Even Seconds Help

Long distance calls continue to crowd the circuits. We have adopted many arrangements to get more calls over the lines than they were ever designed to carry and to get them through faster.

When you must make a call, here's a way which may speed your service a little. Give the operator the details of your call in the following order:

FIRST—give her the name of the distant city and state.

THEN—give her the telephone number you want.

If you do not know the number, give the operator the name and address so she can get the number for you.

WAIT—until the operator asks for your telephone number.

Simple, isn't it? But it will help to speed your call.
