REGIMENTAL ORDER.

27th Regt. M. M. 22d August, 1814.

The Lieut. Colonel of the 27th Regt. has understood that some of the Privates of this Regiment since the commencement of the present tour of duty, have declared a determination of joining other Military Corps in this city, notwithstanding their being enrolled in the ranks of this regiment. The Lieut. Col. takes this opportunity of checking in is first appearance such a pernicious idea. The non-commissioned officers and privates of this Regiment are informed that they have no right to join any other regiment during the present tour of duty, that their attempting to do so will be vain, and will certainly be punished as a military offence. The utmost strictness must be observed in reporting absentees, and the heavy consequences of desertion may attend a wilful absence from duty. The Lieutenant Colonel hopes, that it will not be necessary to enforce this notice by measures of rigour, but he deems it necessary to inform the Regiment, that in future all absentees will, when apprehended, be put under arrest, and subjected to the decision of a Court Martial. By order,

Wants employment as a private tutor, to one or more families, or to teach a select school, a gentleman whose mode of instruction is entirely new, and only practised by himself, by which he will engage to quicken and mature the judgment of his pupils in one third the time required by the common mode. Besides confirming them in a knowledge of the sciences he professes to teach, his method has many other advantages, among which is, that the boys he prepares for a classical education will, with a good teacher, acquire a knowledge of the Latin and Greek languages, in one half the time required by boys taught in the common way, and with more ease to themselves and their tutor.

He will likewise engage to make his pupils write an elegant and free hand.
