The Latest Agony.

Mrs. Revels at Grant's Table—A Scene at the White House—A Guinea Golder at a State Dinner.

Mrs. Senator Revels, the wife of the distinguished "man and brother," who sits in the seat of Jefferson Davis in the Upper House at Washington, arrived in that city on Thursday last, the 17th ult., and was entertained the next day at a State dinner party by General Grant, General Butler, General Schenck, General Garfield, and other military imbeciles of note accompanied by their wives and daughters, were among the company.

Mrs. Revels passed from the drawing-room to the dining-room on the arm of Senator Sumner, and occupied a seat at the table between that gentleman and the President. Her conversation charmed the company even more than her appearance, although the refined and instinctive taste in dress in which the ladies in Guinea are distinguished was sweetly apparent in the decoration of her person. A turban of mild scarlet with yellow border—a crimson moire antique with blue aud green flounces and buttons of dainty brass—red slippers with white rosettes—with a massive necklace barbaric pearls—half a dozen breast pins of curious workmanship—a few neat rings and a gilt belt united to form a toilette in which purity and simplicity were exquisitely united. Mrs. Revels partook freely of the Executive nourishment, and avowed her satisfaction over the cookery at almost every bite with a frankness quite refreshing in the saloons of the State. "See heah," she remarked as she passed her plate for another cut of the ham, "of all dem dishes guv me the hog and hominey—golly! but dat's a sweet piece of bacon. Dese is good cooking, Hiram."

This last observation was of course addressed to the partner of her bosom.—There was a general feeling at the table that the "Court Circles" had received in this estimable matron a remarkable addition. On her departure at the close of the entertainment, General Grant, with his wonted urbanity, remarked that he "would like to see more of her," to which Mrs. Revels with uncommon tact, replied, "Yah, Yah! see no more of me dis time, but I'se gitting low-necked dresses. Dis yeah one was made down Souf."

A Wonderful Microscopic Discovery.—Science is yet ceaselessly working on to results still more surprising. The last advance, which has just been made in this city, is a very large one. Until now the best microscope magnified an object not more than two hundred million times its actual size, and very few microscopists ever saw such power. The President of the Royal Society of England last summer showed a shell magnified one hundred and forty-four million times, and this excited the astonishment of microscopists throughout the world. But the new optical combination just completed in this city exhibits the same object under an enlargement of nine thousand million times its natural magnitude. If an ordinary domestic fly could be seen entire under such magnification, it would seem to cover a space as large as the whole city of New York below Wall street. A man would appear more than a hundred miles high, and a lady's hair would reach half way from New York to New Haven.

This wonderful instrument is so sensitive that a loud word spoken near it destroys all distinctness of vision, from the tremor imparted to it by the motion of the air, and a footstep on the floor shakes it out of adjustment. The field of view—that is, the area which can be seen at once—is a circle only the one twelve-thousandth of an inch in diameter, but it appears to the eye to be eight inches in diameter. A microscopic shell called an angulatum, of which about one hundred and forty placed end to end will reach an inch, and which is simply marked with lines of the most exquisite delicacy when examined under ordinarily powerful microscopes, exhibits under the new instrument half globes of white siley whose diameters appear to be an inch and three-quarters, and of which only fifteen can be seen at once. In reality, the point of a cambric needle is larger than the circle upon which those fifteen half globes exist, and yet that circle appears like a dessert plate covered with lady apples.—These wonders we have seen, but how they are produced only men of science can fully explain and understand.—New York Sun.

On the principle that half a loaf is better than no bread, we suppose the country ought to feel grateful over the prospect that the income tax law is not to be perpetuated in the fulness of its present iniquities. And we do not doubt it will be grateful in a degree proportioned to the measure of relief afforded. But this mitigated thankfulness is in danger of extinction from the proposition now before Congress to abolish the tax on the gross receipts of railroad companies. This scheme is simply monstrous. The revenue now derived from that source, some $7,000,000 in amount, comes from the receipts of passenger travel alone; but if the tax were removed, does any person suppose that a traveler will be able to ride any cheaper on a single railroad in the United States? Not one farthing.—The proposition is, in plain language, nothing but a plan to transfer so much money from the public treasury to that of rich and grasping monopolies, without a particle of benefit or semblance of benefit to an overburdened and long suffering people.—Washington Star.

Another Haul on the Treasury.—There was missed from the United States Treasury on Saturday, (supposed to have been stolen,) a bundle of two thousand new legal-tender notes of the denomination of $10, new series of 1869, having the head of Daniel Webster, and numbered as follows: H 3,530,001 to H 3,532,000, both inclusive, amounting to $20,000.—Washington Sunday Chron.

