"He who by the plow would thrive,
Himself must either hold or drive."

What Breed of Sheep Shall we Keep?

Nearly every farmer keeps sheep to a greater or less extent, some for wool exclusively, some for raising early lambs for the butcher, and some for fattening for mutton. We have been repeatedly asked what we consider the best breed for both mutton and wool, and would say that our preference is for the Southdown. The pure Southdown buck is especially useful to cross on common breeds, for our early lambs for our city markets, where they command high prices. The Southdown lamb and mutton, with which our principal markets are supplied, are reared from grade ewes by the use of thoroughbred Southdown rams. If only the butcher can see the blackish or brownish legs and faces, it suffices to make them Southdown.

The Southdown epicure himself when set down to table with a well-done leg before him, is utterly unable to tell the grade from the pure blood.

The male lambs should be altered when a few day old, and their tails cut off at an inch from the root. They suffer but little inconvenience from the operation when performed at that age, but it is necessary to take pains in handling, lest they get bruised or injured in struggling. They should be held firmly and quietly. They make better fat lambs, if intended to be sold as such; and if designed to be kept as wethers, there is less risk in the operation if performed at the time recommended.

The fashion of sheep, like all other fashions, is subject to changes. Twenty-five years ago the fashion was to have clean heads on Southdown, or those free from any wool in the forehead. The presence of a tuft on the forehead would have excited suspicion of a cross with the Merino; but now the fashion has changed, and a tuft of wool is, by some whose observation does not extend very far back, considered almost the standard of purity.

In regard to the flock of ewes for raising mutton sheep, it depends entirely on circumstances whether it is best to cross them with a Southdown or Cotswold, or some other mutton breed. For the last few years long-wooled crosses have been profitable. The wool has been in demand for combing purposes, and the mutton has commanded a ready sale. But of course it is useless to expect this breed to cross to produce a good fleece of wool and a heavy carcass without liberal feeding. Those who are not prepared to give extra food and attention to their flocks would do better to keep Southdown sheep.

Southdowns constitute the favorite mutton sheep of England, being not only of a higher flavor, but having the fat and lean intermixed. They are said to succeed better on dry, short pasturage than the Cotswolds, and for this reason would probably be better adapted to the conditions of the South. After all, however, we are inclined to the opinion that the flavor of mutton depends very much on the kind of herbage on which the animals feed.

A writer in the "Prairie Farmer" says: Some of my neighbors have the Cotswold, some the Leicesters, and some have the Southdown. I keep the Southdowns and have none for sale. I have a splendid winter suit of casinetsteelmixed, made of just two Southdowns' fleeces, off two Southdowns which have taken sweepstake premiums in this and another county.—The wool was clipped in May last and the cloth manufactured in Macomb, and is fine enough for a Philadelphia lawyer.—I am content with the Southdowns, and want no better breed, either for lambs, wool or mutton.—American Stock Journal.

Feeding Cattle.

Grasshoppers came down on Maine in such a manner as to almost make the inhabitants think they were in Utah. The result was a great scarcity of winter food for cattle, and Yankee ingenuity was driven to some queer expedients to overcome the difficulty. Among others was the feeding of fish to the cattle. After a little while they became very fond of this strange food, and it seems to have answered very well for them.

The scarcity led many thoughful people to weigh every mouthful of food eaten by their cattle, and to make careful observations. One gentleman finds that 30 lbs. of hay divided into three equal portions will keep a cow in good condition 24 hours. Or ten pounds of hay on five pounds of corn meal will accomplish the same thing. Twenty bushels of corn are found to be equivalent to a ton of hay—that is when the hay is cut in blossom and cured without rain or dew.

Another gentleman kept a yearling colt in a constantly growing condition on one quart of oats and four pounds of hay per day. This is most remarkable. The colt must have been an easy keeper naturally. This ration was divided into three equal parts, and fed at early morn, at noon and just before dark.

When the hay was timothy, he cut it; when red clover, he fed it without cutting. In all cases he wet his hay and oats with warm water. He fed his cows ten pounds of hay and four quarts of corn meal, wetting it in the same way.

CURE FOR FOUNDER.—I noticed in your paper, a few weeks ago, a sure cure for foundered horses. I send you mine, which I have tried on many different horses, and in cases of long standing:—Take some old woolen blankets or rags—if woolen rags are not handy, take straw—and wrap the legs tight, up as high as you can conveniently, then take hot water, hot enough to scald the hair off a well horse, pouring it around the horse's legs until they are well soaked; then in an hour serve in the same way except not quite so hot, and in two hours he will be as well as ever. This I know to be a sure cure, and there is no danger of injuring the animal as would be the case with turpentine. The horse is paralyzed; the limbs are cold, and the hot water will start the blood circulating and start the perspiration. I have taken boiling hot water and applied and never injured a hair.—Correspondent of Western Rural.

TO OBTAIN PURE SEED, go into your field when the wheat begins to ripen; you will find spots on a southern slope, in advance of the rest of the field; from these spots select the ripest and best developed heads; with your pocket knife cut the stalk about ten inches below the head; when you have a handfull wrap a straw around it; throw in bunches; carry out in sacks or baskets. For every bushel you gather in this way, with a little extra preparation of land, you ought to grow from thirty to fifty bushels of pure seed and improved wheat the next season.—I know whereof I affirm, for I have tried it. By this method, you not only get pure seed of the variety you desire, but you improve its quality, and promote early ripening, and are thereby likely to escape the disease called rust.

