Square the Circle

The technical explanation of the impossibility of constructing a circle of the same area as a given square is that pi, by which the area of a circle is determined, will never come out even but will always be 3.1416 plus. Scholars in classical times learned it was impossible to "square the circle" but perhaps the first reference to this fact in English was made in 1624 by John Donne.

Future Building

The economical way of building the bathroom and kitchen of the near future may be to fabricate these rooms in the factory and ship them complete to the building site, some say. As built by presentday methods, these two rooms require more skilled manipulation, more experienced men to assemble on the job than any other rooms of the house. Now plastics cements may even make it possible to build without nails.

Give Nurses Rank

The National Defense act of June 4, 1920, carried an amendment providing for "relative rank" for members of the army nurse corps. This for the first time gave army nurses the dignity and status of commissioned officers, though the pay and allowances provided were not the same as those received by officers of equivalent grade.

Thad Phibbs' Formula for Fun

Thad Phibbs has a theory of enjoyment all his own. The more tired he is from working at the War Plant, the more fun he has pitching horseshoes with the boys these summer evenings.

"That's because I feel that I deserve it," Thad says simply.

And I wonder if he isn't right. I wonder if we don't enjoy things in proportion as we know we've earned them. Is a little relaxation ever more welcome than after a hard day's work? Do we appreciate our little pleasures quite as much as when we know in our hearts we've done a good job well?

From where I sit, that's one of the things this wartime strain has taught us. We're all of us working hard at our jobs, doing our level best to pull our weight. And we're learning the little rewards, the simple pleasures—a home-cooked meal, a glass of beer with friends—are more welcome now than ever ... because we've earned them!

Poultryman to Congress

VOTE FOR

Wilmer Fell Davis

On the pier at Ocean City is a very decorative sign painted in red, white and blue, with the above inscription.

Mr. Davis has been in the egg and poultry business since January 1916, buying eggs from many farmers in five counties, and concentrating them in the local plant at Federalsburg. Since 1931 he has been selling feed, supplying chicks and the like for the farmers to raise broilers and layers, and is thoroughly famliiar with their difficulties at this time. He would be in position to be of greater help to them if in the Halls of Congress.
