate sprinkling of conservatives, which has been in session for nearly five months, concluded its labors on Saturday last. The day before its adjournment, Gen. Schofield, escorted by his staff, entered the hall of the convention, and made an address from the Speaker's stand, in which he told the members plainly that the extended disfranchisements and disqualifications for office which they had embodied in the Constitution would, in his judgment, "prove fatal to that instrument," and that "it is practically impossible to carry on a government in Virginia predicated on that basis." Gen. Schofield then went into some explanatory details, derived from his experience in administering the laws under the reconstruction acts for more than a year, to establish his opinion that a sufficient number of men cannot be found in the counties of Virginia capable of filling the offices who can take the test oath. He used some very strong language, stating that the provision, if left in the constitution, would not only be opposed to the wishes of their friends, but fatal to the constitution, and perhaps to themselves.

This was the first time, he declared, that he had attempted to exercise the slightest influence over the actions of the convention, but he felt that it was his duty now "to convey to them what he conceived to be the effect of such a law, its practical bearing upon the political affairs of the country, and upon the interests, if they pleased, of the party to which they belonged." The General's appeal, however, had no effect, and the provision was retained.

At the final close of the Convention on Saturday several speeches were made by radical members, among them Judge Snead, who was a Union man throughout the war, and who declared he was "firmly persuaded that a majority of the qualified voters will stamp this constitution with the seal of their decided and everlasting condemnation." The speaker was especially severe upon a retrospective homestead provision exempting two thousand dollars' worth of property from execution for debts antecedently or subsequently contracted. Mr. Allan, another radical, a Union soldier during the war, who received but one white vote when elected to the convention, denounced the constitution, on account of the disfranchising clause, in the most bitter terms, and said the clause referred to "is of such a character as not only to secure its defeat before the people, but will not receive the approval of the national Congress, even in case of its ratification here." Mr. Allan warned the colored men that the only boon the constitution, if adopted, would secure to them would be to have the power for a few short years of rewarding ambitious men with office, and leaving as a legacy to their children the hatred of every white man where they live.

INDEPENDENT.

General S. F. Carey, Representative of the Second District of Ohio, makes this answer to some of his Republican constituents, who censured his course on impeachment:

I have received a large number of letters from my Republican friends in the district, and with the exception of yourself and friend Quinby, they sustain me emphatically and fully.

I did not suppose, when I was in the canvass, that I was to vote and act as a party leader should dictate, especially in the matter of the grave moment of that which is before me. I am not to be drawn into a general defence of A. Johnson, nor will I, for the sake of securing the official patronage of the Republican party for the next election, take any violent measures to put Wade in the White House. When the impeachment failed before, it was deemed desirable to get up a case, and Stanton was selected as the agent to bring it about; he was induced to remain in the War Department to bully the President, and get up a case for impeachment. I believe that the whole affair is a bold, bad, damnable scheme, and I predict that even the unpopularity of the President, and a general howl against him, will not satisfy the people that revolution is now necessary or justifiable.

Looking at the case from my standpoint, I would not have voted for impeachment if every friend I had on earth deserted me I have acted from convictions of duty, and I am ready to vindicate myself here and elsewhere, and in retiring to private life shall preserve my self-respect.

THE GENERAL CONFERENCE OF THE METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.—One of the most important events of a religious character that has ever occurred in Chicago will be the meeting of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church of the United States, to occur on the first of next month. This conference assembles only once in four years; it is composed of delegates from all the annual conferences in the United States, sixty eight in number, which have an aggregate clerical membership of eight thousand. The ratio of representation in the general conference is one delegate for every thirty members. It is expected that there will be present at the forthcoming session nine bishops, two hundred and thirty-five delegates proper, and numerous visiting delegates from England, Ireland, France, the Canadas and the United States. Every State and several of the Territories will be represented. Several very important questions will come up for action, among them lay representation, Southern work and the foreign mission policy. The body will also constitute a court of appeals, and during the session the conference will elect general officers, bishops, editors, book agents and corresponding secretaries of connectional societies.

SPIRITUALISM.—Horace Greeley sums up as the result of a number of years' investigation and observation of spiritualism, that the thing itself is inexplicable; that men and women have not been made better by it; on the contrary, have grown lax in their notions of marriage, divorce and moral purity, and that the aggregate of insanity and suicide has been increased by spiritualism. A good many others will agree with him.

TO FARMERS!

Pacific Guano Company's
SOLUBLE
PACIFIC GUANO!

PRICE REDUCED TO $56.00 PER TON.

THE USE OF THIS GUANO in Maryland for several years for Corn, Tobacco and other Spring Crops, as well as for Wheat, has established its excellence. It possesses all the quickness of Peruvian Guano, with permanent qualities not possessed by that article.

Experience has shown that this Guano ripens the Wheat crop from five to six days earlier than the Super Phosphates. It also ripens Tobacco earlier, and produces a crop of better quality. The Pacific Guano Company has authorized the above reduction in consequence of the depressed condition of the farming interests in the Southern States. It is the purpose of the Company to furnish the best fertilizer at the lowest price, which they are able to do by reason of their large capital and facilities. The Guano is warranted same in quality as heretofore sold by us. For sale by dealers.

TO FARMERS and PLANTERS.

WE would call the attention of Farmers and Planters to our Double Refined Poudrette.

It is composed of Night Soil, from which the impurities have been strained and extracted, after which it is dried, pulverized into a fine substance, and for Corn is the cheapest Fertilizer in the market. It is used in the hill, a small handful being sufficient to insure a good crop, and it will force the crop earlier, by two weeks, than any other Fertilizer. Hear what a few of the Farmers and planters say of the effect of it on Corn.

CERTIFICATES:

Extract from a letter received from Professor MARTIN, of Hampden Sidney College, Virginia, dated July 1, 1867:

The Double Refined Poudrette is operating like a charm on my crop and attracting universal attention from all beholders. I am already satisfied that it is the cheapest and surest renovator for our worn-out lands.

Extract from a letter received from F. HOLCOMBE, Savannah, Ga., Sept. 25, 1867:

I used the Double Refined Poudrette, bought of you last spring, on Corn, I think it increased the yield one-half. I consider it an excellent manure.

We are unable to give any certificates from Maryland, as it has not been introduced fairly into this market, but we feel confident that it will give general satisfaction, and we only ask of you a trial.

We have also for sale Bone Dust, Baynes' Fertilizer, Guanos, Phosphates, Ground Plaster, Lime, and all kinds of Fertilizers.
