SOCIAL DISEASE EDUCATION TO BE REVIVED HERE

Thursday, February 1, 1940, was the Fourth National Social Hygiene Day, inaugurating the month of February as a time for further education of Social Diseases. The Kent County Health Department observed the first day by showing talking moving pictures on the subject of syphilis at Garnet High and Elementary School. Since that day, the same films have been shown to all the other colored school groups, to the children of the white high schools and to two Parent-Teacher groups.

Syphilis, in spite of the encouraging progress made against it, is still a major threat to our national health. Syphilis, and its fellow scourge, gonorrhea, are still more prevalent in this country than any other serious infectious disease. There have been many gains during the past four years when the press and radio gave up the taboe of not even mentioning the word. However, we have hardly more than come to grips in the struggle to throw off the burden of sickness and sorrow and death loaded on the American people.

The following are the urgent needs still required of the Social Hygiene Programs in the future:

Increased activities to inform the public about syphilis and gonorrhea—their nature, diagnosis, treatment, cure. To help them, too, to guard against unscrupulous quacks and the sellers of worthless remedies who, promising quick cure, mercilessly exploit their unfortunate victims.

Sound legislation to prevent congenital syphilis and the spread of the disease in marriage.

Help for youth—instructions and guidance through homes, churches, and schools—education to enable parents, pastors, and teachers to aid young people.

The enlistment of additional citizen groups, to make public opinion about syphilis more effecive—to organize it and put it to work.

These are the means by which we shall gain final victory over one of mankind's deadliest enemies—an achievement possible within a single generation. By so doing, we shall clear the way for great advances in the broader field of social hygiene, paricularly in the important matter of education and training for marriage and family life, which in the long view—"the long look ahead"—is so vital to the future of the nation.

FOUNDERS WEEK TO BE OBSERVED BY A AND P STORES

The founder of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, George Huntington Hartford, who created the modern retailing method of direct buying and straightline, mass distribution, will be honored by all A & P stores during Founder's Week, Feb. 14-24, the company announced here today.

Retailing principles established by Mr. Hartford when he opened the first red-fronted A & P store in 1859, company officials pointed out, are used today by countless chain and independent merchants as the means of providing greater savings to consumers.

A young man from Maine, Mr. Hartford entered the retailing field in New York City, where he was impressed by the prevailing high price of tea. A & P executives said. He believed that by purchasing tea direct, eliminating the many handling charges and middlemen's profits and retailing through his own store, he could materially reduce the price from the prevailing scale of a dollar and more per pound.

Mr. Hartford's first store, located on Vesey Street in lower New York, offered its customers striking savings on their tea purchases, and was an immediate success, the company officials said. Applying the same principles of direct buying and quick turn-over of large volume at small profit, he opened additional units and added other groceries to his stock.

During Founder's Week, all A & P stores will lay special emphasis on tea, as their original stock in trade, and coffee, another early item of which the company is now the world's largest retailer, executives of the food chain declared. Purpose of the merchandising program, they concluded, is to demonstrate how foods and beverages that were once luxuries have been made inexpensive itmes in everyday diet, through modern, efficient methods of food distribution.

Literary Tree

In Coole Park, Ireland boasts "its most literary tree." This growing timber shows honorable scars in the shape of signatures in the bark of William Butler Yeats, Edward Martyn, Synge, George Moore, and George Bernard Shaw.