The Female Clerks.—The women, when they become clerks at Washington, are to get their rights from Congress.—The House on Saturday, by a vote of 78 to 75, adopted the Senate amendment to the appropriation bill, providing that hereafter the compensation of all female clerks and employees who may be appointed shall be the same as that paid to males of the same class.

It is said that Kansas will more than double her population this year. The immigration is very great.

The Maryland Jockey Club—Election of Officers—The Fall Meeting.—A meeting was held at Barnum's City Hotel on Tuesday evening, composed of leading merchants and bankers of the city, and influential gentlemen from all parts of the for the purpose of organizing what is to known as the Maryland Jockey Club.—On motion of Gov. Bowie, Dr. J. Hanson Thomas was called to the chair, and Henry E. Johnson appointed secretary. A committee, consisting of five, was appointed to suggest officers for a permanent organization of the association. The committee subsequently reported the following, and the report was adopted: Governor Bowie, president; Washington Booth and Col. Ed. Lloyd vice-presidents; James L. McLain, secretary; Henry Elliott Johnson, treasurer; W. W. Glenn, J. D. Kremmelberg, F. M. Hall, George Small and F. B. Loney, race stewards.

Gov. Bowie made some remarks, thanking the club for the honor conferred on him. He referred to the fact that the Maryland Jockey Club originated at Saratoga in 1868, when thirty subscribers were obtained at $1,000 each for the first race, the dinner table stake. The officers of the Jerome Park had already offered a bonus of $5,000 to the parties provided the race was run over their course, but the offer was declined and Baltimore named as the place. The Governor said that one feature of the meeting would be a four mile dash, it having been asserted that no horse could stand such a trial.—Among the eighteen horses entered for this race, was one valued at $35,000, and another at $30,000. The Governor stated that on a recent visit to New York, he found much interest manifested in the Baltimore fall races, and inquiries were already being made whether Baltimore would have sufficient hotel accommodations. He was satisfied that all the hotels would be filled to their utmost capacity. Mr. Bokee, president of the Western Maryland Railroad Company, had informed thd Governor that the company is ready to construct a switch from its road to the cattle show grounds, and that the road will be completed in time for the fall races, if no unforeseen difficulty occurs with property owners on the line of the proposed route.

One hundred and sixty names, it is understood, are already appended to the list of subscribers, with a prospect of a considerable further increase.

The New Army Bill.—In the House of Representatives on Saturday Mr. Logan, from the committee of conference on the disagreeing votes on the army bill, submitted a report, which, after a long discussion, was agreed to, and it will probably pass the Senate. The maximum of the army after this year is fixed at thirty thousand men, and the annual saving is estimated at $4,000,000. Under this bill, which prohibits military officers from holding civil positions General Sickles, Minister to. Spain; General Badeau, Consul to London; General Kilpatrick, Minister to Chili; and Generals Porter, Babcock and Dent, on duty at the White House, have to either resign the civil or military office. The pay of the army is fixed as follows: General, $12,000 a year; Lieutenant General, 10,000; Major General, 7,500; Colonel, 3,500; Lieutenant Colonel, $3,000; Major, $2,500; Captain, mounted, $2,000; not mounted, $1,800; Adjutant and Regimental Quartermaster, $1,800 each;—Lieutenant, mounted, $1,600; not mounted, 1,500. Below the rank of Brigadier General ten per cent. is added to the current yearly pay of officers for each term of five years of continuous service. It is provided that the pay of a Colonel shall not exceed 4,500, nor a Lieutenant Colonel $4,000, and these sums shall be in full for all commutation of quarters, forage, fuel, servants, and all allowances whatsoever.

Death of William Gilmore Simms.—A dispatch from Charleston announces the death of William Gilmore Simms, the Southern poet and novelist. The sad event occurred on Saturday. Mr. Simms was born in Charleston, April 17, 1806, and was consequently about sixty-four years of age. From early life he constantly applied himself to literary pursuits. At eighteen years of age he commenced the study of law, was married at twenty, was admitted to the bar at twenty two, and shortly after became editor of the Charleston City Gazette. After various vicissitudes, including heavy pecuniary loss and the death of his wife and father, he moved to Massachusetts, where, in 1833, he wrote the longest and best of his imaginative poems: "Atlantis, a story of the Sea." He subsequently spent much time in New York, and finally returned to South Carolina. In the meantime he wrote many poems and novels, chiefly illustrative of Southern and Western revolutionary scenes and backwoods life.

A Touching Scene.—A touching scene is related by a gentleman as having occurred during the decoration ceremonies. A little girl entered the cemetery carrying wreaths of beautiful flowers, and hastened to the side where the Confederate dead lay, and proceeded to place a wreath on each grave. A friend of hers approached her, saying. "But, Susie, those are the rebels graves." She replied, "Yes, I know it, but my pa was a soldier, and died in Libby prison, and is buried down South; I so much hope some little girls there will strew flowers on his grave. I thought I would bring these and put them on the rebels' graves. May be some of them have little girls at home, you know."—Lafayette (Ind.) Dis.

