FARMERS' DEPARTMENT

"He who by the plow would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive."

How they Farm in England.

Prof. Cook, of the State Agricultural College of New Jersey, gives some of his experience gained in a late visit to England. He had been much interested in a visit to a farm in Norfolk of 1,160 acres, in which 250 acres were devoted to each of the following crops—viz: roots, barley, oats and beans, wheat and hay—principally clover—with 160 acres of meadow and permanent pasture. The plowing is done by steam, the implement used on stubbles not being a plow, but a cultivator, which penetrates the ground fifteen inches, and tears and reduces it without inverting it. This, passing, through the soil at a rate of five miles an hour, works with excellent effect. Though the ground was very dry and hard, so much so that we should be unable to plow it here under the same conditions, this implement passed back and forth easily, plowing 20 acres per day. Thus great expedition was gained. A field which was in wheat on Monday had been reaped, cleared, plowed, and sowed with turnips by the next Wednesday. This rapidity was necessary, as turnips followed the wheat, and no time could be lost in getting this crop into the ground. Here was the chief advantage of steam cultivation, as well as the deep pulverizing of the soil which was necessary for root crops. Another interesting fact was the immense crops raised. On this field 64 bushels of wheat per acre had been taken off; on some acres the yield was 68 bushels. The secret was in the perfect preparation of the ground, plowing, harrowing, and rolling, and profuse manuring. 2,000 sheep were fed on this farm, as well as 250 head of cattle. These were bought of the best kind possible—South-Down sheep and Durham cattle—fed, fattened, and sold. The sheep were folded on the turnips, by which the soil was manured and consolidated in preparation for barley or beans. The cattle were fed in stalls, loose, furnished with troughs for cut roots, oil-meal (of which 500 tons were used annually,) and water. Straw was the only fodder. This was thrown into the stall, and what was not consumed was trodden down with the manure until it accumulated two or three feet thick. Thus an immense amount of fertilizing matter was secured, by which 1,000 bushels of beets, mangolds, and other roots per acre were grown, and the ground thoroughly enriched. The rent of this farm was equal to seven dollars per acre, and an equal amount per acre was expended for labor. Laborers could be hired for two to three dollars per week, they boarding themselves. As an illustration of the results of this system, Prof. Cook stated that England had an area of 50,000 square miles, while New York State had 47,000; but England had 35,000,000 sheep, while New York had but 2,000,000, and the land was equally fertile in both countries naturally, but very differently so artificially. England raised 148 pounds of meat per acre per annum. This is worth twenty dollars, and shows the value of this production alone. While these results were attained in England, they were equally possible here.—At the farm of the College in New Jersey a crop of carrots had been raised equal to 800 bushels per acre, and a quarter of an acre of mangolds had produced 250 bushels. But it was a question whether we could go so far in introducing root culture when we considered the value of our corn crop and its adaptation to our conditions and necessities. At any rate, however, it was certain that good farming paid here as well as in England. The Professor was compelled by the inexorable clock to close his interesting lecture; and after the usual compliment of vote of thanks, etc., had been duly administered, the meeting was adjourned.

SCARCITY OF OYSTERS.—The London Field states that oysters in England have reached the enormous price of $55 per bushel, consequent on the almost complete dredging out of the beds. Although a Government Inspector of oysters is paid a handsome salary to look after the preservation of the beds, yet it is complained that he makes the position a sinecure.—Official dishonesty is therefore not altogether an American peculiarity. It is to be hoped that the magnificent oyster-beds which we possess may be better protected in the future than they now are, lest before long we might also find the supplies exhausted.

Butter, Cheese, and Milk.

It requires about sixteen quarts of good milk to make one pound of butter, and ten quarts to make one pound of cheese.

It is often a question with farmers, how they can best dispose of their dairy products. If we consider that the pork produced from the buttermilk or whey pays for the extra trouble involved in the care of butter and cheese, the account will stand about as follows, when butter is selling at forty cents a pound, cheese at eleven cents, and milk at three cents per quart.

One pound of butter—16 quarts of milk—40 cents, or 2½ cents per quart for milk.

One pound of cheese—10 quarts of milk—11 cents, or, 1 1-11 cts. per quart for milk.

In order to pay three cents per quart for the milk consumed, the pound of cheese would have to be sold at thirty cents, or one pound of butter at fifty cts.