MAXIM FOR FARMERS.—The good farmer is proved by the steady appreciation of his crops. Any one may reap an ample harvest from a fertile virgin soil; the good farmer alone grows good crops at first, and better ever afterwards.

A Profitable Delaware Farm.

The Middletown (Delaware) Transcript thus speaks of a farm owned by J. B. Fennimore, and occupied by his son Samuel, near Odessa:

"The wind-pump which Mr. F. erected a little more than a year ago to drain his marsh land had done its work most nobly, well repaying its enterprising owner for his expense and labor. It has thoroughly dried the marsh, and converted it into profitable meadow. Last fall Mr. F. prepared the ground for grass, sowed the seed, and this year reaps the reward. He has about 50 acres well set in timothy, yielding two tons per acre, which, at the present high price of hay, is worth to him between $3,000 and $4,000, all from land which was formerly comparatively valueless; besides this the same redeemed land furnishes excellent pasturage for the stock of the farm. Mr. Fennimore has a flourishing peach orchard of forty-five hundred trees, on land formerly in trees, from which he expects to pick 8,000 baskets of fruit, thus refuting the old idea that trees will do no good if planted the second time on the same ground. He has also an orchard of 300 apple trees, well laden with fruit, among which he says he can select 20 trees that will yield 50 baskets each.—The entire farm of 500 acres is in an excellent state of culture. He has 70 acres in wheat, 30 in corn, about 5 in potatoes, and his prospect for crops is as fine as any we have seen in the country. Placing Mr. Fennimore's peaches at $6,000, his apples at $2,000, his wheat at $1,500, his corn at $600, hay $3,000, and potatoes $300, we have the snug little sum of $13,400. Not a bad yield.

FOWLS IN ORCHARDS.—A correspondent of the Farmer's Home Journal, thus writes on fowls:

"The public has yet to learn the full advantage of keeping poultry. Few seem to appreciate what they may do among trees in an orchard. Let any one try them in an orchard of a quarter of an acre, where they may be kept by a picket fence four or five feet high; put in, say 125 fowls and observe the result. They will avoid annoyance in the garden, of which so many complain, while they work among the trees, doing just what is needed and destroying everything that can injure the fruit-trees in the shape of bugs, worms or any other insects, and lay a large number of eggs, which are a cash article, to say nothing of the chickens, which pay well for raising at the present time. I have tried it, and know it is so. I have about 100 fowls which have worked admirably among my trees, keeping the ground in good condition, keeping off the insects, and promoting the growth of the orchard. I am satisfied that we have yet to learn the full benefit which may be derived from the proper management of fowls; and it is quite possible that the method I have suggested may offer the best way of getting our apple orchards in good bearing condition."

HOW EASILY BUTTER IS SPOILED.—A farmer's wife writes: "Of all the products of the farm, butter is the most liable to be tainted by noxious odors floating in the atmosphere. Our people laid some veal in the cellar, from which a little blood flowed out and was neglected until it commenced to smell. The result was that a jar of butter which I was then packing smelled and tasted like spoiled beer. Another lady reader observes that there was a pond of filthy, stagnated water a few hundred feet from their house, from which an offensive effluvium would be born on the breeze directly to the milk-room, when the wind was in a certain direction, the result of which was that the cream and butter would taste like the disagreeable odor coming from the pond.—As soon as the pond was drained, we had no more damaged butter."—Exchange.

NUMBER OF HILLS OR TREES WHICH GROW ON AN ACRE.—The following table giving the number of hills, or trees, that can be planted on an acre, will be worth preserving:

Plants, 1 foot apart each way	62,560
Hills 2 feet apart each way	10,890
Hills 2½ feet each way	6,969
Hills 3 feet each way	4,840
Hills 3½ feet each way	3,556
Hills 4 feet each way	2,722
Hills 5 feet each way	1,742
Hills 6 feet each way	1,210
Hills 8 feet each way	680
Trees 10 feet apart	435
Trees 12 feet apart	302
Trees 15 feet apart	193
Trees 20 feet apart	108
Trees 25 feet apart	69
Trees 30 feet apart	48
Trees 35 feet apart	35
Trees 40 feet apart	27

COST OF RAISING GRAIN PER BUSHEL.—Mr. H. H. Gibson, of Madison county, Illinois, in a carefully drawn up statement made to the Farmers' Club of that county, makes out the cost per bushel of wheat, corn, and oats as follows: Wheat 99½ cents per bushel; Corn 21 1-16; Oats 26½. Meadow hay, also, cost per ton $4.75. This was a carefully-prepared account of every expense, including, of course, the interest on cost of land.—The very moderate cost per bushel of raising corn, will especially strike the eastern farmer, being five cents per bushel less than oats.

THE EUREKA FANNING MILL.

THE GREATEST INVENTION OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY!

Farmers Look to Your Interest!

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public.

It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras—EUREKA!—signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention:

It combines ECONOMY, UTILITY and PRACTICABILITY!

THE "EUREKA" MILL

Is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented.

IT IS THE ONLY MILL

that will successfully remove from wheat all such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,
Chestertown, Maryland,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of Noland & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee that they will be put up in the best manner. jel7-tf.