One of the most singular sights growing out of the war is a continuous line of peach trees of nearly fifty miles in length around Petersburg, and extending towards Richmond. They are growing from the breast-works thrown up by the Confederate army, and are the only legacy left by the poor fellows who were on the advance line within one hundred yards of the Federal forces. Having eaten of the fruit while on picket duty, they cast the seed aside, and now they appear in one continuous line of forty-five miles of beautiful trees, which yielded an abundant crop last year.

The total receipts of the United States government since its organization, March 4, 1789, to June 30, 1869, a period of eighty years, from all sources, were $11,402,000,000, and the expenditures $11,250,000,000.

The Living Machine.

Injure the main spring of a watch and every portion of the works become disordered. The human stomach is to the human system what that elastic piece of metal is to a chronometer. It influences the action of the other organs, and controls to a certain extent, the whole living machine. The comparison may be carried further: for as the weakness or other imperfections of the main spring is indicated on the face of the time-piece, so also is the weakness or other disorder of the stomach betrayed by the face of the invalid; the complexion is sallow or faded, the eyes are deficient in lustre and intelligence and there is a worn, anxious expression in the whole countenance which tell as plainly as written written words could do, that the great nourishing organ whose office it is minister to the wants of the body, and to sustain and renew all its parts, is not performing its duty. It requires renovating and regulating, and to accomplish this end Hostetter's Stomach Bitters may be truly said to be the one thing needful. The broken main spring of a watch may be replaced by a new one, but the stomach can only be repaired and strengthened, and this is one of the objects of the famous vegetable restorative which for eighteen years has been waging a successful contest with dyspepsia in all climates. As a specific for indigestion it stands alone. When the resources of the pharmacopœia have been exhausted, without at best, doing more than mitigating the complaint, a course of this wholesome and palatable, yet powerful stomarchic effects a perfect and permanent cure. In all cases of dyspepsia the liver is more or less disordered, and upon this important gland, as well as upon the stomach and bowels, the Bitters act with singular distinctness, regulating and reinvigorating every secretive and assimilating organ on which bodily and mental health depend.

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

BY VIRTUE of an order of the Circuit Court for Kent county, sitting in Equity, the undersigned, as trustee, will offer at public sale at the Voshell House in Chestertown, Maryland, on

TUESDAY,
The twenty-first day of June, 1870, at 12½ o'clock, P. M., all that valuable and desirable Estate, situate and lying in Kent county, known as

"The Ship-Yard."
THIS FARM CONTAINS

of which thirty-three are in a detached WOOD LOT, nearly all the residue is arable and divided into six fields, each having a good supply of water, and under good fencing. The soil is naturally of the first quality and is in good heart.

In view of its situation and productiveness this farm is justly esteemed among the finest estates in the lower part of the county. It lies in a well settled, thrifty and healthy neighborhood, on the public road from Rees' Corner to Edesville, and a branch of the North West branch of Langford's Bay, on which it has the advantages of

A Fine Public Wharf AND LANDING.

Churches, Schools, Mills and Post Office are all very convenient, the latter only a mile off; and is within four miles of the Steamboat Landing on Grey's Inn Creek, and it is now contemplated to have shortly a steamer on Langford's Bay, and at this public landing must be her most important stop, as it lies at the head of steamboat navigation on that branch of the Bay.

The soil of this farm is well adapted to grain, fruits and vegetables, and the location to any public business, such as buying and freighting grain and produce, selling lumber, or keeping a general country store; and with these rare business facilities it combines all the advantages of our most desirable water situations. All the luxuries our waters afford may be here had and enjoyed in their greatest perfection, at no other cost than that incident to the pleasure and amusement of their pursuit.

This Farm is divided by the public road; throwing it is supposed about 240 acres on the left next to the bay, and about 60 acres on the right. It will be offered in parts and then as a whole, and sold as may be found most advantageous.

The Improvements
Are a New, Large and conveniently arranged

DWELLING,
near the water and Landing; Stable and Carriage House; and in a more central part of the farm there is a

New Frame Dwelling
with a Kitchen attached, and the usual Out-Buildings, all new and in good order.

A Peach Orchard
of Three Thousand Trees will bear next year. The Orchard is thrifty, and the fruit is of the best and most saleble varieties.

TERMS OF SALE:

The terms prescribed by the order are as follow:—$6,000 cash on the day of sale, or thirty days thereafter, at the option of the Trustee; and the balance on the first day of Jan., 1871, with interest from the day of sale, secured by bond with approved security.