In the neighborhood of large cities milk will command even better prices than the above, as it is frequently worth five cents per quart; this would bring the value of the pound of butter up to eighty cents and the cheese to fifty cents.

A farmer can easily judge from these figures which is the most profitable business for him, the prices being in all cases those which can be obtained on the farm. If the articles are to be delivered, the ratios may be somewhat changed.

For a person living a long distance from market, or where the means of communication are slow and uncertain, cheese will most likely be the only available means of reaching a market. For those living nearer to market, with good facilities for reaching it, butter is the best paying product.

In order to make milk pay the market must not be over two or three hours' distance from the farm. Many railroads, however, equalize the rates of freight on milk, charging all their customers the same price, whether they live ten or thirty miles from the city.

NOTES.—A gentleman in Connecticut, some years since, sowed in the spring some rye, which proved to be winter grain. He pastured it through the summer, and the next year he gathered a bountiful harvest from the same.

If you expect good cattle, look first at the calves; if you wish good men, look carefully after the children.

Different varieties of the apple grow to different sizes when they arrive at full maturity, but the usual average allowed to them in the Northern States is two rods (or 33 feet) apart. Some plant at 35 feet, and when there is plenty of land 40 feet is sometimes adopted.

There was a meeting of horticulturists held some time since in Illinois, at which the question of preserving patridges upon farms and in gardens to destroy insects and vermin generally was presented and facts given to show that they are very destructive during the growing seasons of the enemies of plants, flowers, fruits and grain.

HOW TO KEEP LAND IN GRASS PERMANENTLY.—The proper management of grass lands will be, before long, if it is not now, the key to successful agriculture in America. We find a difficulty in maintaining the productiveness of our meadows and pastures, even with annual top-dressings of barnyard manure. There needs something more. Not only abundant artificial manures are necessary to maintain perennial vigor, but the mechanical processes of harrowing and rolling are needed.—These destroy moss, loosen and open the surface, admit the fertilizers to the roots, and prevent the formation of tufts of herbage, which in time would render the surface uneven. By these means grass lands have been kept productive for centuries in European countries.

CARE OF HORSES' LEGS.—Few men who handle horses give proper attention to the feet and legs. Especially is this the case on farms. Much time is spent of a morning in rubbing, brushing and smoothing the hair on the sides and hips, but at no time are feet examined and properly cared for. Now, be it known that the feet of a horse require more care than the body. They need ten times as much, for in one respect they are almost the entire horse. All the grooming that can be done won't avail anything if the horse is forced to stand where his feet will be filthy. In this case the feet will become disordered, and then the legs will get badly out of fix; and with bad feet and bad legs, there is not much else of the horse fit for anything.

Clear and Harmless as Water!

NATTANS' CRYSTAL DISCOVERY

FOR THE HAIR!

A PERFECTLY clear preparation in one bottle, as easily applied as water, for restoring to gray hair its natural color and youthful appearance, to eradicate and prevent dandruff, to promote the growth of the hair and stop its falling. It is perfectly harmless and entirely free from any poisonous substance and will therefore take the place of all the dirty and unpleasant preparations now in use. In everything in which the articles now in use are objectionable, CRYSTAL DISCOVERY is perfect. It is warranted to contain neither Sugar of Lead, Sulphur, Litharage, or Nitrate of Silver. Bear this in mind when you want anything for your hair.

Clear and clean as water, it does not soil the scalp or clothes, is agreeably perfumed, and makes one of the best dressings for the hair in use. It restores the color of the hair more perfect and uniformly than any other preparation, and always does so in from 3 to 10 days. Virtually feeding the roots of the hair with all the nourishing qualities necessary to its growth and healthy condition, it restores the decayed and induces a new growth of the hair more positively than anything else. The application of this wonderful discovery also adduces a pleasant and cooling effect on the scalp and gives the hair a glossy appearance.

We call especial attention to the fact that a limited number of trial bottles will be given away gratuitously to those desiring to try it. You will notice that in pursuing this course our aim is to convince by the actual merits of the article. ARTHUR NATTANS, Inventor and Proprietor, Washington, D. C., to whom all orders must be addressed.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans:

Dear Sir—I do not hesitate to say that your Crystal Discovery deserves to supercede all other preparations claiming to restore the growth and color of the hair. I have used it a week now, and my hair has already returned to its natural color, and has ceased falling almost entirely. I cheerfully recommend it.

Respectfully,
fel1y. MRS. ANNIE MORRAIN.
